FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Well, you can look for another bunch of affidavits. Last week we got a parking ticket and said that Officer Foshee gave it to us. It was Officer Charles Tucker. To tell you the truth we never looked at the ticket close enough to tell who issued it. A little boy told us that Officer Foshee had put a ticket on our car and we took for granted that he knew the officer. To us a ticket is a ticket, no matter who issues it, so we just drove around to Miss Harris and paid our respects and our buck.

Melvin Powell out Lay Dam Road has a lot of Christmas trees that he will sell at a great reduction. First come, first served.

Mrs. J. M. Gray asked us to thank all the good people who have been so kind to Alvin Campbell during the past holidays and through the past years. She says the family deeply appreciates all that has been done for him and especially she thanks the Bethany Church, the Baptist and Methodist churches of White City, and the Floyd Church. Mrs. Gray says that her wish is that God's richest blessings will abide with all the good people who have had a part in helping Alvin Campbell.

Big Jim Folsom stopped by during the holidays for a while. The wife and all the kids were along. Bama, the baby who was badly burned several months ago, is doing fine now and the doctors say she will eventually have as good use of the injured arm as the other one. They're all well and he said to tell all his friends in Chilton County hello for him and to wish them a happy 1953.

John Franklin, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Franklin of Route 3, Clanton, has been reported "missing in action." John had just returned to the front line after a thirty-day leave which ended December 16th. He was reported missing on the 24th.

Just a little over two weeks now and our new Probate Judge, Dave Tingle, Circuit Clerk, Horsley White, Treasurer, Earl Reeves, two members of the Board of Revenue and Control, Sherman Motley and Jim Dunlap, and several other county and circuit officers that had no opposition in the last election will take office. We want to start the New Year rigt by wishing each and every one of them a happy, prosperous 1953. May they enjoy each and every day of their public service and may their headaches be small.

Get ready to enjoy yourself on January 9th. You have your pick of some choice entertainment. The Clanton Lions Club is sponsoring a show at the City Hall and the Clanton Elementary School Parent-Teachers Association are sponsoring a string ensemble at the Methodist Church. Don't sit around the house and growl about not having any place to go that night.

Here's a little poem we received as a greeting the past week. It isn't at all elevating, but it did a pretty good job of getting the idea over.

The election is over
The results are known,
The will of the people
Has been clearly shown.
Let's forget our differences
And show by your deeds
That we will give Ike
The backing he needs.
We'll all get together
And let bitterness pass,
I'll hug your elephant,
And you kiss my donkey.

New Year's is the time to make good resolutions and plan for the future.

The well known adage that "Service is its own best reward," is on eternal verity in the constant struggle to build organizational strength for any group which aspires to greatness.

Membership strength has long been recognized by the Ladies Auxiliary to the V.F.W. as the basis for greatness. But, a huge organizational structure needs the solid foundations of achievement built by service and worthy work to maintain itself and assure its permanancy. Membership helps to promote growth. The membership gains in the V.F.W., Civitans, Ladies Auxiliaries, Demonstration Clubs and other organizations will be reflected not only in unselfish service, but greater accomplishments in serving our nation and fellow citizens.

As we close a year and start a New Year, we would like to add a line:

In our year as reporter we have tried to reach into every family for news. We have also tried to stick to our community. We realize that other news from other communities is not Maplesville news and we know you were not interested in it, as we have been told so many times. So, due to this fact, we have tried to draw a line. Our readers have been co-operative with news, for which we appreciate.

May the New Year bring health, happiness and good fortune to each of you. May each of you have a Happy New Year is our wish.—Your Reporter.

Just 357 days until Christmas.

Now is the time for all to get out their road maps and start planning their vacation. That is, if you have anything left to use for money.

Can't say Chilton County hasn't got careful drivers. Chilton County can boast of mighty good people, too. Christmas Day there had been only two arrests made.

NO LYNCHINGS

The Department of Records at Tuskegee Institute show no lynchings for the year 1952. That is the first such report to come out of the department since it was created 70 years ago.

Lynchings have grown less over the past several years only 8 having been reported by this department in the past five years.

Education is the answer to lynch law as it is to so many of our other ills.

HAPPY NEW YEAR

Several of our citizens are going to enjoy a Happy New Year because they were careful in their driving during 1952. Let us hope that automobile drivers have been educated to the fact that caution in driving on our highways pays off.

The people of this county are to be congratulated in their determination to see a safe and sane holiday season come and go without death and destruction by reckless automobile drivers.

THE MARCH OF DIMES

It is human nature to protect the children above all others. They are the most helpless of humanity. Thousands of cases of polio (infantile paralysis) have occurred in the United States this year, the most deplorable epidemic having swept over Texas.

Most of the victims are crippled for life, some die of the disease, and, fortunately, some recover completely, while others are confined to iron lungs to keep them alive.

Polio is one of the most dreaded diseases. It strikes suddenly and unexpectedly. It causes uneasiness among parents, who never know when or where it will strike next. The disease has been very bad this year. Every epidemic brings hardships on the community where it occurs, and dread and fear in that community.

In order to combat the disease successfully, it takes concerted and systematic action. The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, sponsor of the annual March of Dimes, is making splendid progress in finding the cause, treatment and prevention of the disease. The cost is heavy. The money raised in the March of Dimes campaign is used in taking care of the victims of polio, in securing iron lungs and in research work to determine the cause and treatment of the disease. Contribution to the March of Dimes movement helps the movement pledged to stamp out the disease sooner or later. Experiment on animals have discovered a three-weeks preventive of the disease.

One cannot contribute to a more worthy cause than to the foregoing foundation, which is making an unending fight against polio. The children must be protected. — Jasper Mountain Eagle.

Letters To The Editor

Mr. R. M. Tucker
The Chilton County News
Clanton, Alabama.

Dear Ben:

Congratulations upon the two excellent editorials in the Chilton County News today. They are both timely and appropriate.

I have driven over twelve thousand miles since August 11th, right here in Alabama and I have not found a town where the traffic lights are more dangerous than those we have here in Clanton. Traffic lights are intended as an aid to safety in driving. In a strange town drivers depend almost entirely upon the red and green lights to stop and go. When the lights are both red and green at the same time and the "guy" back of you is blowing his horn like mad, the would-be safe driver hardly knows what to do. If the lights cannot be made to function properly, then turn them off all together. They are definite death traps when inviting two-way traffic at the same time. When the traffic light is not working at all; the driver knows to look both ways for oncoming vehicles before attempting to cross a street.

If this situation is not corrected at once here in Clanton, we are likely to have a very serious accident.

Your second editorial deals with a most serious economic problem. I have given much thought to this problem in the past, and I do not see a satisfactory solution to it. It appears to be an other result of our changing times.

I trust that you and yours are to have a happy holiday season.

Sincerely yours,

PATTERSON HICKS.

December 22, 1952.

Mr. Ben Tucker
Clanton, Ala.

Friend Ben:

Believing that practically every one believes that our officials should be chosen under the democratic rule of majority.

I am within the few weeks remaining before the next session of the Legislature, writing every weekly in the State, asking them to take the matter up with the purpose of restoring majority rule in this State.

You know, the two Primary system was instituted by the formers of the Constitution of 1901, and required the two high men in the first primary to run the race off in the second primary, in order to be nominated as a candidate in the general election, thereby insuring majority rule. Since that time it was changed, permitting the second high man to withdraw from the second primary, thereby automatically nominating the high man regardless of the number of votes he received. While I would not say that this condition has ever been abused, I do say that it leaves a big opening.

Now, I believe that in order to restore democratic elections in Alabama, the people should demand that the Legislature submit a constitutional amendment for adoption wich will restore the former provision demanding the run off by the two high men, or a provision whereby, should the second high man wish to withdraw from the second race, then the next high man automatically be advanced to that position and run the race off wit the high man, and should this third high man wish to withdraw then the next man be advanced to second place, and so on until the list of candidates are exhausted. This would insure majority rule.

I know that there are some who say the general election takes care of the majority election, but does it? Records show different.

You, I am sure, are aware of the fact that our present governor in the first primary received only about 2000 more than one-fourth of the votes cast in the first primary of 1950, in which more than 402,000 votes were cast. Mr. Hams' withdrawal from the second primary deprived practically 3-4 of the voters in this election the right to make their choice of a candidate for governor.

This is a condition that in no sense be termed democratic and should be ended.

Another thing, if it is wrong for our Governor to serve the people more than one term, and wrong for our President to serve the country more than two terms, then is it not wrong for our other officials to serve a longer term.

Changes more often in my opinion would assure the people a much better government in every respect.

Sincerely,

DAN J. BAKER.

Birch Slices Beautiful Girl Into Four Parts

Thrilling, fascinating, astounding, wonderful, might describe some of the miraculous feats which Birch, Master Magician, will perform next Friday, January 9th, at 8:00 p.m., at the City Hall.

Included in the Birch performance are such bewildering illusions as the Vanishing Pony, in which a beautiful Shetland is caused to vanish while suspended in mid-air; the Challenge Packing Box escape in which Birch will attempt to escape from a strong box constructed by a local lumber company; the Beautiful Silk Mirage where yards and yards of gorgeous rainbow silks appear from nowhere; the Canary and the Mazda lamp, in which a live Canary is shot into a burning light bulb; and fifty other amazing illusions.

A huge truck transports the thirty-eight trunks and crates of equipment and scenery, making the Birch production the largest magical show on tour in the United States today. Birch is playing to capacity audiences in every city—and the reason? It is not a "talkie," and not a radio presentation, but Birch in person, presenting a most interesting evening of humor and mystery.

Miss Mabel Sperry, brilliant young xylophonist, is the assisting artist. A star of radio and concert fame, she brings you delightful melodies on her World's Fair Marimba.

The advance ticket sale has already started and tickets may be purchased from Alred-Wright Drug Store or Police Chief, Charlie Tucker. Admission prices have been fixed remarkably low for an attraction of such high calibre, and present an opportunity which has rarely been duplicated to see a master of his craft. For this reason it is expected Birch and his company will be hosts to capacity audiences wile in the city. Proceeds will go to Clanton Lions Club, who are sponsoring the entertainment.

Pecan Trees Give Shade And Nuts

Why not plant a kind of tree that will do double duty?

"And right now is te time to plant them," says the specialist. Select a good variety, such as Stuart, Elliott, Farley, or Moneymaker. Be sure to get good stocky plants four to five feet tall and plant them during the dormant season, the earlier the better."

Bagby says to dig a hole large and deep enough to receive the roots without crowding or breaking them. Use only topsoil that is rich in humus when filling the hole. Pack the soil around roots, and when the hole is three-fourths filled, pour two to three gallons of water into it. Allow te water to soak in and then finish filling the hole with soil.

"A mulch made up of straw or leaves will help hold in moisture, states the specialist. "It is a good idea to pour three or four gallons of water around each tree every week through the spring and summer months to insure a good start."

Disabled Vets Are Praised By Eisenhower

The nation's disabled veterans have already received a message of confidence from President-Elect Eisenhower.

Raymond P. Mims, Commander of the Chilton County Chapter, Disabled American Veterans, said Gen. Eisenhower, in a recent message to the DAV, said:

"I have seen the American soldier proved on the battlegrounds of Africa and Europe where twenty centuries of recorded history have not witnessed greater courage or devotion to country.

"Each of you has made a sacrifice for the common good and I know that you stand ready to serve again in whatever way may be possible to aid in the establishment of a permanent peace in which our nation may prosper and grow.

"You have been true to the heritage of American democracy. I salute you and reaffirm my confidence that we shall go forward to goals worthy of your devotion.

The DAV Commander said Gen. Eisenhower, who has taken part in a DAV national service officer training program graduation exercise, lauded the Disabled American Veterans by stating, "Your effort will be fully rewarded in the lasting appreciation of veterans who have sacrificed so much."

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

THE OPERATING ROOM

Safeguarding the patient against infection is the keynote of all operating room procedure. Thus, inside the operating room every effort is directed to prevent contamination. To achieve this, each single object, in the operating room is sterilized.

Actually the procedure starts before the surgeon or the surgical team enters the room. All street clothes are removed and replaced with "scrub" clothes that have been sterilized. Fingernails are attended to, and mask and cap are donned. The scrubbing process requires brisk scrubbing with brushes of the hands and forearms with soap or a detergent for a minimum of five minutes. Running water is always used. This procedure is followed by the immersion of the hands and arms into a solution for further cleansing.

Before the hands are dried, the surgical nurse helps the surgeon into his gown; he then dries his hands and she assists him with his gloves. The surgeon does not touch anything until he approaches the patient.

All the gear required during the operation is sterilized and packed together in what is called a "bundle." The outer item is a sheet; and included in the bundle are the surgical gowns, drapes for the patient, towels, dressings, pads and sponges. In each bundle there is a little tube to serve as an indicator that the steam and heat have penetrated the articles during the sterilization process. The heat is maintained for thirty minutes to effect sterilization. The material inside the tube melts when the steam has penetrated the bundle.

All ordinary instruments used in surgery are sterilized by boiling or steam pressure. However, sharp edged instruments and instruments and material made of various compositions are sterilized by means of certain solutions.

From start to finish, the main objective of operating room procedure is to prevent infection by the physical removal of dirt and the sterilization of every piece of material that is used on the patient.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Lathrop Tucker Mullins

How long does it take children to calm down to somewhere near normal after all the excitement of Christmas? Our neighbor around the corner says Santa Claus should be thoughtful enough to leave some sedatives for the parents along with the toys for the youngsters.

A pair of cowboy boots plus a brace of big six-shooters transformed our three-year-old from a fairly noisy boy into a roaring, tough, rowdy man of the plains. He even finds it almost impossible to calm down at bedtime, and he insists on taking his trusty guns to bed with him.

The other night at bed time when the six-year-old was saying her prayers, he continued to carry on a bitter fight against an imaginary band of outlaws. When I tried to get him to be quiet, he stopped the gun battle long enough to ask:

"Why do you have to be quiet when somebody else is praying? Is God deaf?"

* * *

Now that the tree has been taken down and the cards have been put out of sight and the decorations have been stored away for another year, the house looks strangely bare.

The six-year-old worked hard putting up the decorations, but she would have nothing to do with taking them down, didn't like the process at all.

Goodness knows she did her best to stretch out the holiday. After I had congratulated myself on getting the shopping done before the Christmas Eve deadline, she busied herself making stockings for her dolls.

"I hope Santa Claus will see these stockings and leave something in them for my dolls," she said. So, of course, Santa Claus had to brave the mobs of shoppers around the toy counter at the dime store the day before Christmas to find something for those little stockings. Whew!

* * *

"Another year," moaned the neighbor down the street. "Know what that means to me. It means 995 meals to prepare, 4,955 dishes to wash, 1,460 baths to supervise, 4,300 garments to wash and iron and so many buttons to sew on and tears to mend it makes me too tired to try to estimate them."

All of which is a very depressing attitude to have toward the newly arrived year. Being perhaps a foolish optimist, I prefer to believe that 1953 will bring some wonderful, happy surprises.

But since 1953 will certainly demand the preparing of family meals, perhaps it might be well to start the New Year with an easy recipe for a good chicken casserole dish.

Simmer a four or five-pound chicken until tender. Remove the meat from the bones and cut into small pieces. Add two cups of chicken broth to 4 tablespoons of flour, blend well and cook until thick. Remove from heat and beat in 2 eggs. Cook again until thick, stirring constantly. Then in a greased casserole dish place a layer of chicken and cover with a layer of custard. Repeat until all chicken and custard are used. Sprinkle a layer of crushed potato chips over the top and bake in a slow oven for half an hour.

THORSBY NEWS

ESTELLE HAYES

Lutheran Church News—

The Service 11:00; Sunday School 10:00. Everybody welcome.

"Heaven and earth shall pass away; but My words shall not pass away." These are truly words of comfort for this transitory age in which we live today. It is truly marvelous to watch nature in transition. The green summer foliage turns brown and disintegrates with the coming of winter, only to burst into full bloom with the coming of spring. Every sphere of life and nature changes with time.

Nevertheless, this constant changing often causes us to ask ourselves: "What is eternal and enduring?" Philosophies change, today's radical is tomorrow's conservative.

Above all of this instability, we have the words of our Lord that His Word abideth forever. Jesus Christ is the same Lord today that He was in the days of the early apostles. His Gospel is the same today as it was when it was recorded by the inspired writers of the Scriptures. Surely this is an answer to the perplexities of life that weigh so heavily upon us. With an abiding faith in the Redeemer, doubts cannot sway us, fears cannot assail us, for the Lord is greater than all of these problems. This is beautifully summarized in the words of the hymn, "Abide With Me," which go as follows: "Change and decay in all around I see; O Thou Who changest not, abide with me."

Holy Communion will be administered next Sunday morning at the service. All members are urged to be present for the Lord's Supper.

Mr. Grover Bice Retires—

After logging up some 300,000 miles between his home in Thorsby and his job at Maxwell Supply, Mr. Bice retired in December with 29 years service to his credit. His retirement was voluntary, on his part, and due to the continued illness in his family.

As a token of their well wishes, personnel in Supply presented him a number of useful gifts in a surprise get-together of the department on his last day of work at Maxwell.

His picture, together with Captain Donald S. Thomas, Sr., Warehousing Officer, and Mr. F. C. Hinson, Sr., Area Supervisor, was made by a Maxwell photographer, and was printed, along with a nice article noting Mr. Bice's outstanding service while at Maxwell Field in The Air University Dispatch.

HIGHLAND

Bro. Deason was with us for both services this week end, with an inspiring message for both services. Attendance was only fair. Let's all work together and keep our Sunday School and Training Union going strong. There has been lots of visiting and visitors in our community this past week and there is some sickness also but lets all remember our church and Sunday School work and be much in prayer that all will be out next Sunday for church.

As we enter into the New Year this week let's all resolve within our hearts to inform our minds, redeem our hearts and dedicate our lives to the Lord and His work and we surely can accomplish more in his work in the coming year than in the one past.

Please continue to pray for our sick ones each day.

Come to Sunday School at 10:00 o'clock, and Training Union at 6:00 o'clock. Let's start the New Year by being at church next Sunday.

Auburn Suggests Resolution On Idle Acres

Auburn, Ala.—That every farmer should resolve now to make wise use of every acre on the farm in 1953.

Too many farmers are still trying to grow row crops on steep, eroding slopes. Such lands are used to good advantage when they are devoted to sod crops.

On many farms there are low, moist areas grown up in brush that, if cleaned up, fertilized, and seeded to pasture, would graze more livestock and boost farm incomes.

In other words, all the land not suitable for row crops should be devoted to some type of grazing or feed production.

Use Color To Make Rooms Comfortable

When indirect light entering a room tends to create a cold effect, a warm color on the walls will make the room inviting.

But, if the light causes a very warm effect, cool colors will temper it.

Those who prefer a cool color, such as blue, in a room that has a cold light may produce a warm effect by using ivory on the walls and sheer, dull yellow curtains on the windows. Then, a rug with a tan background and a good bit of blue in the figure will satisfy the desire for blue.

By peeling onions under cold running water, they will not affect the eyes.

SELECT THE SOAP MADE FOR THE JOB

Auburn, Ala.—To most of us soap is divided into two kinds—laundry soap and toilet soap. Today, however, homemakers need to know more than this about the laundry soap they use.

Manufacturers are making different kinds for different needs. And as a guide in buying soap, it is suggested that the label on the package be studied carefully. See if the soap is recommended for fine washing or general laundering.

The mild soap used on fine fabrics may not get work clothes as clean as 'general purpose' laundray soap. On the other hand, the product that keeps shirts and sheets white may fade colored clothes and shrink or harden wools and silks. Soap that washes well in soft water may do a poor job in hard water. A detergent that leaves wool socks or sweaters soft and clean may be a disappointment when you use it on cottons.

Turkey Marketing Undergoes Change

Turkey growers have done a remarkable job in developing highly successful marketing practices during the past few years.

Growers have started marketing early in the season, long before Thanksgiving, and extending sales beyond Christmas and the New Year.

By this means they stretch out the marketing season, increase consumption of turkey meat, step up total sales, and relieve downward pressure on turkey prices during the peak marketing season around Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Disabled Veterans Should Know Their Status

If you are a disabled veteran, you may be eligible for benefits under present law that you are not aware of, the Disabled American Veterans pointed out today.

Raymond P. Mims, Commander of the Chilton County Chapter, said one of the surest ways of keeping informed is through affiliation with the Disabled American Veterans, an organization whose sole purpose is the welfare of the Disabled Veteran, his widow and dependent.

The DAV Commander said all indications point toward the DAV breaking its national membership record for the 12th consecutive year.

"The DAV is the only major veterans' organization with this outstanding record and there's good reason for this," he said. "Disabled veterans need an organization to protect their future welfare and even more important the welfare of their families."

Commander Mims said there are many former servicemen who may be eligible for the DAV, and at the same time eligible for special government benefits. Those who are in doubt about their status should contact the local DAV service office, Bob Fullen, phone 564W3 or Route 3, Clanton.

Generally speaking, all veterans who have been wounded, gassed, injured or disabled while serving in the armed forces at any time between December 7, 1941, and the conclusion of the Korean campaign.

Pays To Do Good Milking Job

Workers at the Bureau of Dairy Industry foud it pays to do a good job at milking time. Cows that were milked incompletely gave an average of 306 pounds less milk per cow during a recent test period, reports John Parrish, API Extension dairyman.

"When you blow your horn to pass, the trucks blink their lights if all is clear ahead. When they must stop, they pull far off the road. If they can't, you may be sure their flares are burning as a warning. When you stop for coffee and ask the boys how the roads are, they'll tell you without fake or bravado.

"They're no cowboys, no hot-rodders, but steady, careful men who want to finish their run in safety. Here's to those truckers . . . a salute and sympathy:

"Sympathy because they must share the roads with far too many drivers of passenger cars that cut in and out, blind you with their headlights, have no tail lights . . .

"A flash of my lights to you, men. I'll see you at the next coffee stop!"

Such saluts makes me so proud that I hereby make this New Year's resolution: during 1953 I, Mac Brown, the truck driver, will be the safest and most courteous driver on Alabama's highways. A flash of my lights to you, Mr. Grim — and to all men of good will.

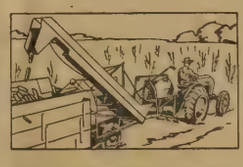
Control implements like never before! Touch the hydraulic control lever and you get split-second response. Lift, lower or adjust implements whenever tractor engine is running. Turn the Hy-Trol knob when you want even faster hydraulic action.



Step up performance of power take-off driven machines . . . with new LIVE POWER TAKE-OFF*. Stop and start tractor while PTO operation stays under full power. Less slowdown, less clogging, less gear shifting. Increases safety, too.

No that isn't a Saint Bernard going down the street looking for a lost mountain climber, that's Helen Parrish. And that barrel she has around her neck isn't a barrel, it's an iron lung. Helen has vowed to wear that iron lung until the good people of this community come across with a hundred dollars for the March of Dimes. Now whenever you see Helen on the street, or anywhere else for that matter, give her a quarter or a half dollar. She will take a dollar if you twist her arm. As we have said before many times, you have to take your hat off to Helen Parrish—she gets things done. The announcers at WKLF are having a race as to who can raise the most money. Our money is on Helen, that's for sure.

A nice write-up and a large front-page display appeared in the Etowah Enterprise, Etowah, Tenn., in the January 1, 1953, issue which contained the picture of Clark Polk, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Polk of Clanton. Clark is Engineer for the Etowah Heating Company. . . but let us print just what the Enterprise said in their story:

"Engineer for Etowah Heating Company is C. C. Polk, a native of Alabama, who now makes his home with his family in Etowah. For several years Mr. Polk was with John J. Harte Engineering Co. of Atlanta. Two years ago he came to Athens as engineer and architectural superintendent for Athens Housing Authority. After that job was finished he went with Hamby Construction Co. in a similar capacity, then joined Etowah Heating Co. The Polks have two sons. The family is active at Wesley Memorial Methodist Church."

Two bright, new faces are decorating the Lawrence Store here of late. One is Mrs. Bernice Mims, formerly Jane Baker, and the other is Mrs. Richard Lawrence, formerly Dorothy Tucker. Now we know that John Ponder Lawrence runs a paint and decorating store, but the sales girls he has employed makes his bright new paints look very dull.

Courtroom Ceiling Falls In Courthouse Tuesday

Talk Of New Building Discussed By Officials

The ceiling, or a large portion of it, fell in the courtroom of the courthouse last Tuesday night. Luckily no one was in the building at the time and no one was hurt when hundreds of pounds of plaster and steel mesh fell in the front of the courtroom over the Judge's bench and the Clerk's desk. A steel table recently purchased by the Board of Revenue and Control received such a heavy load of the "ceiling" that a leg was badly bent.

A piano was damaged to a great extent that had been used by a "singing meeting" recently.

The courthouse has been in bad repair for many years and it came as no surprise when the ceiling fell. Wiring in the building has been condemned and a portion of the courtroom floor is just about to fall through.

The courthouse is not the only county building that is going to need looking into by the newly elected officers and the already elected officers within the near future. The County Jail is in just about as bad repair as is the courthouse. At the jail the walls are crumbling and the sanitary facilities are absolutely worn out. They are so old that new parts cannot even be bought to repair them. The heating equipment needs replacing and the cell blocks need new locks.

It looks like the people of Chilton County will be forced to get behind the elected officers and see that a new courthouse is constructed. Putting money into the old shell that now stands at Second Avenue and Sixth Street would be like pouring sand into a rat hole.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

In my travels around the Sixth District during the past eight months, I found that people today seem to be more interested in their government than at any other time in my memory.

For this reason I felt the people would like to have a weekly report from their Congressman about his activities as their representative and about all significant events in the nation's Capital. I discussed the idea for a weekly column with newspaper editors in the Sixth District, and I am grateful they have agreed to cooperate with me in this means of reporting to you.

My official duties as your representative actually began last Friday when I attended a Democratic caucus, which was a meeting of Democratic congressmen to elect their officers for the 3rd Congress. We chose Rep. Sam Rayburn of Texas, former Speaker of the House, as our floor leader. Sen. Lyndon Johnson, also from Texas, was selected to hold this position in the Senate.

Later, the senior member of each state delegation introduced the new representatives in Congress. The only new member from Alabama, I was presented to the group by Rep. Frank Boykin, dean of the Alabama delegation.

Following our caucus the Republicans held a similar meeting to elect Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana as their floor leader in the House and Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio for the same job in the Senate.

Answers First Roll Call—

At noon of the next day I answered my first roll call when the House opened its initial session of the year. During the meeting, Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., (R-Mass.) won chairmanship of the House by a slim majority over the Democratic nominee, Rep. Sam Rayburn. You will probably remember that Rep. Martin served as Speaker of the House in 1947 and 1948 when, under a Democratic president, the Republicans held a majority of the seats in Congress.

After Rep. Martin took over as the new Speaker, I was sworn in as a member of Congress. This was a particular thrill for me since three people from the District were present to see the ceremony. Besides my wife, they were John H. Anders and Charles W. Gilbert, both of Tuscaloosa. En route to New York, Mr. Anders and Mr. Gilbert had stopped in Washington to visit my office.

With many important issues facing the new Congress, it is expected that no time will be lost in getting down to legislative business. Major issues appear to be the Korean War, our foreign policy, taxes, wage and price controls, and immigration and labor legislation. Action taken on these and other critical problems will be reported in this column.

Miss Allen Joins Staff—

The latest member to join my office staff is Miss Mary Pearson Allen of Ward, Alabama, and Tuscaloosa. Miss Allen is a graduate of the University of Alabama and was formerly employed in the Department of Physical Education there. My other assistants are Miss Dorothy Perkins, Mrs. Barbara Howard, and Thomas Gilbert, whose appointments were reported in an earlier release.

MINISTERS UNITE TO FIGHT POLIO

Rev. Fred Lowery

Rev. Marvin Vickers

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis announces that the ministers of Chilton County will play a large part in the 1953 March of Dimes. Rev. Fred L. Lowery, pastor of the Liberty Hill Baptist Church, has been named to head the drive in Chilton County. As his co-worker in the City of Clanton, he has chosen Rev. Martin Vickers, pastor of the First Methodist Church. The two men have worked closely on details for the '53 March and they promise the largest contribution that Chilton County has ever made.

To assist in the Drive Rev. Lowery announces that ministers of many communities will serve as local fund chairmen. In Coopers Rev. Hyman Atcheson will be chairman; Rev. A. L. Dennis will head the drive at Floyd; Rev. Billy Carter will be in charge at New Salem; Rev. G. G. Williams at Bethsalem; and Rev. J. L. Adams at Refuge.

Other local fund chairmen are S. L. Grffiin, Jemison; Roy Kendrick, Thorsby; Mrs. Winston Calloway, Verbena; Melvin Mims, Concord; J. R. Johnson, Mt. Pleasant; Mrs. Joe Davis, Pleasant Grove No. 2; Cecil Powell, Liberty Hill; Revis Patterson, Poplar Springs; Oscar Davers, Shiloh; J. C. White, Isabella and Mulberry. The County Chairman of the Mother's March will be Mrs. Russell Williams; and Howard Boockholdt will be coordinator for the schools.

The 1953 March of Dimes is destined to be the largest in the history of the National Foundation for Infantile aralysis. Over 55,000 Americans were stricken last year and many cases resulted in death. All residents of Chilton County are urged to cooperate to the fullest extent in making our County go over the top. Rev. Lowery, Chilton County Chairman, says. . .'Regardless of color or creed, let us work together for this common enemy. It can strike your child, as well as mine. This disease can be conquered only by a great effort on the part of every man, woman and child in America. Let's make the country proud of Chilton County's contributions-"

THE FIRST ASSEMBLY OF GOD

Services at the First Assembly Sunday was fine, the Lord blessed in a marvelous way. We are looking forward for greater blessings from God. Our Sunday School is growing. We were privileged to have our District Superintendent, Rev. T. H. Spence, with us Sunday night as guest speaker. He brought a very practical message.

Our C.A. Rally for this section will be held at the First Assembly Tuesday night, January 16th. All the neighboring churches with C.A. Classes, are urged to come and each class have their programs arranged.

We are expecting our C.A. President, Rev. Ray Schultz, to be the guest speaker that night. Following this on the morning of the 18th we will, the Lord willing, begin a revival meeting at the First Assembly. Rev. Woodrow Oxner, of Mobile, Ala., will be the Evangelist. There will be further announcement about it in this newspaper.

Our C. A. (Young People's) Service is at 6:30 p.m. on Sundays; Evangelistic services Sunday at 7:15. W.M.C.S. Tuesday at 2:30 p.m.; mid-week service Wednesday night at 7:00 p.m.

The public is cordially invited to attend these services.—J. H. Aplin, Pastor.

QUESTIONS ON WORK EXPERIENCE

Questions on work experience during 1952 will be asked of a number of local residents in the January Current Population Survey, according to District Supervisor Mary L. Griffin of the U. S. Census Bureau.

The principal work experience question will ask the number of weeks worked last year. Supplemental questions will be asked to determine whether this was full-time or part-time work and the type of work done. The survey will provide information on the Nation's available labor supply.

The special questions on work experience are in addition to the regular inquiries on employment and unemployment which are asked each month in the Current Population Survey. The survey will be conducted during the week of January 12.

WHAT'S THE MATTER?

What is it in people that make them repeat untruths about their friends and neighbors without knowing the facts in the case or what they are repeating is true or untrue?

The latest rumor regarding our Sheriff and broadcast by small souls who had nothing better to do than to repeat and enlarge on what they had dreamed or heard, had to do with his

(1) Running away and leaving no trace.
(2) Being arrested.
(3) Picked up by the FBI.

And goodness only knows what else.

Fact is that the Sheriff has been working night and day, most of the time seven days a week, for the past two years without a vacation. He and a friend from Thorsby went to south Alabama and spent a week fishing.

That is all that happened. There was no juicy scandal mixed in the proceedings — it was all on the up and up. That is not the only case of its kind in this community recently.

Now, you small people who have recently enjoyed destroying peoples character around Clanton with never a thought of the consequence, please stop and think what you could do by a thoughtless word, an untruth, or a smear against the character of a man and his family. You know, it isn't just the man you are hurting. You are doing an injustice to his family too.

WE NEED A NEW COURTHOUSE

(Editor's Note: The editorial below appeared in the Chilton County News Thursday, November 8, 1951. It is as true today as it was then. In the election held on December 11, 1951, only 1502 citizens of the county voted on the Courthouse Bonds. Out of this number 992 voted against building a new courthouse and 501 voted for the measure:)

"In the Bond Election coming up on December 11, it is our opinion that the citizens of Chilton County should vote "yes." Here are the reasons why:

Chilton County now has at least a dozen departments and offices, housed in different buildings about town. We are paying thousands and thousands of dollars annually for rent on these offices.

All county offices should be under one roof so that when you go to do business at the county courthouse you could attend to it without the necessity of running all over town searching out the various offices.

Let us face it. Our old courthouse is obselete. The roof leaks and the plaster in the courtroom is falling down. If we do not build a new courthouse we will be compelled to spend a large amount of money in repairing the present building, and what will we have then—still have an old worn out courthouse.

The courtroom is entirely inadequate. Probably, when new, it served well, but today, for any gathering of county-wide interest, there isn't even enough standing room for our citizens. The specifications on the new building calls for a courtroom twice the size of the present courtroom. And too, the courthouse belongs to all of us and should be a building to which we could point with pride.

Vote 'yes' on the courthouse bond issue in the coming election. Chilton County NEEDS a new courthouse.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

Somehow during the rush of preparing for the holidays, the pleasure of enjoying them and the business of getting the household running normally again afterwards, I didn't get around to making any New Year's resolutions.

I hadn't even thought about this omission until the morning of January 1 when the six-year-old asked, "Mother, what resolutions did you make this Happy New Year?"

"I've resolved not to change clothes but two times a day. Just two times a day," she said firmly.

Now this coming from a six-year-old right in the midst of the dressing-up stage meant as much sacrifice and would demand as much will power as if Churchill swore off cigars or Truman stopped talking. From the time she gets up in the morning until bedtime, she keeps busy changing from dresses to blue jeans to cowgirl outfits to nurse's uniforms to evening clothes and back again, depending on what role she is playing at the time.

Of course the new resolution probably won't last long, but we'll enjoy it while it does.

Our next door neighbor keeps finding ways to make use of things most people throw away.

Take those plastic bags many fresh vegetables are packed in, for instance. Our next door neighbor always saves them. During the late summer she used them to store the flower seeds she collected from the plants in her garden. And now she uses them to store her knitting yarn, crochet thread and embroidery thread in. She says the bags keep her thread clean and untangled and make it easy for her to see at a glance how much of each kind of thread she has.

Three things I'd hate to have to bring up a baby without: running water, Kleenex and a rocking chair.

Young couples in our neighborhood do a lot of informal entertaining, and their guests often eat on card tables put up in the living room or maybe even in the kitchen.

Our neighbor down the street has discovered a simple trick for holding two tables firmly together. She puts two big rubber bands around the legs of the tables where they come together, and the bands keep the tables from being bumped apart accidentally.

Have you tried slicing tomatoes with a bread knife? Even the softest tomatoes slice easily when given the bread knife treatment.

You might use the bread knife to slice cranberry orange bread like the neighbor around the corner makes. Here's her recipe:

Sift together twice 2 cups flour, 2|3 teaspoon salt, 1 1|2 teaspoons baking powder, 1|2 teaspoon soda and 1 cup sugar. Mix 1|4 cup orange juice, 2 tablespoons salad oil, 1|2 cup water and 1 beaten egg and add to dry ingredients, stirring only enough to mix. Fold in 1 cup chopped pecans and 1 cup coarsely ground cranberries. Pour into greased loaf pan and bake about an hour at 325 degrees.

FOOT CARE

Improperly fitting shoes are the most common cause of painful feet; yet many people, women in particular, pay more attention to style than to comfort in the selection of shoes. They should be fitted to give the wearer stability and balance in walking.

Since arches do not usually fall or break of themselves, it is reasonable to assume that external irritation is responsible; and usually the shoes and stockings are the culprits. The condition "fallen arches" seems to occur most often in women and results from some injury to one of the main bones of the foot.

Callouses and corns are two common ailments. Both of these conditions can be avoided if adequate attention is paid to the care of the feet. Bunions are a protrusion of the bone, usually at the base of the large toe; and women are the chief victims of this condition. Their development is again encouraged by the wearing of high heels.

Ingrown toenails are another source of painful feet. These can be avoided if the nail is cut at right angles to its growth. The corners should be square rather than rounded.

Feet should be bathed frequently and carefully with warm soapy water. Special attention should be paid to the webbing between the toes to prevent the growth of bacteria and fungi.

Posture plays an important part in the care of the feet. Standing with the feet pointing outward, instead of forward, causes undue strain on the ligaments connecting the foot bones, especially on the inner side of the long arches. The resulting slight ache often grows to severe pain.

A little common sense in the selection of foot gear and personal habits of good hygiene in the care of the feet will do much to keep you free of painful feet.

Kuwait Ponders What to Do With $150,000,000 a Year

His Highness Abdullah as Salim as Subah, Sheik of Kuwait, faces one of the world's most pleasant problems—what to do with an income of $150,000,000 a year.

No income taxes cut into this bonanza. There are no restrictions on what he might buy—polo ponies or palaces, gold-plated limousines or block-long yachts.

But instead, Abdullah Salim is wisely turning his sudden wealth into a far better way of life for 170,000 people in an ancient and neglected part of the world. A remarkable transformation is taking place in the tiny sunbaked Sheikdom of Kuwait at the head of the Persian Gulf, the National Geographic Magazine reports in an article by Near East traveler Paul Edward Case.

Kuwait rests on a virtual ocean of oil. Beneath its sands are an estimated 16 billion barrels of black gold—a proved petroleum reserve roughly half that of the United States.

Tapping this pool at a current rate of 800,000 barrels a day, the Kuwait Oil Company, pays the Sheikdom an even 50 per cent of all profits.

By dynastic law the Sheik receives this money as personal income. He alone decides what to do with it all. In the last few years, his enlightened decisions have given a once-backward country new hospitals, schools, a modern water supply, and an enviable position as potential banker of the Near East.

Boom has come in no uncertain terms to Kuwait's mud-walled capital, also named Kuwait. Shiny cars, trucks and giant earth-moving machinery rumble through busy bazaars among camels and goats. Arabs in flowing robes, nomadic Bedouins and veiled Kuwaiti women mingle with roustabouts from Texas and Oklahoma and businessmen from London. Kuwait works today at the tempo of Times Square transplanted to the desert.

There are many signs left of the old way of life. While tankers gulp oil from a 4,000-foot pier extending into the Gulf from the newborn port-city, Mena al Ahmadi, Kuwait shipwrights still shape teak logs with hand adzes into improvised dhows for pearling, fishing and trading.

Behind the teak gates of Kuwait town, new cement-block buildings are replacing mud houses beside widened, asphalt streets. A new 1,200,000-gallon-a-day distillation plant will suck water from the Gulf, providing the city as well with its first major source of electric power.

Letters To The Editor

January 1, 1953.

Mr. Ben Tucker,
Clanton, Ala.

Friend Ben:

I have just finished reading my letter in the News and noticed the number of votes.

I am satisfied it is my error.

It should have stated, our present Governor received only about 2000 more than 1-3 the votes cast in the first primary of 1950 and the withdrawal of the 2nd high man prevented the other 2-3 from making their choice of a candidate.

Will you please make correction in your next week's paper?

Thanks,

DAN J. BAKER.

The theme of the party was the Roaring 20's. Guests came dressed in hilarious costumes. Billie Powell as a 1920 African explorer, and Elinor Warr in an old twenty's gym suit, won the two prizes.

The highlight of the evening was a silent movie put on by the host and hostesses, and the big moment of course was when the New Year came in.

When reaching into a hot oven to remove or adjust pans, there is little danger of burning your hand if you use a mitten made by sewing a couple of ordinary hot pads together along three sides.

You can save time in seasoning food and do it more satisfactorily by preparing a mixture of salt, six parts ,and pepper, one part, which can be kept on hand in a shaker.

First Methodist Church Notes

The program was under the direction of Mrs. Joe Mullins and was in commemoration of Epiphany.

Mrs. Omar Reynolds gave a beautiful talk stressing the fact that beyond whatever else had been given that personal work had meant so much to the W.S.C.S. during the year 1952, and that as a result twenty new members had been added. At the conclusion of her talk the following new members were introduced: Mrs. George Bradley, Mrs. Lulu Best, Mrs. T. Edward Blackmon, Jr., Mrs. Grady Carter, Mrs. T. R. Carter, Mrs. W. S. Crossland, Mrs. Clyde DeLoach, Mrs. E. G. Chism, Mrs. G. H. Fulmer, Mrs. B. G. Godwin, Mrs. R. C. Hanlin, Mrs. James L. Jernigan, Mrs. Frank Ryland; Mrs. J. B. Propst, Mrs. Marvin Vickers, Mrs. Woody Speaks, Mrs. E. W. Walker, Mrs. J. R. Walker, Mrs. Marjorie White Wallis, and Mrs. William White.

Mrs. Joe Mullins gave a very inspiring resume of the work the W.S.C.S. had done in the past. Taking inventory she gave several instances of what our gifts and inspiration had meant to suffering and starving people in other countries.

Mrs. Cecil Carter read several interesting letters from the wife of a Japanese doctor, who was a recipient of W.S.C.S. love gifts. Deep gratitude was expressed and a wish was made for letters from Clanton. Mrs. Carter wrote and received several letters. As an expression of their gratitude Mrs. Carter received a China figurine and an ancient carved tile figure that was said to be about 1500 years old.

Mrs. Milton Diefenderfer reported four packages that have been sent to Korea within the last two months.

After the program was over Mrs. Lloyd Popwell, President, conducted a short business meeting. The culmination of a dream was realized when it was voted to buy a Steinway Grand Piano as soon as possible. This is something that will not only give pleasure to the Methodist Church, but the entire community as well. Delicious coffee and cake were served to complete a delightful occasion.

Coat Hangers

By W. Scott Boyd

I hate coat hangers!

For years I have gone home every evening from work firm in the belief that today I will conquer them. I take off my coat, go to the bedroom closet and reach for a hanger. Either there are too many or there are none.

If there are too many they get tangled and I can't get one down. The result is a hopeless mess with the whole bunch falling to the floor in the dark recesses of the closet. Down on hands and knees I try to find one. They become tangled with luggage and the odds and end that the boy has hidden in the closet.

Out comes luggage, toys, and odd shoes and coat hangers. I climb to my feet, clutching a hanger. The battle is won, I think.

I start to hang up my coat. First I must make room for it. I give the other clothing in the closet a vicious shove along the pole.

"Don't do that," my wife screams. "You'll wrinkle everything in the closet!"

Gently I straighten out the clothing. I squeeze my coat into the closet and start to retreat.

"And what about that mess," my wife asks? She points to the luggage, toys and coat hangers.

In another half hour I am finally ready to settle down with the newspaper. Someday I'm going to win that battle!

Remember to come to Training Union Sunday night. All who wasn't there missed a good lesson and a good message also. We are looking for you next Sunday night. We also want to see each one at prayer service each Wednesday night.

On January 9th we will have a Mission Study Class at the church for all ages. This will be taught by some of the Associational workers. We urge that everyone who possibly can to be sure to come. We'll start at 6:30 and refreshments will be served at the close of the service.

Mrs. N. E. Cook and Mrs. Sylvin Easterling and boys visited Mrs. Cook's father, Mr. Stephen Pate and her brother, Mr. Clyde Pate, and family last week near Sylacauga.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stewart and Tommy spent last week with relatives in Winter Green, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Sylvin Easterling, Edward and Howell, visited relatives in Fairfield during the Christmas holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Cook and baby visited Rev. and Mrs. N. E. Cook last week. Other visitors of the Cook family were Mr. Willie Cook and children of Georgia.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Hill and children visited relatives in Chambers County last Friday and Saturday.

We are sorry to know Mrs. Jesse Thornton has moved away to Phenix City. We sure will miss her.

We are so sorry to hear of the death of Mrs. Pearl Downs. May God bless and comfort each of the family and may we all be prepared to meet in a better world.

* * *

Sunday School was very well attended, but we had hoped for many more of our community to start the New Year right by attending Sunday School. We beg that everyone who possibly can be present next Sunday at 10 o'clock and worship service to follow.

Training Union was also well attended, but we missed some that were absent on account of sickness. Be sure to come next Sunday night.

We are looking for each of you at prayer service Wednesday night.

Our W.M.U. met with Mrs. Anna Wells last Wednesday afternoon. The weather was bad and we didn't have many present, but we had a good program and Mrs. Wells expressed her appreciation of us meeting with her.

Please everyone come to the church Friday night. The Associational Workers will be here teaching the mission books. Classes for all ages. Time is 6:30 o'clock.

We were happy to have four new ones enroll in our Sunday School. Everyone is welcome at all our services.

Mr. Lawton McDowell and daughter, Nell, of Bessemer, recently visited his mother, Mrs. Anna Wells.

Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Cook of Texas visited Rev. and Mrs. N. E. Cook and other relatives in Chilton County last Monday.

We were happy to have Herbert Thomas who is home from Korea at church Sunday.

WINTER PESTS ON DAIRY CATTLE

Lice, grubs, and stomach worms are parasites that cause the most damage to dairy cattle during winter months.

We've already received three 1953 calendars. Don't mind telling you I sure feel relieved, after all those dire predictions both sides were making if the other side won, I was getting worried about whether there'd be a next year.

Doctors Say Fear and Anger May Cause More Winter Colds

FEAR, ANGER or anxiety may cause more winter colds than that old stand-by, "I sat in a draught," according to a new study by a medical research team.

The researchers found that "emotional sweating" . . . a phenomenon touched off by worry or sudden fear . . . first attacks the feet, causing cold and dampness, which leaves you prey to the next cold germ that comes along.

Cold, wet feet, whether caused by "emotional sweating" or merely wearing rubbers and overshoes for extended periods, are one of the most common causes of colds, medical men say. They recommend that you remove overshoes as soon as you step indoors, or when you take a journey in a heated automobile, bus or train.

Over-protection of the feet, a common fault in winter, can bring on considerable trouble, foot specialists warn. By all means keep your feet dry, but don't suffocate them with extra-heavy shoes or shoes made of impermeable materials.

Your feet will weather the winter months better if you give them a nightly soak in warm water, and a short exercising session that will loosen up the numerous tiny muscles and ligaments and whip up blood circulation. Before you go to bed, walk on tiptoe two or three times around the room, then rub the soles vigorously with a dry towel.

PRETTIEST TEACHER . . . Mrs. Nell Owen of Dallas, Texas, teacher of voice and dramatics, was named from 6,500 entrants as America's prettiest school teacher in the national "Our Miss Brooks" contest.

HIGHLAND

We are happy for the goodly number we had out for Sunday School and Training Union. We were glad to have several visitors for both services and would like to invite them back soon.

We welcome back to our community Mr. and Mr. John Nelson and family, also Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hayes and boys. We're looking forward to their being a great help in our church and community.

The church extends its heart felt sympathy to the Franklin family who received a message recently that their son and husband, John Franklin, Jr., has been reported missing in action in Korea. Let's pray for them in their sorrow and pray that if the Lord can see fit he might be safe and can return home to his loved ones.

Let's continue to pray for our sick ones especially Mr. Lester Cooedy who is returning to the Jackson Hospital in Montgomery.

The ladies are reminded that the W.M.U. will hold its regular monthly meeting at the church Wednesday afternoon, January 14th, at 1:30 o'clock.

Next Sunday is our regular preaching day. Our pastor, Bro. Deason, will be with us. Please come to Sunday School at 10:00 o'clock and Training Union at 6 o'clock. Preaching will follow both services. Please come and worship with us.—Reporter.

BOWLES

There is quite a bit of sickness in this section. We wish for everyone a speedy recovery.

Miss Myra Fay Chandler spent several days last week with Mr. and Mrs. Harley Mims and Dwight of Clanton.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. DeFreeze of Brighton spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Williams. Mr. Williams returned home with them to have his check up at the V.C.I. Hospital.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Taylor (Lazette Brackin) who are the proud parents of a 6½-Lb. baby girl, whom they have named Nancy Arlene.

Mr. and Mrs. Harley Mims and son, Dwight, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Chandler and family.

We are glad to report we had a good attendance at Sunday School and Training Union last Sunday and Sunday night. We had some visitors and we welcome them back. We would like to say to all the people in and around Chestnut Creek Church, you have a special invitation to attend church next Sunday and let's make January a record month.

We still have some sick people in our community, so let's be much in prayer for them.

The boys R.A. is still growing. They met last Sunday afternoon, and had four new members. Their leader is Mr. Archie McTaylor and we think he is doing a fine job.

There will be a singing at Chestnut Creek Church Friday night. We invite all singers to come and take part. The singing will start at 7 o'clock.

Brussels Sprouts—Cousin of Cabbage

Brussels sprouts, the cabbages that never grow up, reach market each fall at just about the time golf ball sales strike their winter slump.

Those who dislike the little green nuggets insist there is some connection in this timing. Just as vehemently, sprout-lovers rise to their defense. Of all the world's vegetables, the brussels sprout possesses an almost unique ability to make fast friends or firm foes.

One reason may be that as vegetables go, brussels sprouts are relative newcomers. They have been known for only about 400 years. Many people have yet to get used to them.

There are records which indicate some such vegetable was sold in Belgium as early as 1213, but the first scientific description of the brussels sprout did not appear until 1587. As late as the 17th century, famous botanists referred to the plant as something they had heard about but never seen.

A descendant of wild cabbages brought from warm Mediterranean lands, the sprout ranks as one of the few vegetables to originate in northern Europe. The only others are kohlrabi—German for "cabbage turnip"—and possibly rutabaga.

Liking cool and moist weather for best growth, the sprout has thrived in the British Isles. Englishmen have eaten them with seeming enjoyment and in great quantity since before 1850. Introduced into the United States about 1800, the tightly formed midget cabbages failed to find equal popularity here.

Marketing of farm products in 1952 were running four to five per cent higher than in 1951.

Start Pullets Early; Make More Profit

Auburn, Ala.—Alabama poultrymen and research workers have found that pullets started in December, January and February are more profitable than late hatched pullets.

Pullets started during this time grow off better, have less diseases, lay more eggs, lay for a longer period, and lay more eggs when egg prices are high.

For example, hens on test at the API Experiment Station from 1946 through 1950 made the following records: Those started from Jan. 1 through Feb. 10 laid 209 eggs. Those started from March 1 thru April 14 laid 183 eggs.

Therefore, now is the time to get pullets started.

By Gosh, it must have been in Baldwin County! Saw a note in a farm magazine the other day saying that picking corn took longer than usual this season on account of they had to chop the ears in two so the elevator could handle them.

THIS WEEK IN Washington

IT IS ONLY a matter of days until Dwight Eisenhower becomes President Eisenhower and assumes one of the greatest responsibilities of the world, possibly the most important single position in the world. Washington is always in a dizzy whirl when a new administration assumes power, but even more so this time because it will be the first complete change in 20 years.

And as the time approaches for the "big change," Washington observers are trying to find the answers to a number of questions that time alone will answer. One of them concerns possible discord within his party over foreign policy.

Eisenhower has named his cabinet and top advisers. Most of them are conservative in that they believe in a "balanced budget and, what many call, "orthodox" finance. Many point out that the President-elect himself believes in these ideals.

On the other hand, Eisenhower is committed to a strong, aggressive foreign policy that will cost billions. It can not, under any circumstances, cost much less than that of previous Democratic administrations during the first year or so.

This, brings up the question in the minds of many Washington observers. Will there be a conflict between the two points of view within his administration? Can the two be reconciled without damage to the whole?

Most observers believe Eisenhower, because of his tremendous popularity and forceful nature, will pull the two ends together and weld them into an unbreakable chain. But it certainly will be a difficult job. Time alone holds the answer.

Another of the questions being asked in Washington is how complete is the Eisenhower-Taft accord?

The general feeling now is that the two men will, as a general rule, be able to work in harmony. There are a number of logical reasons for this thinking.

First, it is being pointed out, that Eisenhower's endorsement of Taft for the post of majority leader has almost completely erased previous discord between the two men. Had Eisenhower endorsed someone else there is no doubt there would have been a bitter battle in the senate over the election of a majority leader. Such a battle would have left numerous scars within the administration.

Second, Senator Taft is determined that the Republican administration will be a successful one. And he desires, above all else, to keep the Republican party strong and healthy. That can not be done with discord within the administration.

And third, as majority leader Senator Taft is pledging a new loyalty to Eisenhower. In that post, he becomes the President's representative at the capitol. Such a position calls for trust and understanding between the White House and the senator.

Most observers believe that Eisenhower would never have backed Taft for the post if there was a possibility for an unbreachable conflict.

* * *

No one in Washington is thinking that the two men, both forceful and intelligent, will agree upon every subject. But observers do believe that they will discuss their points of disagreement and compromise for the good of the Republican administration and the country.

As time goes along there will be numerous rumors concerning discord. It is unlikely, however, they will ever reach the stage of the famous Barkely-Roosevelt split of the New Deal era.

Shedding Concerns New Carpet Owners

Auburn, Ala.—Owners of new carpets often notice that the surface seems to be shedding when walked on or cleaned with vacuum or carpet sweeper.

They frequently ask if this means they have a poor carpet or if the cleaner is wearing out their new rug.

In the making of pile carpets, such as Axminister, Wilton, or Velvet, yarn is looped over wires, then the wires are withdrawn, leaving an uneven surface. The loops are sheared off to give a smooth, velvety surface. Some of the shearings are usually left in the rug and appear as fluff when the rug is used or cleaned for the first several times

Government Publication To Help Taxpayers Calculating

Federal income taxpayers of Chilton County need not worry again this year about what is deductible from their 1952 income taxes, or just who should be exempt. Uncle Sam has figured it out for them again in his 1952 edition of the booklet, "Your Federal Income Tax" which will soon be available at Department of Commerce field offices in the Southeast.

The publication "Your Federal Income Tax" is one of the nation's "best sellers" and each year thousands of orders for it are sent to Commerce Department field offices according to Merrill C. Lofton, southeastern regional director of that agency in Atlanta.

The 1952 edition of the booklet, which will again be available for 25 cents despite rising costs of other things, will incorporate any changes made in the internal revenue act.

Along with the booklet "Your Federal Income Tax," the Commerce Department is offering other publications and material designed to assist business men and other interested persons in making their 1952 income tax returns to Uncle Sam. The others include "Bulletin F" on the subject of depreciation and obsolescence, which is priced at 30 cents, the pamphlets "Your Rights of Review When the Government Questions Your Income Tax" and "The Small Businessman and His Declaration of Estimated Tax," which sell for 10 cents each, and the leaflet "Basic Tax Information for Small Business Enterprises" for which there is no charge.

"So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom."—Psalm 90:12.

A praiseworthy prayer is that, and one that should disturb the complacency of those who have permitted themselves to become mere drifters along the pathway of the years. It should be an arresting summons to all thinking people to wholesome resolution in these closing days of the month of December.

A month, a year, a life-span; such words reveal the fact that every human being possesses an asset beyond computation; an asset that is the equalizer of opportunity regardless of financial, social or physical condition. But withal it is a tyrant that demands recognition and a proper use of the lease that it grants to all the possessors thereof.

George D. Prentice, a distinguished journalist of almost a century ago, wrote a poem that has become a classic, under the title, "The Dying Year," in which this verse appears:

"Remorseless Time! Fierce Spirit of the glass and scythe!
What power can stay him in his silent course, or melt
His iron heart to pity? On, still on
He presses, and forever."

The use that one makes of his alloted time is the invariable index of the value of his life. Therefore in order for one to measure up to a worthy standard as a steward of the priceless asset of time, two qualities of mind and heart are needful, namely, realization and application. By the former we are to keep ourselves awake to the call of our Creator that we may adjust our ambitions and purposes to His plan. By the latter we are to cultivate integrity and loyalty to the divine directive whereby we may be saved from frivolous and purposeless living.

Mary Moore was a gifted and diligent English actress, but like many other diligent women, she was married to a ne'er-do-well of a husband. He was infatuated with the idea that he was a playright, and that some day his productions would compel William Shakespeare to take second place. He would turn night into day, waiting through eerie hours for some inspirational ecstasy to capture him. But somehow the magic spell never came, and he frittered his life away waiting for it. The only thing he ever wrote that outlived him was his own epitaph, and in these words:

"I have lived by the light of the moon,
I have slept by the light of the sun;
I have lived a lift of going-to-do,
And have died with nothing done."

"So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom."

Warm New Year Greetings to all readers of this paper!

One Of The Keys To Successful Dairying

By studying the needs of each animal throughout the year, feed can be adjusted to each animal's production and size, stage of lactation, and the quality of pasture or hay.

Alabama dairy herd improvement association records show that high producing cows eat more feed, but at the same time they make their owners a greater profit.

APPLYING LIME

A good rule of thumb is to use one ton of pure ground limestone per acre on sandy soils and two to three tons per acre on clay soils. And the lime should be spread evenly.

POULTRY

The nation's farm flock totaled 374,332,000 layers in November.

For Longer Service Build Fence Right

Auburn, Ala.—When properly built, a good fence will give a farmer very little trouble for many years. However, when carelessly built, a fence can cause constant waste of time, labor, and money.

Improperly set posts, badly prepared ground, ill-fitting gates, loosely fastened wire, and incorrect stretching take their toll in reducing the usefulness of a fence.

Poor fence building is only a little easier than doing the job properly. Doing it wrong saves very little material and labor, and these small savings will be offset many times by the cost of repairs that will have to be made later on.

MILK PRODUCTION

For the first 11 months in 1952 milk production on the nation's farms totaled 106.7 billion pounds.

Thorsby Baptist Church—

L. E. Daniel, pastor.
Sunday School 9:45 a.m.
Morning Worship 11:00 a.m.
Training Union 6:00 p.m.
Evening Worship 7:00 p.m.
Prayer Meeting (Wed.) 7:00 p.m.
Choir Practice (Wed.) 8:00 p.m.

The week of Bible Study scheduled for January 5-9 will be held the week of January 12-16. This change was necessary because of the mid-term exams in our schools that would keep many of our young people from attending. We will be studying the Book of Philippians. All age groups from the adults down through the Juniors are urged to attend. The Intermediates and Juniors will get Training Union credit for the course, and the Young People and Adults can take either Training Union or Sunday School credit. You are welcome to attend this study even though you may not be a member of the Thorsby Baptist Church.

1952 is history. We cannot change the record we have made. May we glance backward for two reasons; first, to see our mistakes and profit by them, resolving in our hearts not to make the same mistakes in 1953; second, to see the good things that have been accomplished that they may inspire us to even greater things in the future. Our great need, and possibly the greatest need among Christians, is lives fully dedicated to God and His Cause in the world. We need Christians who live in such a way that Christ will be exalted and magnified in the way they live before their fellowman. Another great need as to enter this New Year, is a sense of loyalty to all the services of your church. Will you not resolve now to be loyal to all the services of your church in 1953 unless providentially hindered? Dr. M. Theron Rankin, Executive Secretary of the Baptist Foreign Mission Board has well said, "The greatest heresies among us today are not in words of false teachers, but in the lives of false Christians. If the spirit and quality of our lives do not demonstrate the truth of our words, then the more orthodox our words, the more destructive our heresy becomes."

Lutheran Church News—

The Service 11:00.
Sunday School 10:00.
Visitors welcome.

"Why don't Lutherans follow the calendar year in their services?" This is a question that I am frequently asked by those not familiar with our church year. This Sunday, for example, is the "First Sunday after Epiphany," instead of January 11 as far as our worship services are concerned. I think that a brief word of explanation will clarify this point considerably.

Lutherans observe what we call the "Church Year." This is a type of calendar, which was created during the early days of the Christian church, revolving around the events in the life of Christ. Practically all churches, for example, observe Christmas (His Birth); Good Friday (His Death); and Easter, (His Resurrection). Lutherans just carry that a step further and observe other events in His life such as: His Presentation at the Temple, Luke 2:22-32 (Feb. 2); His Transfiguration, (Jan. 28), Matthew 17:1-9; and His Ascension, Acts 1:1-11, ((May 14, this year) to mention a few. Each Sunday in the year has a definite religious theme to be emphasized.

Since limited space will not permit a detailed discussion of the entire church year at one time, beginning next week I will run a series of short articles on the meaning and significance of the church year. If, in the meantime, you would desire further information, please feel free to write to the Lutheran Church at Thorsby, and your inquiry will be promptly answered. — Rev. William R. Morgan.

Correction: The Women of the Church will meet Jan. 14, instead of Jan. 21, as was indicated in last Sunday's bulletin.

Dr. L.S.G. Miller will be the guest speaker at this month's meeting of the Women of the Church. Dr. Miller is a returned missionary to Japan. At this meeting also, new officers for the coming year will be elected.

Getting Around with Mac Brown

Some magazine writer, trying to prove trucks ought to pay more taxes said it cost a lot more to build roads to carry trucks like mine than it does to carry light cars. He quoted "authorities" to prove his point. left out those who proved otherwise. He didn't mention that the U. S. government's biggest road experts have said his kind of arguments just don't hold water.

He will be answered by plenty of people who do know the truth.

What I want to answer is his charge that the "average motorist has a "pathological" hatred for trucks. That just isn't so. Sure, some get peeved at trucks sometimes. But haven't you been plenty mad with drivers of regular passengar cars lots of times? As a matter of fact probably many, many more times than at trucks.

Most truck drivers are like me. We try to be good citizens of the highways; considerate and helpful to the "average motorist." In all my years on the road, for every one motorist I have found who had a beef against a truck, I've seen a thousand cussing out the driver of—another passenger car!

Bond Sale Made For New State Building

Montgomery, Ala. — Alabama Fi- nance Director D. W. Hodo has announced the sale of $3,025,000 in bonds to finance the new eight- story state office building to the State Teachers Retirement System.

Hodo said the 30-year bonds went to the state agency for a 3.5 per cent net interest rate.

Sale of the bonds marked the close of preliminaries for the new office building. Contract for the construction had been previously awarded to Ray M. Lee Co., At- lanta, for $2,682,812. The construc- tion is expected to start early in January.

Hodo said the sale of the bonds to the Teachers Retirement System should be beneficial to both it and the building corporation. It gave the system a chance to invest some of its funds in securities that yield a higher interest return, and gave the corporation a chance to sell them without making changes in them.

Pasture Irrigation Grows In Importance

For the past three years drouths have made feed bills go up and milk production come down. As a result, the number of irrigation sys- tems installed by dairymen has more than doubled each of the past 3 years.

A good, well-designed portable sprinkler system seems to be prac- tical, especially where an ample supply of water is available. And while the initial cost of irrigation equipment is high, there is very little depreciation for many years.

Better Food Handling Means A Better Diet

Auburn—New handling methods have put a great variety of foods in every city and town, making a healthful diet possible most any- where at any time.

This is in contrast to earlier days when seasons and local supplies made a great difference in what people had to eat.

Along with providing a greater variety of foods, processing methods have improved in the direction of higher nutritive values. Competition among processors has led to mech- anization, streamlined design and automatic controls in food plants so that perishable foods are processed and stablized within, at most, a few hours of harvesting.

No Longer Two Sides to This Question

Ever seen those two-family houses they have in some places—with separate front doors and porches—side by side? My sister owns half of one and lives in it, near Philadelphia.

Nice little frame home. Only Sis painted her half brown and the other family always painted theirs green. Ruined the effect—but for years neither family ever thought of suggesting that they both decide on a common shade.

Now Sis writes that their two-toned home is no longer. "I mentioned we were going to repaint," she says. "And they said let's get a color we all like. So we did. A nice shade of gray for both sides."

From where I sit, so often when there's a difference of opinion it's best to sit right down and work things out (like when our volunteer firemen decided to serve both lemonade and beer at their annual picnic last month). Don't let prejudices "color" your opinion of your neighbor. He'll probably be quite as open-minded as you are.

How Does YOUR Garden Grow?

PATSY YOUNG of Clanton, Rt. 5, is trying to give visual proof that vegetables from her 4-H Club garden are very, very delectable.

Perhaps this picture will remind you of a few jobs that need to be done in your garden. And just in case you are caught up with the winter garden chores, here are a few things that need to be done to get spring vegetables off to a good start:

If possible, move the garden to a new location to get away from so many diseases and insects.

January is a fine time to plow the garden. Turn under all weeds, grass, and other litter on the ground. This is much better than burning it later on.

A good coat of manure on the garden area this month will pay off in more vegetables next spring.

To have early plants for setting, start your tomato, cabbage, and pepper plant boxes now.

New Grass

Coastal Bermuda Yields High

By J. C. LOWERY
A.P.I. Extension Agronomist

COASTAL Bermuda grass is a very promising new pasture and hay plant for the South. With good management it is making very high yields. Alabama farmers who have the grass are very enthusiastic about it, and reports are that a large acreage will be set this spring.

Coastal Bermuda is a hybrid. Therefore, it is necessary to set sprigs to establish a stand. Setting is usually done in late February or early March, after danger of severe freezes has passed. When there is plenty of moisture in the soil, other planting dates have given satisfactory stands. However, spring plantings appear to be most successful.

It is important that sprigs be handled carefully to prevent damage from cold, wind, or sunshine. Exposure for a few hours will result in low survival of plants. A good plan, especially if a large acreage is to be set, is to establish a nursery area. Then sprigs can be taken directly from the nursery and set within a very short time after digging.

Plans for setting Coastal Bermuda should be completed this month. Good soil preparation is essential to success. Early preparation is essential if much litter is on the surface. In most of Alabama, especially the southern part, the soil should be prepared in January. Another important January job is to locate the sprigs you will need and make arrangements to have them on the farm at setting time.

Sprigs usually are set 18 to 24 inches apart in rows three to four feet apart. Some growers make rows six or seven feet apart.

To succeed with this grass, you must prepare soil well, set early or as soon as danger of freezes has passed, fertilize heavily, and control weeds.

Profitable Hours

Well Planned Farms Yield Larger Profits

By D. R. HARBOR
A.P.I. Extension Agronomist

THE new year brings with it some of the same problems that farmers have been familiar with in the past. Keeping farm income from dropping is certainly one of the most important things in their minds.

Agricultural economists say the outlook is for lower prices of farm produce, with farmers paying more for most of the things they have to buy. To offset this difference, farmers must produce their crops and livestock as efficiently as possible.

A good way to get the highest returns from a farm in 1953 is to make a complete farm plan, putting each acre to its best use. This will help get the highest possible yields from all crops and livestock on the farm.

If you are interested in making this plan, first survey your entire place. Study the location of fields, fencing system, water supply, shade, and the soil conditions.

These soil characteristics are of particular importance: topography (is the land upland, or bottom land, rolling, or steep?); texture (is the land clay, loam, or sandy?); drainage (is the drainage good, fair or poor?); fertility (is fertility good, medium, or poor?); depth of surface soil (is surface soil deep or shallow?); color; stoniness; lime requirements; and degree of erosion.

A study of these conditions will help determine what crops should be grown on each field. Plant row crops on the more level fields when other conditions are favorable. Use the steeper land for sod or thick growing crops.

Crop rotation should be kept in mind. Use as many legumes as possible.

The time spent in developing this plan may well be the most profitable hours you will spend this year. For putting crops on the land best suited to them will certainly help increase your income.

Pigs can't drink ice. And this is the time of the year when pigs' drinking water may occasionally freeze. Experiments have shown that there is no particular advantage of serving warm drinking water to pigs in cold weather. But when the watering trough is filled with ice instead of water, gains will be slower and feed costs higher. During freezing weather it will pay to hand-water often enough to keep pigs from getting thirsty.

SHAMEFUL WASTE—Many thousand acres of Alabama's valuable forest land will burn over this spring because of carelessness. It will be almost impossible to estimate the dollars farmers will lose due to forest fires. Forestry experts say that nine out of ten fires are caused by man-made mistakes. Please, let's be extra careful this year and reduce the number of Alabama's burned acres. This scene in Geneva County clearly shows the damage done by an uncontrolled woods fire.

Good Management Produces More Eggs

W. E. WARD never counts his chickens before they are hatched.

But on the other hand, he can come mighty close to counting his eggs before they are laid.

This farmer, who has a neat and modern poultry business out on Route One, can tell you his 600 Leghorns will lay about 475 eggs tomorrow. That won't be far wrong, for his flock has been getting him between 450 and 500 during this period of best egg prices.

Another thing Mr. Ward can tell you is exactly how many eggs each and every hen laid during any given period. That's very simple to do because he keeps each hen in a private cage and marks up her score daily.

Of course, this is rather hard on lazy hens. If a layer gets seven zeros during any two weeks, she is through and soon on the way to somebody's dinner table. Her place is taken by another pullet kept just for this purpose.

Originally in the broiler business, Mr. Ward changed over to layers last January. He sold his broilers and installed 600 individual laying cages in the broiler house.

At the same time he started enough Leghorn pullets to fill the cages and to have replacements for those layers that failed to keep laying at least seven eggs every 14 days. The poultryman soon discovered he had to start one pullet a month for each ten in cages to keep the building full of high producing birds.

Each morning Mr. Ward fills the feeders with enough all-mash ration to last until feeding time comes again. Automatic fountains keep fresh, clean water before the flock at all times. It takes about 20 minutes to do the feeding and a little longer to gather and handle the eggs, Mr. Ward says.

After the eggs are cooled and graded according to size, a local chain store pays top prices for all the poultryman has to sell.

* * *

The laying flock should be culled very closely this month. Removing the non-layers will keep the flock in a high rate of production through spring. This is especially important during the period of low-priced eggs.

SHUCKS! HE MADE 82 BUSHELS—If Allen Moore of Kennedy, Rt. 1, plans to shuck all the corn he made on his one-acre 4-H corn project, he's got quite a bit of shucking to do. The 11-year-old Lamar County farm boy turned out enough ears to make an even 82 bushels of McCurdy 1005 hybrid. He says 800 pounds of 6-8-4 at planting time and 200 pounds of nitrate of soda as a side dressing did the trick. Allen is son of Mr. and Mrs. George Moore.

A cloth that will pick up dust and hold it is what most homemakers want in a dust cloth.

Here is how to make one. First, obtain a one-half yard square of hemmed cheesecloth, medium grade. To one quart of boiling water, add one tablespoon of linseed oil, one tablespoon of kerosene, and one tablespoon of turpentine. Keep this mixture in a closed container. After it cools, soak the cloth thoroughly in the solution, wring it out, and hang it up to dry. Wash when necessary and repeat treatment.

With fall harvesting and seeding completed, farmers are concerned with jobs that will help control erosion, improve soil, and increase crop production.

During the winter farmers can use labor, power, and equipment that is ordinarily idle for making needed improvements.

Along the Way with P. O. DAVIS

DIRECTOR, A&I EXTENSION SERVICE

YOU may feel that this country, within the next year or two will be in another depression. At least a few people feel that it is inevitable.

I do not share this feeling. Instead I believe that, with the government doing its proper part, we can keep on a basis of prosperity by making adjustments as needed to keep our economy on an even keel.

This reminds me that a major goal of President-Elect Eisenhower is "peace with prosperity." This is ideal. It is possible.

At a recent meeting in Washington I was impressed by Dr. Courtney C. Brown, economist for the Standard Oil Company. His talk was sound, comprehensive, impressive. He listed certain "props," as he called them, that will help to stabilize our economy and keep us out of too much trouble. They are:

1. The government is now taking 25% of our national production against 10% 25 years ago. This means a stronger demand.

2. Prices of farm products are supported at a sound level. For most products it's 90% of parity; and the law as it now stands is for two years.

3. Our money system is sounder than the system we had back in the 30's. The main difference is that the Federal Reserve System can now rediscount loans on real estate, which wasn't true then. Local banks that keep their loan portfolios sound can get money.

4. Our tax structure is bigger and better. It's higher, of course, and two-thirds of our current taxes are levied against direct income of individuals and corporations.

5. The Unemployment Act of 1946 which is aimed at stability of employment income from work provides purchasing power; and purchasing power governs business.

These "props" are not guarantees. They're aimed at doing what a "prop" should do—namely, hold the structure up.

But they, in my judgment, are not as strong as the fact that the United States is a fast-growing nation.

This growth in population is a tremendous factor in our growing and expanding economy on farms, in factories, and elsewhere.

And it is doubly important for farmers because the U. S. farm population is decreasing 1,000 daily while the total population increases more than 7,000. This calls for a bigger output of food and fibre from each farm year after year.

Another important fact is that new industrial products continue to move into production. The automobile is a major example of what a new product will do for the national economy. There are many others and more are now on the way. Television is a recent example.

And we're gaining in knowhow. Our working knowledge, both practical and technical, is now the greatest ever but it will be greater tomorrow than it is today. This is a top asset in progress and prosperity.

Another factor is that the American people have the will to live on a higher scale. They want more and they are willing to work to produce more and have more.

The incoming administration in Washington is fully aware of these facts. The leaders know that they and their party are on the spot. My belief is that they'll press forward with a sound and adequate program to attain in full measure President-Elect Eisenhower's major goal of "peace with prosperity."

Social Security Made Available To Farm Hands

By CECIL L. SIMPSON
Social Security Administration

BEGINNING Jan. 1, 1951, Old-Age and Survivors Insurance protection under the Social Security Act was extended to many thousands of farm workers and their families in Alabama.

However, all farm people do not have the benefit of this new protection. Only regularly employed farm workers receiving cash wages are covered in this program.

To qualify as a "regular" farm worker, an individual must meet both of these tests: (1) Work continuously for one farm operator during the entire calendar quarter and (2) continue to work for this same farm operator during the next calendar quarter for a period of no less than 60 days and receive cash wages of no less than $50. The employee will continue to be a "regular" farm worker for the same farm operator as long as he meets these requirements in each succeeding calendar quarter.

For example, if you employ a farm worker for the first time next Jan. 1, his wages will not count toward social security during the calendar quarter beginning with the first of January and ending the last of March, as that is the "apprenticeship" or qualifying quarter. However, if he continues to work in the next quarter for a period of no less than 60 days and earns at least $50 in cash wages, his earnings in that and all succeeding similar calendar quarters (if he works 60 days and earns $50 in cash wages) count toward social security.

A cook and other household workers on your farm are subject to the same conditions as a regular farm worker.

If you are a farm operator and have farm workers meeting the above qualifications, you are required to deduct one and one-half per cent of their gross earnings each pay day for social security purposes. You contribute a like amount. In the month following the end of each calendar quarter (March 31, June 30, Sept. 30, and Dec. 31), you must send a report of your employee's earnings and his share of social security taxes, together with your own share, to the Collector of Internal Revenue at Birmingham on Form 941, which will be furnished by the collector upon request. Neither you nor your regular farm workers pay social security taxes on wages earned in excess of $3600 in a calendar year.

The social security account number of each regularly employed farm worker must be shown on the quarterly report of wages the farm operator submits to the Collector of Internal Revenue. Applications for originals and duplicates of lost cards may be obtained at the post office, filled out and mailed to the nearest social security office. The post office has the address.

Information and assistance needed concerning the new social security law and benefits payable under its Old-Age and Survivors Insurance provisions may be obtained at any social security field office without charge.

Now is the last call for getting pullets started for the July to January period, the season of high egg prices. Turkeys should be profitable again this year for those who have made money on them in the past.

Joined Hands For Success

Poultry, Dairying, and Row Crops Make Farm Pay

ON a 140-acre Fayette County farm near Winfield all members of the R. A. Moore family have joined hands to make their place a successful business. Hard work and good management have done the job.

The Moores don't depend on just one crop for their income—they have a combination of row crops, poultry, and dairy cattle.

The family has a flock of 400 Harco Red hens from which eggs are sold to merchants in Winfield. Being new in the poultry business is no handicap to the Moores. They follow good management practices and get about 75 per cent production from the hens.

On the dairying side, the Moores are milking nine good Jersey cows. They sell 18 gallons of grade A milk daily to a distributor in Fayette.

To make the two-year-old dairy business as profitable as possible, most of the cow feed is grown at home. The cows graze a mixture of orchard grass, fescue, and Kentucky bluegrass during the summer; in winter they feast on crimson clover and oats. About 15 acres are in these crops for the dairy herd, and the remaining 65 acres of open land are planted to corn and hay.

Another source of farm income is the sale of seed. The Moores harvest seed for their own use and sell the surplus to neighbors.

Besides being a good farmer, Mr. Moore is also a good carpenter, and spends his spare time doing jobs for other people. His skill with a saw and hammer has also meant money to him on the farm. The family's poultry house and dairy barn were built by him at quite a saving.

For Health's Sake

Individual Pens Raise Vigorous Calves

That's why the two Jersey calves owned by the Lamar County 4-H Club girl are kept in individual pens and moved to clean, higher ground each week. This keeps them from picking up diseases, and it also cuts parasite troubles.

Doing things right has paid off for Lynda. She won second place in the county dairy show with one of her animals last year, and also won third place in fitting and grooming show cattle. The 10-year-old Malloy club member who follows dairying all the way was chosen Dairy Maid for her school this year.

Lynda's 4-H Club work does not stop at raising dairy calves. She has completed a project in room improvement and is presently carrying frozen foods, cooking, and sewing.

Lynda's cousin, Lotty Betts Rye, is national 4-H electric contest winner and has just returned from a tour of Europe won by her record. Lynda says she has her heart set on doing the same with her projects.

This young dairymaid is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Coy Freeman of Sulligent, Rt. 2.

Does His Own Soil Testing

DWIGHT BLAIR, who farms near Odenville in St. Clair County, got tired of liming his soil by guess—and he felt that it was too much trouble to get a soil expert to bring testing equipment each time a field was to be limed. So he solved the problem by getting an inexpensive and simple soil testing unit of his own. Now Blair just takes a little soil from a field he thinks might need lime, applies a chemical to it, and matches the color of the treated sample with one on the testing packet chart.

County Agent H. L. Eubanks says that while the tests are not conclusive as to the exact acidity of the soil, they do tell whether the field is low or high in lime content.

For Bossy

Dairy Cattle Need Plenty Of Good Feeds

MILK production can be kept at a profitable level this winter if dairy cows are properly fed, according to Pete Turnham, A.P.I. assistant Extension dairyman. This means supplementing pastures with plenty of good legume hay and a balanced grain ration. It also means feeding each cow according to her needs.

Dairy cows should be fed according to their milk production, butterfat test, size, and condition before calving.

Pasture is the cheapest and best source of feed for dairy cows. However, when it is not available, hay or silage is a good source of roughage.

The specialist went on to say that since hay will be used as the chief source of roughage this winter, dairymen should feed all the top quality legume hay cows will eat. A supplemental grain mixture should be added to supply the other nutrients needed.

If the hay is coarse it should be fed in large amounts and the refused part given to dry cows or yearling heifers to pick over. Grinding hay increases its feeding value very little. However, it will mean that more will be eaten.

The roughage should be left before them at all times or fed at least three times a day in order to make the cows consume large quantities of it.

Turnham said when dairy cows are fed a liberal amount of good hay, they should receive a 12 to 14 per cent grain mixture at the rate of one pound to each three to four pounds of milk produced. This mixture can be varied with the quality of roughage. An example of a 14 per cent protein mixture is as follows:

Corn	1055 lbs.
Oats	500 lbs.
Wheat bran	200 lbs.
Cottonseed meal	225 lbs.
Salt	20 lbs.

Cows on excellent pasture need a 10 or 12 per cent protein mixture, while those on a good pasture require a 14 per cent feed. Cows on a fair or poor pasture need a 16 to 18 per cent protein ration.

Research work at the Tennessee Valley Substation showed that cows on pasture and hay alone, without grain, produced two and a half gallons (21.5 lbs.) of milk a day.

The Virginia Experiment Station found that feeding grain to cows producing 20 to 30 pounds of milk or more a day was profitable. Therefore, grain feeding should be started when cows produce over two and a half gallons of milk per day.

Efficient feeding this winter will mean economical production. Plenty of good pasture or hay supplemented with the right amounts of home grown grains will help get top gallons from dairy cows.

* * *

Tests at 11 state agricultural experiment stations show that round grades of seed corn are equally as good as flat grades. This should be proof enough. Actually, round grades have certain advantages over flats: They are cheaper and will go further in planting. Therefore, when buying seed corn, farmers should not be misled into believing that flat grades offer the only opportunity of choice.

Drouth Insurance For Cattle

Sericea Lespedeza Proves Itself As A Pasture Plant

THOUSANDS of southern farmers found sericea to be a lifesaver during the drouths of the past two summers. No other crop came through in such fine style to produce as much grazing when it was really needed.

Sericea acreage in every part of the South will continue to climb because this crop has earned a bigger place on the farm, predicts J. C. Lowery, A.P.I. Extension agronomist.

This month is the time to start planning for this year's sericea crop. Farmers should locate their seed just as soon as possible and make sure that they have them on hand when seeding time comes. The seed should be cleaned, but not scarified until just before planting time.

If the crop is to be planted on land that is idle and grown up in weeds and bushes, start the soil preparation as soon as possible. Turn the land close and leave it in the rough until several weeks before time to plant. Then only harrowing and dragging will need to be done at seeding time.

Steep land that was in row crops should not be turned until next spring as it will wash during winter rains.

For details on planting this crop farmers should contact their county agent.

Rats destroy large quantities of feed and food; they are a real hazard to young poultry, spread human diseases, and are a general nuisance on most farms. These rodents are concentrated around buildings during the winter months. Now is a good time to rid your farm of these pests. Warfarin mixed with yellow corn meal when exposed at feed stations, properly located about the farm, will greatly reduce the rat and mouse population.

SCRAP WOOL INTO HANDSOME RUGS—Moths are going to find things pretty tough in Chilton County, now that home demonstration club members are beginning to turn their old woolen materials into rugs. Leading the work in rug making is Miss Mary Louise Wright (right) of Clanton, county home agent, who is showing Mrs. H. M. Nix of Maplesville how to hook a rug. Miss Wright is training club members all over Chilton in this art. In turn, they are to help other homemakers.

Make More Money

Fruits And Vegetables Boost Small Farm Income

By JOHN BAGBY
A.P.I. Extension Horticulturist

MORE than 124,000 Alabama farms have less than 30 acres in cultivation. Most families on these farms are interested in crops that will give them the most income from each acre.

Growing fruits and vegetables will solve this problem in many cases. Gross sales of $800 per acre from pole beans are not uncommon, while strawberries often return $1,000 to $1,200. By following good production practices, such as high fertilizer rates, adding organic material, irrigating, and controlling insects and diseases the A.P.I. Experiment Station grew $2,300 worth of cantaloupes on one acre.

Fruit and vegetable production is big business in some sections of Alabama. Last year there were almost 200,000 acres of these crops in the state which sold for more than $23 million. Irish potato income led the list with $4½ million, while sweetpotatoes, pecans, tomatoes, watermelons, green corn, and greens each brought in from $1 million to $3 million.

Many farmers could increase their income by growing more of these and other truck crops. And present producers could up their sales of fruits and vegetables with improved production practices.

Not all farms are suited to the production of fruit and vegetables. Therefore, farmers planning to grow these crops should contact their county agent about what to grow for local markets.

With the U. S. population increasing about 7,000 every day there will be a growing demand for food crops. And, there will be fewer and fewer farmers to produce them.

Increased freight rates in the past few years makes it harder for West Coast producers to ship their products to eastern markets at a profit. Therefore, this will cause more demand for local products.

A larger production of fruits and vegetables is also needed to give Alabama people a better balanced diet. These products are rich in vitamins and minerals, supplying over 92 per cent of vitamin C and almost 65 per cent of the vitamin A in the human diet. They also supply good amounts of iron, calcium, thiamin, niacin, and riboflavin. Substantial amounts of carbohydrates, proteins, and fats are also present.

Four Alabama 4-H Members Are National Winners

A record number of Alabama's 4-H Club members were selected as national winners at the 4-H Congress in Chicago last month.

Charles Morrow of Bessemer was the farm and home electric winner, Carolyn Shockley of Heflin, Rt. 3, placed first in dairy foods, Jeff Beasley of Gadsden was field crops champion, and Jane Moore of Dozier took top honors in rural arts and recreation. These outstanding 4-H'ers pulled through real tough competition from all parts of the U. S. to win these national honors.

Thirty-five 4-H Club delegates from Alabama joined 2,000 other boys and girls from our nation and foreign countries. They engaged in leadership training, contests, and entertainment.

The Proper Breeding Date Means Bigger Profits

DO you breed your beef cows at the right time? It will mean more profit if you do. January is the month to breed for this extra money.

Results at the Black Belt Substation show that calves born in the fall are much more profitable than those dropped in the summer. For the past three years, fall calves weighed 519 pounds on August 13 while the same age spring calves weighed only 448 pounds—a difference of 71 pounds. Tests also show that 51 per cent of the fall calves graded choice while only 17 per cent of the spring calves made that grade.

Fall calves bring more money than spring calves because they can be sold before the seasonal drop in the market, which comes in October. Furthermore, they are old enough to graze spring grass and use all the milk that the cows give, thus doing away with the job of milking out heavy producing mothers. Neither parasites nor digestive disorders are as likely to give them trouble.

Bulls need to be kept in good shape during breeding season. Do this by feeding them some grain each day during the period of heavy service. Well fed, thrifty bulls will breed a higher percentage of your cows earlier than those getting no extra feed.

Ponds that have been constructed the past fall and early winter will be ready for stocking with hatchery fish as soon as one-third of the pond acreage is covered with water. New pond owners should therefore complete their health department requirements for pond construction, impoundment of water, and requesting fish for the new pond as soon as possible. Request for fish delayed until late spring may not be filled by the Conservation Department.

The entire beef herd should be observed closely during the early part of this month. Special attention and extra feed should be given to those animals in a weakened condition. This can be arranged by putting these animals in a smaller pasture and feeding hay with two pounds of concentrate.

A FRESH PORK SPECIAL

HOG killing, "country style," is in full swing on many farms. This means plenty of fresh pork of both muscle and variety meats, all of which are excellent sources of proteins.

Liver, kidney, and heart contain as much protein as the muscle meats, and are rich in B vitamins and iron. Liver is a fine source of vitamin A and a good source of ascorbic acid. Liver is important as a blood builder because of its iron and copper content.

This recipe for liver loaf is very tasty.

LIVER LOAF

¾ cup finely chopped onion
2 T. salad oil or melted fat
¾ t. salt
½ lb. liver
3 slices day-old bread
½ cup milk
⅛ t. pepper
2 eggs, well beaten

Brown onions in fat. Cut liver in small pieces and brown with onion. Soak day-old bread in milk. Mix with onion and liver and put through a meat grinder. Add salt, pepper, well-beaten eggs. Mix well. Line loaf pan or other mold with crisp bacon slices. Fill with liver mixture and cover with bacon slices. Bake at 350°F.

This Month on the Farm

by API EXTENSION SPECIALISTS

IN 1953 it is most important that we try to fit peanut production into a sound farming program. This may require voluntary acreage adjustments on individual farms. Use good practices such as treated seed, well prepared soil, plenty of fertilizer, thick spacing, and disease and insect controls to make high per-acre yields. January is the time to locate seed and fertilizer supplies. Use certified Dixie Runner seed.

* * *

THOSE who have lespedeza sericea, sorghum, and other seed for sale should get them processed, tested, and properly bagged. Then they should locate markets. Those who must buy seed of these and other spring-planted crops, should locate seed in January if possible.

* * *

MAKE plans to increase your corn yield in 1953. Do not be discouraged by the 1952 drouth. Join the demonstration program on corn offered by your county agent. One of the first steps in making more corn per acre is to get enough seed of a recommended hybrid to plant your crop. Also, arrange for plenty of fertilizer for your corn.

* * *

IF land has not been prepared for sericea lespedeza, try to get this job done right away so the seedbed will be settled and seed can be planted at the recommended time.

* * *

CLEAR and prepare permanent pasture land in January for early spring seeding. Get lime, fertilizer, and seed not later than January or early February and be ready to plant seed on time.

* * *

JANUARY and February are usually the months when disease losses are highest in hog herds. (There is a danger of cholera striking at any time.) Colds, flu, and pneumonia hit particularly at this season.

These troubles are much easier prevented than cured. Good feeding practices and weather protection are the best preventatives against colds, flu, and pneumonia. Vaccination, of course, is the only known method of preventing cholera—the number one hog killer.

If pigs and hogs of any age are made to sleep long winter nights in cold, sleety rain or in shacks that leak like a sieve, don't be surprised if they come down with flu and pneumonia.

A homemade electric fence controller can be an invitation to disaster. The toll of dead animals each year is testimony to the fact that homemade controllers often turn into "booby traps." There are many manufacturers of well engineered, safe fence controllers, mass-produced so that the retail price is within the reach of farmers needing temporary fences. Any alleged saving by constructing a homemade unit is not worth the chance of killing even one animal.

Tractors are involved in over half of the nation's farm machinery accidents. Safe operation of the three million tractors now used on farms could save hundreds of lives and thousands of serious injuries each year.

Plot No. 2 received 40 pounds P_2O_5 per acre annually for nine years but received no phosphorus the following four years. Plot No. 3 received 160 pounds P_2O_5 per acre annually for nine years but has received no phosphorus the following four years. And, plot No. 4 received the same treatment as No. 3 but was limed.

How Available is Residual Phosphorus To Vegetables

By L. M. WARE, Horticulturist
A.P.I. Agricultural Experiment Station

(Editor's note: This is the second in a series of articles on research with phosphorus for vegetable crops.)

IN the December issue of "This Month in Rural Alabama," it was pointed out that vegetable crops use only a small amount of the phosphorus from heavily fertilized soils. You may wonder what happens to the unused portion of this phosphorus. Soil scientists are in agreement that most of it remains in the soil, some of which is available to succeeding crops.

On soils that had received different rates of phosphorus for nine years, vegetable crops were grown the next five years without adding phosphorus. Yields on plots receiving no further phosphorus were compared to reference plots that continued to receive phosphorus during the five-year period. On a Norfolk sandy loam soil reference plots had received 160 pounds phosphoric acid (P_2O_5) per year during the nine-year period and continued to receive 80 pounds during the second five-year period. On a Cecil sandy clay and on a Eutaw heavy clay rates of phosphorus aplied to the reference plots were 320 pounds of P_2O_5 during the first nine years and 160 pounds during the second five years.

Without further applications of phosphorus, on a Norfolk sandy loam soil that had received 160 pounds of P_2O_5 per acre during the nine year period the yields were 98 per cent as high the first year, 81 per cent the third, and 68 per cent the fifth year as comparative yields on reference plots. However, plots that received 80 pounds of P_2O_5 in the nine-year period and none thereafter produced 73, 61, and 27 per cent as much as the reference plots the first, third, and fifth years of the five-year period.

On the Cecil clay loam soil and on the Eutaw clay soil, yields of plots receiving 320 pounds or 240 pounds of P_2O_5 during the nine-year period but none during the five-year period were as high as those of the reference plots.

Plots of Cecil soil that had received 160 pounds of P_2O_5 in the first period and none thereaftef, yielded 97, 95, and 51 per cent as much as the reference plots the first, third and fifth years of the five-year period, while corresponding plots of Eutaw clay averaged about 35 per cent as high as the reference plots.

Thus, it may be concluded that where heavy applications of superphosphate have been applied for a number of years good yields may be obtained for a number of years without further application or with reduced rates of phosphorus.

If green grazing is temporarily not available to brood sows this winter, the next best thing is to feed high quality, leafy green alfalfa hay in racks. Only about three-fourths of a pound will be eaten by each animal daily, but vitamins and other elements, lacking in the average dry lot ration, will be provided. The result will be bigger and stronger baby pigs.

Pen Feathers

by John Weeks

GOOD commercial egg producers who didn't start their baby chicks in December will get them in the brooder house this month. Egg prices are always higher during the last six months of the year and for this reason it pays to produce at least half of the eggs from July through December.

To get high production during the period of high egg prices, you must start chicks early and raise enough good pullets to replace the entire flock each year.

Records kept on laying flocks at the A.P.I. Experiment Station at Auburn for the five-year period 1946-50 show that pullets started from Jan. 1 to Feb. 10 returned a gross income of $8.37 each. Pullets started from March 1 to April 14 returned a gross income of $7.39 each.

Pullets start laying five to six months after they are hatched. Those started near the first of the year begin laying in July, and are in their best production during the period of high egg prices. Late hatched pullets start laying in October and reach their peak in the spring when egg prices are low. Pullets hatched in January molt the following year at about the same time as the late-hatched birds. This means that they lay about 16 months before going out of production. On the other hand, pullets hatched in April and May lay only 10 to 12 months before they molt and go out of production. (If your order has not been placed with a hatcheryman and confirmed, this should be done today. There may be a shortage of high quality chicks of a production strain for early delivery.)

Pullets lay three to four dozen more eggs in a year than hens in their second year will lay. The old hen is molting and out of production during the winter when egg prices are high and lays most of her eggs in the spring when prices are low. The sale price of the old hen plus the cost of the feed the hen eats when she is molting and out of production will about pay the growing cost of a good pullet. For these reasons smart poultrymen are starting enough pullets each January to completely replace the laying flock.

(For complete information on raising a profitable flock ask your County Agent for circular 421, "Grow Good Pullets.")

If you had trouble getting a stand of Coastal Bermuda last year, the chances are that you had poor planting stock. To get a good stand of this grass, the plants must be fresh, moist, and in good condition. The best way to be sure of good planting material is to establish a small nursery on your farm. Then you can dig the plants and take them directly to the field.

For establishing a nursery, farmers may obtain pure Coastal Bermuda planting stock from the A.P.I. Experiment Station by contacting their county agent.

When tractors are hard to crank in cold weather, there may be some simple things that will help get them started. For instance, dirt which collects around the spark plugs, magneto or distributor cap often gets damp shorting the electrical system. If these places are kept clean, the tractor will crank easier. Also, winter grade gasoline makes starting quicker because some manufacturers add volatile material to aid in cranking during cold weather. For this reason, farmers should not store a large quantity of gasoline in the fall to be used during the winter.

HE'S SAVING MONEY—Because Joe Frank Rotton (left), Bullock County 4-H Club youngster, has learned plenty about how to keep a tractor in good shape, the family pocketbook doesn't have to stand as much strain due to machinery repairs. Watching Joe Frank work is A. J. Brown, assistant county agent, who has held tractor clinics all over the county. The 10-year-old farm boy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Rotton of Inverness, Rt. 1.

Breeding For Better Cows

Is Artificial Breeding Successful?

By PETE B. TURNHAM
API Assistant Extension Dairyman

NOW is a good time to take a close look at artificial breeding of dairy cattle. Alabama farmers have participated in the artificial breeding of dairy cattle for several years, and a look at the results of this program will give insight to a profitable future.

Artificial breeding offers the greatest known opportunity for a dairyman to build up his herd production by the use of top quality bulls. But many dairymen are still passing up this opportunity. Since the program was started in 1947, it has meant well over two and one-half million dollars to Alabama farmers through increased production and better cows.

In a recent survey of all artificial breeding associations in Alabama it was found that all except one had raised the breeding fee from the original $5 charge. This was necessary in order to meet increasing costs. Several associations still think the breeding fees are too low. The highest fee in the state is $8 per service. In the same survey it was found that all associations hoped to breed more cows this fall than ever before, because farmers have more confidence in this system of breeding.

In a study of DHIA records at Auburn recently it was found that bulls in use at the Auburn stud had a transmitting index of 8,677 pounds of milk and 448 pounds butterfat. In pounds of fat the Alabama bulls ranked fourth in ten southern states including Virginia, North Carolina, Kentucky, Texas, South Carolina, Tennessee, Louisiana, Arkansas, and Mississippi. It is apparent from this report that bulls in use at the Auburn stud are far above the average of most bulls now in use in natural service. There is also the big advantage of not having to keep a bull on the farm when artificial breeding is used.

Offspring from bulls used in artificial breeding took top honors at district shows throughout Alabama this year and it is apparent that these bulls are transmitting type as well as production to their offspring.

Breeding fees will probably continue to go up unless the number of cows bred monthly can be increased. All indications are that the greatest number of cows will be bred this fall and winter than any year since the program started. Artificial breeding has played a tremendous part in helping build up milk production in Alabama and can mean even more to the rapidly expanding dairy industry as time goes on. Every farmer should investigate the possibilities of becoming a member of his local breeding organization.

Bred sows—carrying the spring litter—should not be starved to keep them from getting too fat. A better way is to substitute ruffage such as ground oats and ground alfalfa hay for part of the corn. A good ration for bred sows when green grazing is in short supply can be made by mixing 30 pounds of cornmeal, 30 pounds of ground alfalfa hay, and 10 pounds of supplement or tankage. Give them about all they want to eat of this mixture. Of course a simple mineral mixture and dry loose salt should be before them at all times.

Sews For Profit

Lamar HDC Member Makes Many Garments

WHEN there is sewing to be done, many people around Vernon immediately think of Mrs. Collier Cole. They know she will do excellent work for them at a considerable saving.

After sewing for neighbors several years, her good work has brought more customers than she can possible serve. During October she made 22 garments for which she received $60.

All of Mrs. Cole's sewing is done at home. She has her own forms which she uses to fit the garments on for measuring. On these she puts the finishing touch to her handiwork.

Making clothes for the public is not the end of the sewing line for Mrs. Cole. She also makes shirts for her husband and 12-year-old son plus most of the garments worn by her 18-year-old daughter and herself.

As proof of the sewing ability of this Lamar County seamstress, she has won an electric clock for placing first in the sports division of the county dress revue.

Mrs. Cole also enjoys baking. During the Christmas season last year she baked and sold 23 cakes.

In addition to all her other duties, this civic-minded housewife finds time for home demonstration club work, and is serving as vice president of the Turner HD Club. She has been a member of this organization for 12 years, and previously served as president of the Sulligent HD Club.

(TOP) Mrs. Collier Cole, a member of home demonstration clubs in Lamar County for 12 years, measures the coat to a ladies suit which she has almost completed. She sews for the public during her spare time. In October she made 22 garments for customers.

Cotton Varieties For 1953

RECOMMENDED cotton varieties for 1953 were recently announced by H. B. Tisdale, A.P.I. Agricultural Experiment Station Plant Breeder.

Based on the results of tests conducted throughout Alabama for the past three years, Tisdale said a number of relatively new varieties have yielded sufficiently well and have enough other good characteristics to be included in the 1953 recommendations.

All varieties have qualified on the basis of yield, staple quality, gin turnout and other desirable characteristics.

For areas in northern and central Alabama that are free of wilt, the recommended varieties are: Plains, Fox (D PL), Smith 78, Coker 100 Wilt, Empire, and Stoneville 2B.

Varieties best suited for southern Alabama and the wilt-infested areas of northern and central Alabama are: Plains, Smith 78, Coker 100 Wilt, and Stonewilt.

Auburn hybrid 56, a new variety developed by the Experiment Station, has yielded well throughout the state. However, certified seed of this variety are not available at this time.

A Morale Booster

A new hat may be the best morale booster for some women.

But for less money than a hat might cost, Clara Oates (right) has just given herself —and her bedroom —quite a lift.

The Prattville 4-H Club girl started the job of redecorating her room with just $20—and she didn't spend a penny more. Of course, the money went for materials, and she did all the work herself.

Before Clara finished the job, drapes had replaced faded curtains on two large windows. A fresh coat of paint had been added. New skirts for the dressing table and chairs were other feminine touches.

It may be that Clara's sewing ability gave her a head start in the redecorating. Sewing has been one of her projects for the past six years, and this summer won for her the county 4-H dress revue. But her 4-H leaders are inclined to believe sewing prowess wasn't so important in her success as was her willingness to learn by doing.

Cows Like Molasses

MANY farmers in Sumter County are finding blackstrap molasses to be a good cheap substitute for corn in their cattle feeding programs.

M. E. McConnell is feeding a number of large steers on cottonseed meal, pellets, and blackstrap. He is using five pounds of pellets and four pounds of molasses a head each day. The steers are also grazing in crop fields, frosted pastures, and hay fields. McConnell plans to feed them about 90 more days.

Cliff Hutcherson of Geiger has 50 steers that did not fatten on pasture during the dry summer and fall. And so he has started a 120-day feeding program on a ration of crushed corn and cob meal, Johnson grass hay, cottonseed meal, and blackstrap. Mr. Hutcherson reports that the steers are gaining on this mixture.

The Geiger farmer also has 40 calves that were too small and thin to bring good prices this fall. He has put them on the same type ration he is feeding the steers. He says they are improving daily.

Perry 4-H'ers Like Pigs

Of the 295 farm boys enrolled in 4-H work 57 have chosen hog projects and already have them under way. Each project will be completed during the coming year.

J. A. Bates, assistant county agent, explains that the youngsters' hog activities are divided into two groups—the sow and litter projects and pigs for home meat supply.

The former requires the owner to learn quickly the necessary requirements for raising quality pigs. He must provide proper feed, housing, and sanitation if he is to show a profit at the end of the year.

The latter type of project teaches the boy the "hows and whys" of hog production. If he is successful with one pig, a club member very often will enlarge his herd—and his profits.

Next in popularity among Perry projects this year is cattle raising, both beef and dairy. There are 34 boys in the county raising beef calves and 42 with dairy calves.

Other activities in which Perry 4-H boys are interested include cotton, corn, chickens, home gardens, pasture improvements, and tractor maintenance.

Calhoun Farmers Build Auction Barn

A forward step taken by the livestock industry in Calhoun County was the recent opening of the new auction sales barn in Anniston.

County Agent A. S. Mathews, Jr., said that the market should be a big boost to the livestock industry in this section of Alabama. He added that farmers and businessmen who have taken the lead in opening this barn are to be congratulated, for it will play a big part in expanding livestock production in the county.

Most of the stockholders, explained Mr. Mathews, are producing livestock on their farms. Other farmers will be given an opportunity to purchase stock in the future. The agent believes that the chance for success of the barn is especially good because so many producers have had a prominent part to play in its operations.

County Agents Honored

THREE Alabama county agents received the distinguished service awards at the annual meeting of their national association in Chicago early last month.

Agents receiving these awards were C. M. Ling of Dothan, C. P. Granade of Greenville, and J. C. Bullington of Jasper.

These men were praised by their national officials for "excellent contributions to Alabama's agriculture." Their constructive programs were credited for much of the farm progress made in their respective counties.

The lumber market is getting stronger as restrictions on buildings are eased. It appears that this winter will be a good time to hold out for a high price for stumpage, especially if the timber is on a good site suitable for all-weather logging.

Research Results

in brief from A.P.I. AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATION

TOO EARLY GRAZING LIMITS PRODUCTION OF FIRST-YEAR PASTURES. The small seed of pasture plants have little stored food for seedling growth. Animals trample and pull up many seedlings, besides grazing the tops from other seedlings which cuts down the plant's food supply. By keeping livestock off newly seeded pastures until the plants are well established, investments in land preparation, fertilization, seed and labor will be protected.

* * *

BEES INCREASE CRIMSON CLOVER SEED YIELDS. Results of experiments conducted in 1951 and 1952 show that crimson clover exposed to honey bees produced an average of 544 pounds more seed per acre than clover excluded from bees, which produced an average of only 85 pounds of seed per acre.

* * *

WOODLAND VALUE IS INCREASED by cutting only the poorest trees for stove and fireplace wood. Nice straight pines make good saw timber, therefore, it is costly to cut them for fuelwood. By cutting crooked, diseased, and limby pines or hardwoods that cannot be sold for lumber for fuelwood, the quality of marketable timber is improved.

* * *

THE EARLY GRANO is one of the best sweet onions for Alabama growers. Dry sets of this variety are not available for planting in fall and spring. They may be provided by planting seeds very thick in late winter or early spring after danger of hardest freezes has past. The seeds will mature sets in June. When harvested and stored in a dark, cool, well-ventilated place, they will be available for planting when needed.

* * *

CERTAIN VEGETABLES NEED BORON. Studies have shown that internal discoloration and "breakdown" in turnips, rutabagas, and beets can be corrected by application of borax. Rates of borax should range from 5 to 10 pounds per acre on sandy soils, and 10 to 20 pounds on heavy or clay soils, depending on the crop.

* * *

A COMMON FAULT IN FARM LEASES is vague and indefinite arrangements on many items, as indicated by a recent survey. Oral rental arrangements are often made with consideration of only a few items, leaving other things to custom. Custom is not always clear; it does not provide an adequate basis for new problems, nor is the same custom suitable for all farms.

* * *

MARKET OUTLETS used by Alabama farmers in selling their livestock are also used by them for purchasing feeder animals, although the markets are of more importance to farmers from a selling stand point. Most stocker and feeder cattle are bought from auction and terminal markets because farmers can find there the desired quantity, age, weight, and quality. However, most feeder pigs are bought from other farmers.

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Noticing that seven young men will be called into the armed service next month reminds us of the story about the draft board doctor who was examining the recruit. "Read that chart," he commanded. "What chart?" asked the young man. "That's right, there isn't any chart," said the Doc. "You're in, boy."

We just received scads and scads of calls, letters and personal contacts from interested citizens in regards to our plug last week for a new courthouse. Seems the people of the county have at last come to realize that it is a case of having to do something about our public buildings and NOW! As one caller asked "What would have been the result if all of that plaster and steel had fallen a short time earlier when the courtroom was filled to capacity with our children?" Well, the thought isn't pretty, but the fact is that some of our fine young offsprings would have been killed or maimed for life.

"I couldn't," the frog replied. "But a truck came along and I had to."

NEW TELEPHONES ADDED HERE IN 1952

Expanded telephone service was part of substantial progress recorded in Clanton and Maplesville in 1952, according to C. D. Price, Southern Bell Manager, here.

During 1952 the number of telephones in Clanton and Maplesville increased by 38 or 1.6 per cent. As the year ends, 2,451 telephones are in service, as against 2,413 at the first of the year. "The number of people with telephone service is regarded as a good barometer of economic health, and the number in service at Clanton and Maplesville continues to increase. We continue to receive a heavy volume of new applications," Mr. Price said. Mr. Price explained that the total number of telephones now serving Clanton and Maplesville is 4.7 times, or 370 per cent greater than it was at the end of World War II. He pointed out that 26 long distance circuits now carry calls to and from Clanton and Maplesville, two having been added in 1952. The expansion of Clanton's and Maplesville's telephone system was a part of an Alabama-wide telephone growth which in 1952 added over 21,000 to the State total of telephones. Alabama now has over 429,000 telephones in service, which is more than twice the number in service in the State at the end of World War II.

Southern Bell in 1952 provided $15,278,000 worth of additional facilities in Alabama, making a total of $94,430,000 spent in the State since World War II.

Mr. Price pointed out that Southern Bell is aware that in spite of its tremendous expansion program in Alabama, there are still many persons waiting for telephone service. "Due to the rapid economic growth of this region," he added, "We still receive heavy demands for telephone service. We are working hard to meet all service needs, both civilian and military. As we enter the new year, we are confident that telephone service will continue to play an increasingly important role in the economic and social life of the state."

SPECIAL SERVICES

The Christ Ambassadors, young people of Montgomery and Clanton section will hold their monthly rally at the First Assembly of God church this Friday night, January 16th, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

The church is located at 300-1st Ave., here in Clanton.

Our guest speaker will likely be Evangelist Holmes, who is now in a revival at Pinedale Assembly.

We invite all people to attend this C.A. rally, and urge all churches to come and bring special song books.

An announcement concerning our revival which will begin Sunday, January 18th, will be in the next issue of the Chilton County News, on Friday of this week.—J. H. Appleby, pastor.

Piles Of Plaster And Steel Mesh Cover The Floor

When the ceiling fell at the courthouse it brought down a electric fan with it besides ther damages. In the picture above can be seen a large piece of "ceiling" hanging on the remaining electric fan. Plans are going forward to repair the hole until other arrangements can be made. In it's present condition the courtroom is dangerous for use.

Here is a scene at the courthouse where the ceiling fell week before last and left hundreds of pounds of plaster and steel on the courtroom floor. Tables, chairs, and a piano were damaged. Luckily the plaster fell at night when no one was in the courtroom.

Greatest "Dime" Army To Enlist For Top Drive In '53

The greatest March of Dimes army of all time—some 1,500,000 Americans—is now being marshalled throughout the nation.

During the past year infantile paralysis attacked us with the worst force ever recorded. It was more widespread. It touched all parts of the United States. The outbreaks began early and dwindled late.

Aware Of Impact—

The grimness of the polio situation this year is reflected in the more than 55,000 cases for 1952; in the fact that more iron lungs were supplied than in the previous three years combined, and in the unpaid bills, estimated at $7,000,000!

Fortunately, during the past several years, the public has become increasingly aware of the problems inherent in the fight against polio. The American people are fully cognizant that it is their fight.

Thus as we prepare the vast counter attack to take place during the 1953 March of Dimes, January 2-31, we take courage from the knowledge that a million-and-a-half citizens are determined that polio can be beaten . . . that they will do all in their power to turn the tide of battle in this fight for the youth of our nation.

They Mean Business—

The National Foundation's Director of Fund Raising Warren D. Coss, following a series of regional meetings, in 16 key cities, stated that he found our March of Dimes and chapter volunteers anxiously awaiting the signal to start. Intensive plans have been, and are being mapped out. More and more people are signing on for the duration.

Your March of Dimes was sorely hit, badly staggered by the impact of polio this year. But rallying to its aid are Americans in every section of the land. They know the devastation polio has wrought. Yet they know, too, that scientific progress against the disease has grown apace.

So they're set to GO—and write a bright new page in the history of how volunteers, banded together, can march on to victory!

Plans Started For New Bridge Over Coosa River On State 22

A Committee from Chilton and Coosa Counties met with State officials last week to start proceedings on a bridge over the Coosa River on State Road 22, 18 miles south of Clanton.

J. M. Plott, representative of Chilton County, Robert Smith, representative of Coosa County, the Coosa County Board of Revenue and Control and J. D. Bullington, County Engineer representing the Chilton County Board of Revenue and Control. State officials at the meeting were D. W. Hodo, State Finance Director and Gurry Pruett State Highway Director.

Reports out of the meeting were that as soon as plans could be completed for a traffic survey on the highway then the state officials, with the County Board, could determine what steps to take for definite action.

Should the State Highway survey find the traffic on State 22 sufficient the highway could be changed from secondary to a primary status and the bridge constructed. The Federal Roads Commission will not allocate monies to secondary roads.

At any rate should the bridge be constructed the counties will probably be called on to raise half the cost which will be close to a half million dollars which would be financed by tolls from the bridge.

County Hopes To Widen 150 Miles Of County Roads In 1953

J. D. Bullington stated this week that plans had been made to improve and widen 150 miles of roads in Chilton County in 1953. He also announced that 20 to 25 miles of the Farm to Market Roads would be paved.

SACP-3104, A & B in and around Thorsby, a distance of five and four-tenths miles, is under construction. Work on the project started last week. Five miles has been completed on the Kincheon Road and all work of improving and widening of the Mims Crossing Road has been completed. Local photographer, Simmie Scott, has taken some pictures of this road which will appear in a current issue of Chilton County News.

A survey is underway on the road between Pep LeCroy's Store to Sardis Church which, when completed, will start another project of county road improvement.

Bullington stated that during the year 1953 plans are for more and better road building and maintenance in Chilton County than has ever been known in the county's history and with the cooperation of the county's officials the goal can be accomplished.

SOBERING THOUGHT FOR AMERICANS

During the busy days since his election President-elect Eisenhower has spent many hours in conference with the leaders of the Republican Party.

Out of these important meetings have come the Cabinet members and other top appointed officials. It is presumed that out of the meetings with leading Republican Congressmen also will come the GOP's legislative program.

President-elect Eisenhower has called on all important segments of the Republican Party to sit in on these conferences. Apparently no key Republican from MacArthur to Taft to Dewey has been left out.

Yet, what about the newly elected veep, Richard Nixon? Where has he been since the election? The only meeting between General Ike and his hand-picked vice-president was a brief encounter in New York. As far as we are concerned this was one meeting too many.

No vice-president has ever taken office with as little support as Dick Nixon carries with him to the number two position in our government. His doubtful past has caused most Americans to take an extremely cautious view of the new veep.

We hope that General Ike will continue to go slow in admitting Dick Nixon to the councils of the GOP. But more than that, we trust that General Ike will serve every day of his elected term so that this country may never be faced with the sobering fact of having Dick Nixon move into the presidency. — Montgomery Examiner.

MORE MONEY FOR SCHOOLS

Alabama school officials in all brackets state that many more million dollars are needed for city, county and state schools again this year.

They point to the annual increase in school-age population, the necessity to replace crowded and obsolete school buildings and the Negro problem. The latter may force the construction of many new and modern school buildings for Negro children to provide for equal school facilities.

Governor Persons has stated emphatically that he is not in favor of the imposition of any more new taxes during the remainder of his administration. Then how are the new school millions to be provided?

School leaders point to three sources to provide the huge new school funds.

A hundred million dollar bond issue for schools is to be proposed and submitted to the voters for ratification. It will be proposed to eliminate all exemption in the present sales tax law, and to forbid credit for federal income tax payments in state income tax payments. And finally, city and county school mill taxes are to be upped to the maximum allowed by the constitution.

The first two items are estimated to provide some $153,000,000.00 new school monies. Several million dollars more would be netted from the last proposal.

The schools received all of the funds accruing from two to three cents at the beginning of the Person's administration, amounting to many million dollars.

School leaders must sell the taxpayers on the necessity for raising the tax load again, in order to secure the new multi-million dollars revenue. — Cullman Democrat.

Mullins, Pensacola, Fla., and Richard Roper, Birmingham.

Montgomery, Ala. — At its quarterly meeting in the month of December, the board of directors of Montgomery Bible College made an official decision to change the name of the school to Alabama Christian College.

This change in name is an effort to more adequately reflect the territory and scope of work of the Montgomery Bible College.

Having opened on September 14, 1942, the college celebrated its tenth anniversary last spring. At that time civic leaders and officials of Montgomery extended their congratulations and best wishes. These letters, along with many from gospel preachers and other friends of the school, were published in a special "Tenth Anniversary Bulletin."

A member of the Alabama Association of Colleges, this Montgomery institution has had students to transfer to many senior colleges to continue their work.

Honorable J. Ed Livingston, Chief Justice of Alabama Supreme Court, has been selected to deliver the principal address. W. A. Gayle, Mayor of Montgomery, and Marshall S. Green, President of Montgomery County Board of Revenue, will also participate in the ceremony.

Montgomery Bible College, with more than 350 enrolled, has students from 13 states.

This institution has erected most of its buildings with student labor, thereby effecting a great saving to the school and providing employment for worthy students. President Turner expressly states, "Any student who is honorable and willing to work need not forego college training at the Alabama Christian College because of his lack of money."

DALE CARNEGIE

★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

A PROBLEM WAS solved in a unique way for John L. Davis, 1980 Washington Street, San Francisco, California. He was working for a Bank & Trust Company in San Francisco, and he definitely was in a rut. He was not getting ahead as fast as he had a right to feel he should. He worried about what step to take, yet he was afraid to quit and look for something better.

Finally he decided to write a letter addressed to himself reviewing the facts and challenging himself to make the break in the next ninety days. He wrote this letter and signed it.

Next he made up a list of his friends and decided to call on them for help, giving his qualifications and the reason why he felt he should get out of the slow moving banking business.

CARNEGIE

The first man he called on was a vice president of another San Francisco bank who said he would be glad to offer John a position in his bank, but they both felt that would not fundamentally solve the problem. In a few days this vice president telephoned John to come to see him, and told of a new Investment Trust just formed in San Francisco and said that they were looking for a security analyst.

John was admirably qualified because of his work in the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration. He immediately went to see the President of the new company and was accepted for the position. Within three years he was a vice president and a director of the company, with a salary three times what he had been making at the bank.

He believes he really conquered his fear and stopped his worry by writing the letter to himself just setting the facts down in black and white and making clear his course of action. The call on his friend was motivated by the need for action to make the change in ninety days. The final result was what he had desired and that result was inevitable once he had written the letter.

Questions On Work Experience

Questions on work experience during 1952 will be asked of a number of local residents in the January Current Population Survey, according to District Supervisor Mary L. Griffin of the U. S. Census Bureau.

The principal work experience question will ask the number of weeks worked last year. Supplemental questions will be asked to determine whether this was full-time or part-time work and the type of work done. The survey will provide information on the Nation's available labor supply.

The special questions on work experience are in addition to the regular inquiries on employment and unemployment which are asked each month in the Current Population Survey. The survey will be conducted during the week of January 12.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

It was one of those cold mornings, so cold that the three-year-old agreed to wear the bright red gloves he got for Christmas. He was all ready to go out to play except for getting those gloves on his hands, and that bit of business proved much harder than he had imagined.

He struggled with one hand, trying to get the fingers to go down into the proper tunnels, finally gave up and started working on the other hand. He was confronted with the same problems, and after several futile attempts to persuade his hands to slip into the gloves the way they should, he called:

"Mother, please come help me—all my fingers are cross-legged!"

* * *

Speaking of gloves, the mother down the street has almost eliminated the lost glove and mitten problem by sewing her children's names and telephone number inside each mitten and glove.

She says the telephone number is really more help in getting the lost articles returned than the names are. She has had seven telephone calls from persons who found missing gloves and mittens belonging to her family.

Names and telephone numbers might well be sewed in caps, galoshes, scarfs and sweaters, too. Maybe we'll get around to doing it around our house before the winter is over.

* * *

This same smart mother always lines the pockets of her children's sweaters with cotton material of the same color as the sweater. These pocket liners keep the sweater pockets from stretching out of shape or from wearing through no matter how often small hands are thrust into them or how full they are jammed with a collection of "important things."

* * *

While you're sewing linings in pockets and tacking name tapes on other things, you might like to try the suggestion of the neighbor next door who always puts several coats of nail polish on the tips of her fingers when she sews by hand. The polish protects her fingers from needle pricks, and it's easy to remove once the sewing session is over.

* * *

Still on the subject of sewing, an empty paper matchbook cover makes a handy repair kit to carry in your purse. A few needles threaded with different colored threads can be stuck in the torn match stubs, and they're right ready to do quick sewing when you need them in an emergency.

* * *

One more sewing hint: The mother down the street uses nylon thread when she patches the knees of her boys' blue jeans. She says the thread always lasts longer than the patches do.

When she mends the jeans, she sews the patch on with the wrong side up so that it will blend better with the faded color of the blue jeans.

* * *

If your family likes French toast try making it like this for a change. Instead of using milk in the batter, use 2-3 cup syrup from a can of pineapple with each two eggs. Brown the toast in bacon fat and serve with bacon and slices of broiled pineapple.

Left-over egg yolks can be kept in a small jar if topped with a small amount of water or milk. Cover the jar tightly and put in the refrigerator.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

THUMB SUCKING

A parent who attempts to break his child of thumb sucking by scolding, or even coaxing, is not using good judgment. Either practice can be harmful because it denotes a lack of everyday common sense in rearing a child.

A child's first automatic sense of comfort is through sucking. Whether breast or bottle fed, sucking satisfies his hunger; and it isn't long before he discovers that the thumb is a handy gadget for his mouth. Thus is established the thumb sucking habit. Very often the habit suggests that the baby is not getting enough sucking—perhaps he has been taken away too soon from the breast or the bottle, or again he has been put on a nursing schedule that allows too few nursing periods. In any event, the child derives comfort from his sucking, an important factor in why he does it.

As the child grows older, he usually resorts to sucking his thumb to fill an emotional need. Feeling unwanted and alone may be responsible; so he seeks to satisfy himself. Unhappiness, fear and insecurity are emotional problems that loom high on a child's horizon.

It is generall conceded that up to the first few years, thumb sucking may be considered normal with the habit acting as a sort of pacifier or comforter. A child's curiosity is an ever present wonder. The more he explores the new things about him, the more his mind is taken from himself. Usually by the time he reaches the wonders of his five to six years of age world, the thumb sucking habit is forgotten.

If the practice continues beyond this age, however, definite steps for correction should be undertaken by consulting with your physician. Notice when your child sucks his thumb, don't call attention to it, but try to understand the circumstances surrounding the action. Then try to attract his interest by creating new and happy situations and satisfactions.

Southern Bell Makes Movie On Southern Industry Available

C. D. Price, Southern Bell Telephone Co. manager, said here today a new full-color motion picture telling the dramatic story of the South's enormous industrial growth has been produced by Southern Bell and is available for free showings to interested groups.

The 20-minute, 16-mm. sound film highlights the tremendous expansion of the South's new manufacturing might, Mr. Price said. Free loans of the picture may be arranged by contacting any Southern Bell business office.

"The film, in addition to other features, pictures the South's new and booming shipyards, steel mills and automobile assembly plants in action," the manager said. "It also shows defense facilities of the region, including scenes at the new top-secret Savannah River Project."

The film is titled "For Progress . . .Call Dixie." and includes scenes of Southern construction on the recent developments of telephone communication — coaxial cable and radio relay.

"The new picture, made for Southern Bell by a Southern film producer, is a good example of the way Dixie's businesses are boosting the industrial growth of our section," Mr. Price added.

Camera crews make scenes of a Radio Relay Tower during production of Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company's new 16mm color release, "For Progress. . .Call Dixie!", which features the theme of growth and development of the South. Prints of the film may be borrowed free from any Southern Bell business office.

Splicing coaxial cables — heavy duty carriers of telephone conversations and television programs—is an exacting job. This is a scene made during production of Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company's new 16mm color film, "For Progress. . . Call Dixie!", which features growth and development in the South. Prints of the film may be borrowed free from any Southern Bell business office.

It Pays To Control Vegetable Weevils

Auburn, Ala. — The vegetable weevil is a wintertime pest in Alabama home gardens that should be controlled.

W. A. Ruffin, API Extension entomologist, points out that the normally cream-colored worms are often quite green in color when they are feeding on leaves of cabbage, turnips, or other green foliage. They are about one-fourth inch long.

The worms stay just under the surface of the soil most of the time but emerge at night and eat small round holes in vegetable leaves. The worms also burrow in the roots of beets, carrots, and turnips.

"To control these pests," says Ruffin, "dust the ground and infested plants with 10 per cent DDT or one per cent rotenone once a week. Only rotenone should be used to dust cabbage, turnips, or vegetables if tops of plants are to be used for food."

A Plentiful Foods List For January

Auburn, Ala. — Wise food buys in Alabama this month include plentiful home-grown greens, turkeys, pork and pork products, and broilers.

"And," says Dorothy Overbey, API Extension specialist in consumer education, "an ample supply of oranges, tangerines, and raisins are on hand for the budget-minded homemaker's use."

Other plentiful foods are dried figs, grapefruit, almonds, filberts, walnuts, and honey. Eggs are more plentiful and lower in price than in recent months. Dairy foods in good supply include dry skimmilk, buttermilk, and cottage cheese. Frozen fish is also plentiful.

Finally, vegetable shortening, salad oils and table fat are good buys, and there is plenty of lard at very reasonable prices, adds Miss Overbey.

Local Schools Are Participating In Essay Contest

Verbena High and Clanton High are among schools participating in the third annual essay contest on "Selling as a Career" sponsored by the Montgomery Sales Executives Club.

The purpose of the contest is to provide strong incentives for American youth to "explore the importance of selling to our high standard of living, and to consider the field as a career."

According to Dave Larson, chairman of the Essay Contest Committee, prizes totaling $220.00 are being offered by the Montgomery club to winners in this competition. An award of $100 will go to the first-place winner. Other prizes will be $50 for second place, $20 for the third best essay, and ten awards of $5 each.

The three best essays will automatically be entered in a national contest sponsored by National Sales Executives, and the top award in this competition will be $1,000.00 and a free trip to Atlantic City. The instructor who sponsors the student winning the national contest will also receive an expense-paid trip to Atlantic City. Other awards will be given to teachers sponsoring winners who place in the national contest.

Essays will be judged by an impartial committee on a basis of originality, clarity, sincerity, frankness, unity and simplicity. All entries must be received by the Montgomery Sales Executives Club, P.O. Box 815, Montgomery, Ala., on or before February 15.

Chairman Larson said that the club would be glad to supply full information and materials to other schools in the Montgomery trade area upon request. Such requests should be directed to the club at P.O. Box 815, Montgomery, Ala.

Plan To Make Full Use Of Electricity

Money will be saved in the long run if correct wiring is installed when a home is first wired.

Stella Mitchell, API Extension home management specialist, explains that it is far cheaper to install correct wiring and equipment to carry the desired load rather than do "add on" wiring later.

The specialist reminds home planners that installation of switches and outlets for convenience, safety, and service should be the objective.

Alabama Broilers

Broiler growers in Alabama sold 1,700,000 birds in November for $1,460,000. The price received was about 30 cents per pound, or five cents above that of the same period last year.

Planting Trees

Farmers agree that now is the time to plant forest seedlings. They may be planted as late as March 1, but usually early planting in the southern part of the state gives the best results.

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From the Old Cuss, Chicago: This is the last time I'll be writing you because I think this column is going to pot. I remember when old people used to use their brains planning a vigorous future instead of sitting around in their senility longing for the good old days. The old dotards of today make me almost ashamed I am 92 years old. Certain tribes of Eskimos kill off the old folks as soon as they revert to infantile habits and can't contribute their keep—I'd do the same to ye old timers of this column—only I'd boil them in oil. Maybe when I'm 110 I'll long for the good ole days of the bustle and bloomer, but right now I'd rather watch Dagmar on TV.

From Cass Cattrack, Bangor, Me.: I remember when Mary Worth, the nosy old biddy of the comic strips, sold apples on the street. Seems as if that was in the days of the depression. Hoovervilles and breadlines—before FDR.

From S. D. Coleman, Ft. Gaines, Ga.: I remember when folks confessed sins in church meeting. A fellow got up in Baptist meeting and confessed that the reason he drank so much whiskey was that it was so good iced. All the good church folk accused him of lying, because no one had ice in the summertime then.

From Piety Agnew, Boston, Mass.: I remember when preachers condemned sin. Now they espouse it by their silence when speaking out against certain types of sin angers rich contributors to the collection plate.

I KISS YOUR HAND, MADAME . . . In the city of Stockholm, Sweden, the nation's "Queen of Light" is greeted in a gallant fashion by M. Francois Mauriac. Mauriac won the 1952 Nobel prize in literature. He was presented with prize after the 21-year-old "Lucia," Kerstein Orno had been crowned in the annual ceremony at the City Hall in Stockholm. During the ceremony, Miss Orno received a golden necklace and a crown of candles.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

(Report from Washington by Armistead I. Selden, Jr., Congressmen, Sixth District)

A joint House-Senate session was held on Tuesday to make an official count of the votes cast when the Electoral College met last month. The final count totaled 442 electoral votes for Gen. Eisenhower and Sen. Nixon and 89 votes for the Stevenson-Sparkman ticket.

Following the count, Congress was flooded with bills calling for election law changes. Some of the proposals asked to do away with Electoral College entirely, but the majority were aimed at making certain changes in the present electoral system.

Rep. Albert Rains of Alabama's fifth district introduced one of the bills. His bill would pro-rate or divide a state's electoral votes in proportion to the state's popular vote. The present system gives all a state's electoral votes to the candidate with the most popular votes, regardless of how close the opposition's popular vote may be to the votes of the winning candidate.

Another election change bill calls for amending the Constitution to lower the minimum voting age to 18.

Even with all the current interest in altering the election laws, it will probably be some time before Congress begins work on this legislation since such issues as the Korean War and reduction of Federal expenses will probably get prior consideration.

Visits Pentagon—

An interesting experience was a conference I was privileged to attend Tuesday at the Pentagon which is the center of the Nation's defense network. Here I was briefed by Army officials on the present military situation and various Army Department procedures.

The following day I listened to President Truman's annual State of the Union message. For the first time in his presidential career, Truman did not deliver his address in person. Although it was one of the longest reports he ever presented, the President did not recommend any legislation. He said such recommendations should come only from President-elect Eisenhower. General Eisenhower is expected to deliver his legislative program to Congress soon after his inauguration January 20. It is rumored his address may be made on February 3.

Thursday morning at 8:15 I learned, first-hand, that Congressmen do find time for religious observance during a legislative week. It was a pleasure for me to attend the first 1953 meeting of the Breakfast Club, a group of Congressmen from both major parties who meet weekly for breakfast. This breakfast is followed by a discussion of some religious subject. Because of the club's inspirational activities, I plan to attend its meetings as often as possible, and I hope that I can give you a more detailed account of one of its meetings in this column at a later date.

Ala. Delegation Meets—

Later in the day I enjoyed this year's first weekly meeting of the Alabama Congressional Delegation. The group is composed of Alabama's nine representatives and it's two senators. It was a pleasure for me to have as my guests for the first meeting, Jeff Coleman, business manager of the University of Alabama's athletic department, and Dean A. B. Moore, head of the graduate school at the University. Along with Coach Harold Drew, they were in Washington to attend meetings of the National Collegiate Athletic Association. At this first meeting of the Alabama delegation, I was elected Secretary of the group for the coming year.

Warrior Lock and Dam—

Included in the budget submitted on Friday, was an estimate of $1,900,000 for the fiscal year 1954 for the Warrior Lock and Dam which will be located in the sixth district. This, of course, is President Truman's budget and many items will undoubtedly be cut but you can be sure the delegation from Alabama will make a fight to keep this item intact. In the event this sum is appropriated by Congress, it will be the first appropriated for the Warrior Lock and Dam for construction purposes.

Committee Assignments Unsettled—

Republican and Democratic leaders have not yet reached a decision on the size of various standing or permanent committees in the House. As a result, new members of Congress are still awaiting their committee assignments. With Republicans holding the majority of seats in the House, they will have several more party members on each committee than the Democrats. Since the division of Democrats and Republicans is so close, it may necessitate some Democrats giving up their present committee positions. With all the turn-over and reshuffling of committee memberships, the possibilities of a real choice of committees for new Democratic members is doubtful. However, every committee is an important one, and my interest is in working hard on any committee to which I am assigned.

BIRD ON THE BRAIN . . . A replica of the Virgin of Fatima was given France by Portugal. During ceremony a white dove of peace flew into the air and lighted upon the head of a former Communist converted to Catholicism.

A miniature double boiler for melting chocolate or small amounts of other foods is improvised by placing a small metal measuring cup inside one of larger size.

Lutheran Church News—

The Service 11.00.

Sunday School 10:00.

Everybody welcome.

Today I would like to conclude my articles on the Church Year by giving a condensed calendar of the days observed by the Lutheran Some of the festival days (i.e. days of religious importance) occur on the same day each year; others are changeable. Easter, for example, varies from year to year, but Christmas is always December 25. Using the 1952-53 solar calendar as a guide, the variable days will be placed in parentheses, the unchangeable days without parentheses. They are:

ADVENT (Dec. 7 to 25); CHRISTMAS — Dec. 25; EPIPHANY — Jan. 6; TRANSFIGURATION — (Jan. 25); SEPTUAGESIMA — (Feb. 1); SEXAGESIMA —(Feb. 8); QUINQUAGESIMA—(Feb. 15); ASH WEDNESDAY, beginning the Lenten Season (Feb. 18); GOOD FRIDAY — (April 3); EASTER — (April 5); ASCENSION DAY — (May 14); PENTECOST — (May 24); TRINITY SUNDAY (May 31) and the Trinity Season continues until the first Sunday in December, when Advent begins and the cycle is repeated.

James Roy Higgins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Higgins of Thorsby, has asked to become a member of the Lutheran Church. Accordingly, he is now being given doctrinal instruction by the pastor and will be confirmed as a member on Palm Sunday, March 29.

THE DECISION

Dorothy Boys Kilian

THEY WERE SITTING close together in the car at the depot parking lot and the light from a platform lamp revealed their downcast faces.

"Look, Margie," the young man said earnestly. "You've got to promise to join me in six months. We'll be married as soon as you arrive. The company will have a house ready for us by that time."

"Oh, Bill," Margie said, "Arabia is so far away, so absolutely different from anything I've ever known . . ."

"Yes, and it's as hot as Hades," Bill said. "But if we really love each other, what does all that matter?"

"I know it seems fantastic to you, Bill," Margie said miserably, "that I hesitate like this. But you've been away from home off and on for years, first to college, then on various jobs, while my whole existence has been here in Bridgedale. I know everybody, everybody knows me. The idea of going half way around the world alone, to live in a foreign place where I don't know a soul . . ."

"You'd know me," Bill reminded her.

"Yes, darling." Margie squeezed his hand. "And that ought to be enough. But somehow I had always pictured myself settling down right here. And then when you seemed to be all set here, too, everything looked perfect."

"I know this change of plans was a jolt, Margie, and coming so suddenly, too. But when the company offered me this assignment and a big promotion I felt I simply couldn't afford to turn it down."

"Of course you couldn't, Bill," Margie assured him.

"But, in the meantime," Bill said bitterly, "your old friend, Jim Bailey, is starting in business right here in town. Makes him fit into your picture perfectly, doesn't it?"

"Oh, Bill!" Margie protested.

"This is the time to put it straight, Margie. Do you really love him or me? I thought I knew the answer, but now I wonder . . ."

"Jim's a nice guy, Bill, but you're the one I love. I'm absolutely sure of it," Margie answered.

"But if I treck off to the other side of the world now and leave him on the scene . . . Oh, Margie, I'm afraid to leave!" Bill pulled her closer to him.

"The old biddy!" Bill exploded. "Why doesn't she mind her own business?"

"Don't be too hard on her," Margie said. "She's probably thinking of all she's missed in life."

"What d'ya mean?" Bill demanded.

"Haven't you ever heard her story?" Margie said. "She was in love with Ed Greves. But he studied to be a mining engineer and went to South America on a big job right after graduation. She was an only child, and her family finally persuaded her to give him up."

"And Mr. Watson?" Bill asked slowly. "He was a local boy?"

"Yes, he was in the bank here with his father. She married him, but everybody could tell her heart was never really in it. What a mistake she made!" Margie sighed sympathetically.

A short distance away the streamliner honked its strident horn, then the piercing gleam of its searchlight swept the tracks in front of them.

Margie fumbled for the door handle and stepped out on the sidewalk. She saw Mrs. Watson standing in front of the station. Her husband was there now too, looking at the evening paper in the light streaming from the ticket office window. Margie remembering the woman's hungry look, knew that Mrs. Watson was alone, terribly alone.

"Bill!" she cried out suddenly. "Bill, I . . ."

"All aboard!" a white-coated porter called. "Train stops here only a minute."

"Well, this is it, honey," Bill said quietly. "I guess all I can do now is hope."

"You can do more than hope, darling," Margie said. "I'll be there!"

Having those hot, steamed puddings for dessert often these days? They'll taste wonderful with cinnamon sauce which may be served hot or cold. Use juice from drained pears, season with cinnamon, thicken with cornstarch and add a bit of butter while still hot.

Have an easy casserole on these busy days. A good one uses a layer of sweet potatoes, covered with thick applesauce and is topped with pork sausage links. Bake in a moderate oven until sausage is cooked, about 30 minutes.

Your pot roast or leftover beef will take on extra appetite appeal when served with a relish of mixed cranberry sauce or jelly with mincemeat.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Dark Chocolate Bars
(Makes 16)

1½ cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
Dash of salt
½ cup shortening
2 eggs, well beaten
4½ squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Cream shortening, add sugar and beat well. Add eggs and beat until blended. Add chocolate and blend well. Add milk, vanilla, then flour and beat until just smooth. Spread thin in shallow loaf pan and bake in a hot (400°F.) oven 20 minutes or until done. When cool, spread with chocolate frosting and cut into bars.

A good snack to have after coming in from a cold night uses split English muffins which have been toasted and then topped with sardines spread with mustard and a slice of cheese. Broil until cheese melts. Serve hot.

Serve canned fruit juices as a first course. Mix with an equal quantity of ginger ale, garnish with lemon slices and cherries.

Here's a sauce for ham that looks as good as it tastes: Mix 1 tablespoon cornstarch, ¼ cup sugar, a pinch of salt and ½ cup tart red cherries. Add 1 tablespoon butter and 1 teaspoon ground cloves and cook until thick.

USED TO IT

By Shirley Hurley

Nathan and Orion were friends, which, on the surface, seemed unusual, because the former was a city man, dwelling on a noisy back street near the heart of a great shopping center, and Orion abides in the country, on the banks of a quiet, and quiet stream.

The friendship began in early childhood, when the two lived in a small suburban town. The community, because of its proximity to a large seaport, prospered and grew rapidly. Simultaneously upon being graduated from high school Nathan secured employment as assistant shipping clerk in the city and Orion became employed as helper to a wholesale firm that delivered products into the rural districts. Eventually, because of his many trips into the country, he had acquired a fondness for its quiet restfulness. Orion gave up his job with the wholesale house and invested his savings in a small farm. Here he settled down and lived comfortably as a truck gardener.

Nathan, visiting Orion in the country, betrayed a certain envy for his friend's contentment, and Orion, sensing this and eager for his old crony's company again, urged the other man to quit his job with the shipping company and come out into the rural districts to live.

And Nathan would nod his head and agree. "I'm going to do it. Pretty soon now I'm going to quit the shipping company and come out."

But the two men reached middle age and still Nathan clung to his job, because it paid him good wages and the work was easy.

Orion continued to talk, conjuring in the other man's mind a picture of peace and restfulness and fulness. And one night Nathan lay awake and thought of what Orion had said. Suddenly he became aware of all the noise and clatter that was going on about him. Outside a street car clanged past. From the next room there came the raucous notes of a radio. In the distance he heard sounds of riveting. The room where he lay was stuffy and hot, filled with scents from the streets and nearby docks.

So Nathan quit his job and bought a small place next to Orion's. He was pleased with his purchase. All about him there was peace and quiet, fresh air and fresh smells. Nathan wondered why he had waited so long.

The first night he went to bed early. But he couldn't sleep. He tossed and tossed and was more conscious of the quietude than he had been of the noise. Toward midnight he drowsed off. He awoke early and found that his head was aching. The day was hot and sultry and it was difficult getting himself in a pleasant frame of mind.

That evening he sat with Orion on the latter's porch and smoked his pipe and tried to convince himself that he was enjoying it. But, despite the smoke, the mosquitoes were pretty thick, and Nathan departed early to get away from them.

The day after that it rained and Nathan spent the time indoors. Orion had gone to town with a load of vegetables. Nathan wandered about the house like a caged animal. He felt restless and annoyed. The sound of rain on the roof was oppressive.

Two nights later Orion called at his friend's house and found the place locked up. There was a white envelope pinned to the door with his name written on it. The note enclosed directed Orion to sell the place for whatever he could get. He, Nathan, would be out soon to pay Orion a call, as he had been doing for years past.

Orion was not alarmed. He stuffed the note into his pocket and went home. He thought he understood. Sitting by his window in the stuffy room that had been his home for years, Nathan drew a great breath of unwholesome air and expelled it with a sigh of relief. A street car clanged by below him. From the next room there came the raucous notes of a radio. In the distance he heard sounds of riveting. But Nathan heard nothing at all.

Shedding Concerns New Carpet Owners

Auburn, Ala.—Owners of new carpets often notice that the surface seems to be shedding when walked on or cleaned with vacuum or carpet sweeper.

They frequently ask if this means they have a poor carpet or if the cleaner is wearing out their new rug.

In the making of pile carpets, such as Axminster, Wilton and Velvet, yarn is looped over wires, the wires are withdrawn leaving an uneven surface. The loops are sheared off to give a smooth, velvety surface. Some of the shearing are usually left in the rug and appear as fluff when the rug is used or cleaned for the first several times.

(Too late for last week)

Both services were well attended Sunday at Mulberry. Bro. Jones preached two very inspiring sermons. The Sunday School Supt., R. C. Veasey urges everyone that can to be present every Sunday this year. Let's all help him make a good attendance record for Mulberry this year.

Bro. Paul Oden is teaching a study course at Mulberry this week.

The librarian hopes you resolved to read more good books this year and will read the books we have in the library. There are some books out that are over - due. Bring them in and check out more. Orphelia Ann Conway is assisting the librarians with the books. You may turn in your books to her also.

Mrs. E. P. Carter has taken the job as manager of the Smart Shop in Clanton. She will appreciate your trade. She has resigned as worker at the Isabella lunch room. Mrs. J. D. Conway is taking her place there.

Mr. W. T. White is still confined to his rolling chair but is doing fine and enjoys company.

Miss Catha Conway of Masonic Home in Montgomery visited relatives in Clanton and Isabella since the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Whit Mahan of Clanton was Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Lee and Alenn. They attended services at Mulberry Sunday morning.

Pigs Saved Are Dollars Earned

Every pig saved puts dollars in the grower's pocket, and it really takes about five pigs per litter to break even.

"Therefore," states G. B. Phillips, API Extension hog production specialist, "the sixth pig in each litter is really the first money-making pig."

Realizing these facts, many farmers are finding that farrowing jackets or crates are excellent pig savers or money makers during the farrowing season.

United States Marines To Give Specialized Training

A majority of the college seniors and graduates who enroll now for the Marine Corps Officer Candidate Course which will be conducted in March 1953 will receive specialized training, Captain Ernest S. Lee, USMC, said today.

After completing basic officer training, 57% of the graduates of this program will be assigned to specialist schools at Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Virginia. The remaining 43%, he stated, will be assigned infantry billets.

"The need for college specialists is greater than ever before due to the present expansion," he observed. "Such courses as Supply, Engineering, Naval Gunfire, Motor Transport, Communications, Naval Flight Training and others are available."

Capt. Lee said officer training programs are open to both college graduates and seniors who graduate between now and March 1, 1953. Applicants may be married or single. He advised interested college men to contact the Marine Corps Recruiting Station, Room 316, in the Post Office Building in Montgomery or call 35328, for an interview.

Once selected, an applicant is enlisted in the Marine Corps Reserve and attends a ten-week training course at the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Virginia (35 miles from Washington, D.C.). Upon successful completion of this course, the candidate becomes a Second Lieutenant and serves for two years on active duty as a commissioned officer.

Application forms for the March class (and the July class, for June graduates), are available at Officer Procurement office. Captain Lee stated it is advisable for prospective candidates to apply as soon as possible.

Always Use Safe Electrical Cords

If using an electric extension cord when working around machinery or in damp locations, be sure the cord has a substantial rubber covering.

A tablespoonful of freshly ground coffee placed on a lid inverted over a kettle in which cabbage, cauliflower, or similar vegetables are being cooked will absorb the odors to a certain extent. The lid should be set slightly to one side so the steam will tend to curl over the coffee.

Instead of cutting a lemon for only a few drops of juice, just pierce it with a fork and squeeze out the desired amount.

Dropping a slice or two of lemon in the lower section of a glass double boiler helps to prevent the formation of scale.

Lions Win Opener—

The Chilco Lions were victorious in both ends of a doubleheader basketball game played at the County Training School Monday evening against the Elmore County Training School of Wetumpka.

These games were long anticipated by the students in that all previous games since December 1 had been postponed on account of rain.

The Lionettes, led by Gladys Bolding, a Senior, who scored 11 points, ran roughshod over the lassies of Wetumpka by a score of 27 to 17. Rosa Cole, a greenie in her first year on the team, was second highest with 7 points. Ruther Barbour and Jean Goodwin were also mainstays playing their first game with the team. Other girls playing excellent ball in the game were Mattie Gardner, Evelyn Wilson, Lucy Brown, Mary Woodson, and Myrtle Johnson.

The Boys took on Elmore's Boys in the second game and nearly duplicated the scores by winning 27 to 18. They played a see-saw defensive game with the scores deadlocked at the end of the first quarter 7 to 7. Elmore forged ahead and led at the half 13 to 12.

The second half began with Elmore making a final stab for victory as they whipped pass the Lions for a five-point lead in the third quarter. This was quickly expunged as four regulars riding the bench during the third quarter went back into the game at the start of the fourth quarter and pulled the game out of the fire. They were Willie McCoy, J. H. Rogers, Charles Shelton and Eugene Singleterry.

High scorers for the boys were Charles Shelton with 9, Willie McCoy with 8, and John Rogers with 5. Henry Shelton, Veteran Senior stalwart became confused during an official time out and when time was in again, pulled a Hudson High Annebelle giving Elmore two of the five points they led by in the third quarter.

Other outstanding Chilton County players were Horace Price, Odell Love, Jessie Burns and Roosevelt Campbell.

The Boys and Girls will journey to Montgomery where they will meet the strong Booker Washington Yellow Jackets on their campus at 1:00 p.m. Wednesday, January 7th.

Officials were John T. Sims and Robert Williams. — Reported by the Saint.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From M. A. Richard, Beaver City, Neb.: I remember when we attended 'old fashion' camp meeting that lasted three or four days. People would come from miles around to pray to God to help them in their daily lives.

From Mrs. J. S. S., Sharpsburg, Ky.: I remember when the highway through our town was an unpaved turnpike and how the dust from the road made the weeds and grass at the side of the road white. I remember, also, how the pike was oiled every summer. A tank-wagon was filled with oil and it was sprinkled on the highway much in the manner that highways are oiled today by trucks. In those days men would follow with sprinklers of oil to wet down those spots missed by the tank-wagon.

From Mrs. Reba Lewis, Eddyville, Ky.: I remember when as children we use to walk to school in rain and snow for as much as five miles. We always carried our lunch of biscuits, dressed eggs, sausages or some other meat we had available in the country.

From Clarence Roberts, Lawrenceburg, Ky.: I remember when the neighbors of our area use to set aside a week in winter to cut and store ice for use the next summer. Each neighbor would help the other until all the ice houses of the neighborhood were filled.

Dusting Your Winter Gardens

Sometimes it pays to dust winter gardens because certain leafspot diseases may attack the leaves of turnips, mustard, beets, and rutabagas. Also, vegetable weevils may destroy carrots and turnip greens, and often cabbage worms and plant lice can be found.

Muscadine Grapes Are Easy To Grow

John Bagby, API Extension horticulturist, says three to five vines should furnish plenty of grapes for the average farm family, and there will be enough left over for making jelly or preserves.

The Scuppernong is the old standard variety in the South, and it is still one of the best, adds the specialist. Other good varieties are Hunt, Dulcet, Creek, and Yuga. One plant should be of either the Tarheel or Wallace variety to pollinize the others as well as produce fruit themselves.

During the dormant season set vines 20 feet apart, and provide a fence or trellis for them. Use one-half pound of a complete fertilizer for each year of the vine's age up to six pounds per vine to greatly increase production, advises the specialist.

Every Crop Profits From Organic Matter

Organic matter is essential for profitable production of every crop, declares S. R. Doughty, API Extension soil conservationist.

He explains that it increases the soil's ability to absorb and hold water as well as utilize plant foods more fully.

"The organic content of soils cannot be increased overnight," admits Doughty, "but it can be built up slowly and surely by using a good system of terraces, contour cultivation, crop rotations, and applying fertilizers and lime to replace plant foods removed from the soil."

FUEL WOOD

December, January, February, and March are the months that the average family throughout the South burns 10 cords of wood.

Bottles with screw-on medicine droppers are very useful in the kitchen. They can be filled with flavoring extracts, fruit coloring, or any liquid you might wish dropped in small quantities.

Softening butter just taken from the refrigerator can be done quickly and without waste due to melting if a bowl is heated and then placed over the butter for a short time.

HOLLYWOOD has not yet fulfilled its earlier promise of satisfactory production of TV film . . . Hollywoodites wondered about it with the recent disclosure of the findings of the Gordon Levoy Poll across the country that live video shows continue to hold an edge over films as programming preference . . . FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Heard a lot of suttle ways to borrow cash, but the fellow that takes the cake is the fellow that J. E. Easterling told us about this week. J. E. said a certain banker told him that a fellow came into his bank to borrow some money. He tied his mule to the parking meter in front of the bank and had a single-tree across his shoulder. He told the banker he wanted to borrow some money to plant a crop. He didn't say whether the man got the cash or not.

Bankers aren't such a hard-hearted lot though, even if they are kidded about it. Every now and then one buys us a cup of coffee. Tuesday morning Louie Smith was drinking a cup of coffee at the Dixie about eight o'clock. When he finished he started out of the cafe and said with the straightest face: "Well, I'll have to get back to work." Funny thing is that he claims he really had already been at work.

* * *

We want to wish for Alene Johnson who was married last Sunday all of the finest things in life. She is a most deserving young lady and has many, many friends who we are sure wish the same for her. Alene has a personality that reminds us of a favorite saying of Will Rogers: We don't believe she ever met a person she didn't like. She married William Roy Jones at the Baptist Church last Sunday and they are spending their honeymoon somewhere in Texas on their way back to their work.

* * *

Naturally one thing reminds you of another, so we will tell you about the chaplain who went home and his wife asked him how went the wedding? "It was fine, until I asked the bride if she would 'obey' and she said, 'Do you think I am crazy?' Just about that time the groom, who was in a sort of daze, said 'I do.' Then things really began to happen."

We kinda think the ceilings around Clanton have got the fallitis. Now the ceiling in the private dining room at the Dixie Cafe has fallen. It fell the other night just after the Clanton Lions had finished their weekly meeting and no one was hurt. In fact, no one would have been hurt if they had been in there the ceiling being out of some sort of light board. But, anyway, it just seems when things like that get started they don't know where to stop. The next time you are indoors and you hear a crackling sound—brother, duck.

Cecil Ramsey has been manager of the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. Store here for the past seventeen years and before that was manager of others in various cities over the State. The other week he had a birthday and Jeff Miller, who is a close neighbor, took him a pound of Hill's Fit-For-A-King coffee.

Local Poultry Farmers Make Auburn Tour

Interest is running high among the nearly 30 Chilton County farmers that Wednesday morning made a complete tour of the poultry farm at API Extension Service Experiment Station at Auburn.

May of the farmers in this area have expressed strong feelings for the cage-laying process of egg production on a large scale. As a result M. R. (Red) Glasscock, county agent, arranged for the tour at Auburn. At the same time he called upon members of the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce to make the necessary transportation available.

As the tour progressed through the Experiment Station poultry project, men who made the tour became more interested in the possibilities and before the trip was over many expressed the desire to enter this cash-crop enterprise on a large scale.

The tour was conducted by Professor Paul D. King, Poultry Husbandman, who took the Chilton County Farmers through several exhibits, and at each exhibit conducted an open forum, allowing the would-be poultrymen to ask as many questions as they wished. Many of these questioners were very impressed with the operation and several felt that farmers in Central Alabama could very well offer the farmers of Marshall County some strong competition in the poultry business.

County Cattlemen Association Meets

Spirit ran high Monday night at a meeting of the Chilton County Cattlemen's Association in the County Agent's office as plans were formulated for the first 1953 meeting of the group to be conducted on Wednesday, February 4.

Mr. Ralph Mims, president, stated that plans have been made for an all-day meeting to be opened at 9 o'clock with the morning session to be devoted to an educational program. Mr. Mims also stated that a dinner of steak would be served at noon, to be followed by a tour of some of the successful beef cattle farms in Chilton County.

Many prospective members as well as associate and regular members will be invited to attend the program that will also be the kick-off for a concentrated membership drive in an effort to strengthen the local organization.

Monday night's meeting of the Cattlemen's Association also produced a promotion program designed to stimulate beef growers to produce a much better product in the county. This plan is awaiting adoption by the full membership at the regular meeting next month.

Officers of the local Cattlemen's Association include, besides it's president: Dick Arnold, vice-president; C. C. Fiquette, secre-treas.; and directors are Dr. H. M. Nix, Earl O'Neal, Hoyt Freeman and Charlie Patterson.

New County Officials Will Be Sworn In Monday Morning At Methodist Church

Dr. B. F. Tingle, Rev. M. K. Vickers And Dr. J. Gilbert Hutchinson To Take Part On Program

It will be a big day for many in Chilton County next Monday morning at 10 o'clock when the public officials elected in the November election are sworn in. The inaugural ceremonies will be held at the Clanton Methodist Church because of the bad condition of the courtroom ceiling at the courthouse.

Taking office on this occasion will be Dave Tingle, Probate Judge; Horsley White, Circuit Clerk; B. E. Reeves, Treasurer; V. J. Heard, Judge of the Inferior Law Court; Sherman Motley and Jim Dunlap as Members of the Board of Revenue and Control; Pope Payne and E. Span Jones as Members of the County Board of Education; J. C. Pattillo and M. D. Foshee as Justices of the Peace.

Chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee, J. B. Atkinson, has asked all members of the Committee to come at 9:45 o'clock to sit in a body at the ceremonies.

The Mayor and Councilmen of the four municipalities of Clanton, Jemison, Maplesville and Thorsby, have been invited and are expected to attend along with representatives from all schools in the county.

A special invitation has also been extended to all present county officials to attend the program.

SCANNING THE NEWS

WASHINGTON is agog over the inauguration and has talked about little else for the past two or three weeks. The inauguration of Dwight Eisenhower will be, of course, one of the big news stories of the year. Behind the scenes, however, speculation continues as to whether there is a possibility of a split between the executive and legislative branches of the administration in the very near future.

Most news stories out of the Capitol during the past week indicate that the Republican administration is determined to launch a strong legislative program that will keep the GOP in control of Congress two years from now.

A number of news stories have pointed out that the inaugural ceremonies skip lightly over Eisenhower's Army background. One float touches upon his West Point period, but that one has a big football as the point of interest.

● Meanwhile, as the nation focuses its attention on Washington, activity in Korea has increased during the past week. Red troops have increased their pressure against the South Koreans. The Reds seem to be trying to break the fighting spirit of the South Koreans with bullets and propaganda.

The pressure has caused Gen. Mark Clark to announce that American soldiers serving behind the lines will have to spend more time in Korea because of a shortage of replacements.

This may be part of the reason the Defense Department has announced a draft of 53,000 for January, the largest number in many months. Dispatches indicated this high draft call may be continued for much of this year.

● Elsewhere in news, Stalin's much discussed replies to a number of questions submitted to him by The New York Times has simmered down to the belief that it is all propaganda. News analysis this past week have generally come to the conclusion that the Stalin statements represent nothing more than another Kremlin propaganda move. In his replies Stalin indicated that he would be willing to meet with Eisenhower, he didn't think war with the U. S. inevitable, and the U. S. S. R. will cooperate to end the war in Korea.

● A hint of things to come in the near future was given when the House Small Business Committee urged the abandonment of price, wage, and material controls. The committee said, in part, this move "would provide a smooth transition back to free competition."

This problem of controls will be one of the first pressing problems of the Eisenhower administration. Wage, price, and rent controls expire April 30 under present law. Priority and allocation controls over scarce materials will expire June 30.

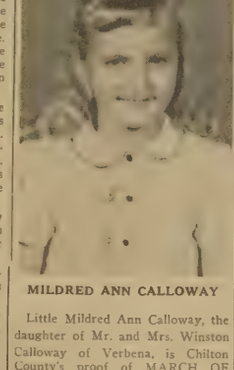
The question is whether the new administration will take action to extend them or let them die their natural death?

The House Small Business Committee does not believe that prices will rise if ceilings are removed.

● As a new cabinet takes over the government in Washington a big question, and a newsworthy one, is being asked by political observers. Just how well can a President trained for the Army, and a cabinet trained in finance and business, get along with the politicians?

It is an unanswerable question, of course. But this much is certain: These business men and Eisenhower can not succeed unless they learn to understand and tolerate politics and politicians, the men in congress who must go before the voters of their districts for periodical election.

Polio Victim Cured Thru Aid Of March Of Dimes



MILDRED ANN CALLOWAY

Little Mildred Ann Calloway, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winston Calloway of Verbena, is Chilton County's proof of MARCH OF DIMES assistance! Ann was stricken with polio in the late summer of 1949 and was affected in her right leg and foot and in her spine.

She was sent to the Warm Springs Foundation in Georgia for physical therapy treatments. After detailed instructions by the doctors there, she was sent home with exercises which she was to follow four times daily. Through the persistance of her parents, and through her own determination to continue her exercises, Ann is now a normal nine year old girl. Her leg muscles are almost perfect and her spine is evenly balanced.

She goes back to Warm Springs every six months for a complete check-up and X-rays. Her treatments are now paid for by her parents, but they credit the March of Dimes research and therapy with making her well again. Mr. and Mrs. Calloway, together with little Ann, urge every man, woman and child in Chilton County to support the Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. They know how terrible it is to have polio strike, and they can testify to the great work accomplished through the March of Dimes.

Since the end of World War II the U. S. has exported about 160 million tons of coal, exclusive of shipments to Canada.

Announces Milk Producers School

County Agent Red Glasscock has announced a one-day milk producers school to be conducted in Clanton on January 23. He pointed out that one of the principle topics for discussion would be the development of artificial breeding in Chilton County as well as other important phases in the county's dairy program.

C.C.F.T.G.A. CONDUCT FIRST 1953 MEETING

The Chilton County Fruit and Truck Growers Association are scheduled to conduct their first 1953 general meeting in Thorsby at 7 o'clock February 4, 1953.

At that time, according to Mr. Jim Williams, chairman of the Directors meeting that was conducted last Tuesday night, there are some very important projects and business to be discussed at that time. Mr. Williams urged that all members and prospective members of the association be on hand for this important meeting.

At last Tuesday night's meeting plans were laid for an extensive educational and publicity program during the next few months in an effort to tell farmers what the Association is doing and what it can do for the farmers of Chilton County.

Peach Authority To Attend Peach Growers Meeting

A familiar figure to nearly all peach growers, Dr. John Weinberger, Senior Horticulturist, Fort Valley, Ga., experiment station, and other authorities in peach production will be on hand for a meeting of the Chilton County Peach Growers to be conducted in Clanton January 27th.

Red Glasscock, county agent, said that Dr. Weinberger would be at the meeting for the purpose of bringing up to date the peach growers on variety development and pest control practices. Mr. Glasscock pointed to a bright year for the county peach festival.

The Lions And The Magician

The Clanton Lions Club brought to Clanton last week one of the country's top magician entertainers. Mr. Birch did every thing he contracted to do plus a whole lot more. The box escape trick was one of the slickest mysteries ever to come this way. Another one that completely baffled the audience was how he quartered the lady in the box. This trick was different and very intriguing. A few other interesting feats were: Catching fish from the audience with a cane pole and using worms for bait, making a real live pony disappear, taking twelve alarm clocks among many other things from Jim Fort's hat, and shooting a live bird from a gun barrel.

The children, especially, enjoyed the affable Mr. Birch, and they were called upon to preform in several of the experiments. Young Clark Hutchinson, Johnny Jackson and little Miss Mary Mell Martin added much to the success of the show.

Everyone who attended will agree that Mr. Birch the Master Magician was an outstanding entertainer and presented Clanton with a clean wholesome family production.

The Lions appreciate the very kind interest of those that attended. Proceeds from this show will go to help underprivileged children of Chilton County to better sight.

C Of C Agricultural Committee Backs Milk Production

Members of the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce Agricultural Committee voted Tuesday morning to present to the Board of Directors of the Chamber a resolution to broaden it's promotion and assistance to the great farming industry of the county.

This resolution was presented at a meeting of the committee Tuesday morning in the offices of the County Agent at which time a full discussion of the committees activities for 1953 was brought out.

The committee voted among other things to continue it's promotion and help in promoting further the county's output of milk, which in the past 12 months has grown by leaps and bounds.

At the same time the committee voted to add the promotion and help to the poultry industry in the county. According to Chairman Red Glasscock, the poultry industry in Chilton County is right on the verge of spreading to nearly every farm in the county and the County Agent feels that the county has a good chance of coming to the front in poultry raising. This in itself will increase the county's income by several thousands of dollars, according to Chamber officials.

The committee further voted to ask the Chamber to again sponsor the Chilton County Peach Festival, lend support and aid to the Thorsby Fruit and Truck Growers Association.

The Chamber's Agricultural Committee is headed by Mr. Glasscock. Other members include James Dennis, Chick Carleton, P. J. Norwood, Pope Payne and Olin Fields. Also attending the meeting was Probate Judge Parrish.

Nation's Tuberculosis Death Rate Declines; Case Numbers Remain Same

Although tuberculosis remains a major medical and public health problem in this country, the disease took only one-third as many lives in the U. S. last year as 20 years ago.

There are now 1,200,000 cases of tuberculosis in the nation, according to the latest estimates, and in 400,000 of these the disease is active. About 250,000 of the active cases are outside of hospitals and sanatoria, and of them 150,000 are either undiagnosed or unreported.

In addition, each year approximately 115,000 new cases occur which require medical treatment and supervision.

The number of known tuberculosis cases has changed little, although there has been a rapid decline in the number of deaths

One reason is that many more cases have been discovered due to the great increase in chest X-ray examinations, especially in hospitals, in pre-employment and periodic medical examinations industry and in community-wide tuberculosis detection campaigns.

Moreover, persons with tuberculosis now live longer, thanks to the increase in facilities for treatment, the employment of effective surgical methods in advanced disease, and the use of antibiotics and other drugs.

The death rate from the disease last year was approximately 18 per 100,000, less than half of the 1946 rate. Only 15 years ago it was nearly three times as high.

The death rate in the United States from all causes last year was 9.6 per thousand, the fifth year in succession with a rate lower than ten.

The wife just reminded me that the banks will be closed next Monday. It's a legal holiday in Alabama, but few people realize it because there's not much observance except by the banks.

It's a shame, too, because it's Robert E. Lee's birthday, and if ever there was a hero whom the South should honor, it is Lee.

My great-grandfather drove a six-mule team in the supply train with Lee's Army of Northern Virginia. I always thought it kind of good that during World War II I was a truck driver—the modern-day equivalent of old fellow.

Throughout history little notice has been given the men who sailed the ships, drove the wagons, or the trucks to keep armies at the front supplied.

But historians now agree that perhaps the biggest thing which contributed to the defeat of the South was that, after the Federals cut the major rail lines, there was no transportation system which could supply the armies in the field. While Lee's men starved in Virginia, there was food to spare in behind the lines. How different the outcome might have been if there had been motor trucks in those days. Trucks are not confined to fixed routes, but can go anywhere there's a road—and often where there is none.

BRIDGE OVER THE COOSA

We hope that the county and state officials can get together on plans for a bridge over the Coosa River on State Highway 22. Nowhere in the State is a bridge more badly needed to accommodate east and west traffic.

Too, it would be an added stimulant to business between Coosa and Chilton counties. At present the outmoded ferry is too inconvenient and very distasteful to many motorists who do not relish that kind of transportation.

MARCH UP AND HELP

The County Committee headed by Rev. Fred Lowery and Rev. M. K. Vickers directing the March of Dimes drive this year are busy as bees in a tar bucket trying to reach the county quota.

We hope that their aim will be realized, and we hope that you care enough to march up and help out in this worthy cause. Your donation may be small and you may feel that it isn't enough, but every little donation counts, and if you can afford to give please contact one of the local committee members and do your part.

IT IS IMPORTANT

It may not seem very important to some people if merchandising should be centralized in a few of the big cities, and the home town merchant disappear for lack of trade. But a glance at the local tax lists will reveal what it would mean in loss of taxes to the local community to say nothing of the loss of improvements and the decay of the town. But outside of all the drawbacks to a locality from loss of trade and the shifting of the benefits of trade and business to big congested centers, there is another and even more important fact to be considered. And that is the possibility of a retail trust organized and controlled by the mail order concerns. All they need to do to control merchandising is to get control of 33 percent of the retail trade. Once that is accomplished they can absolutely monopolize the retail business of the country and fix the prices of merchandise for they will be able to control the manufacture and output of goods. They can then offer inducements to the manufacturer that will shut out the marketing of their goods except through the monopoly.

So that is another strong point in favor of patronizing home trade. If you send your money out of town you are not only depriving yourself and your community of further use of your money, but you are aiding in the establishment of a retail monopoly that can and will fix the price of goods once they get control.

As an opponent of monopoly and the filching of large sums out of the people by organized greed, we feel that we must oppose anything that leads to the organization of such things that are dangerous to the interests of the people.

Read the series of home trade advertisements of the business men of Chilton County in this issue of the News who are awake to the dangers of this situation and wish to call attention of the people to it by a friendly discussion of the problems through the community newspaper.

From the Toledo Union Leader, Toledo, Ohio.

A fascinating human - interest drama unfolded in the federal court in Toledo the other day. It appeared that one George W. Sponsler had pleaded guilty to taking $7,500 from the bank for which he had worked and had ultimately repaid it but the judge was more angry with the accuser than the accused.

Judge Kloeb noted that Sponsler had worked for the First National Bank of North Baltimore, Ohio for 32 years. He began at $20 a week and in 1942 his salary had increased to the magnificent sum of $36.50. Between 1920 and 1941, Sponsler took small sums from the bank which he used to keep his family going.

Judge Frank Kloeb was so incensed at the officials of the bank who kept Sponsler "living like a pauper," that he let loose: "If I had the authority I would sentence the bank's officials to read the story of Scrooge at Christmastime." And the Judge went on to observe. "If the bank was decent, when this shortage was discovered it would have marked off the loss from its surplus funds without any publicity or embarrassment to this man." And to Sponsler, he said, "I am sorry you are here."

All of which means that paying miserly wages, that taking undue advantage of other human beings in financial affairs and placing corporate and personal profit ahead of the welfare of people, can be as great a crime as theft.

From The Advertiser, Saranac, Michigan:

Perhaps you have been one of many people interested in the thrilling Swiss mountain climbing attempt of Mt. Everest—the unconquered mountain of India.

We have learned via reports last weekend that the group, which started their climb on November 20, failed short of its goal by only 150 feet.

This is the furthest that anyone has ever climbed the gigantic mountain, estimated to be almost 30,000 feet in height.

We have been particularly interested in the efforts of one fellow, Raymond Lambert, who like other "Gets-in-my-blood" mountain climbers, had an obsession to reach the top of the mount.

Although others must have been saddened by their defeat at the hands of terrific adverse elements of nature, Lambert must have been especially crestfallen.

Lambert a headstrong German, who has spent his life—outside of fighting in German wars—climbing mountains, wanted to reach the top of the mount more than anything else. He failed before.

Lutheran Church News—

The Service 11:00; Sunday School 10:00. Everybody welcome.

"What is God's plan for the salvation of my soul?" This is a question that is asked frequently by those who seek God's forgiveness for their past, present, and future wrong-doings. I would like to give you three steps that will aid you in your quest for God's peace and the complete assurance of the forgiveness of your sins.

First of all, you must accept Jesus Christ as your personal Saviour; there is no other way (John 3:16-18; Actsi 4:12; 16:31; and Romans 5:1-2). Notice, I did not say, "join the church," but rather "believe in Christ." Church membership is not for unbelievers, but only those who have made a profession of faith in Christ. I fear that many people join the church under such false pretenses, thinking that by so doing their salvation is assured. Not so, dear friend, if you have not opened your heart to Jesus in humble, penitent faith; you could join every church in Chilton County and still be not one step closer to God. Faith is the first and necessary step.

The second step is baptism. Baptism confers the forgiveness of sins and is essential to salvation (Mark 16:16; Acts 2:38; and I Peter 3:21). Baptism delivers you from sin by assuring you that God has forgiven you of all your sins.

The final step is church membership and frequent reception of the Lord's Supper, which places the final seal on your salvation. After you join the church, then continue steadfast in the faith it teaches until life's end, and you will be received by God into your heavenly home.

There is an excellent Christian television program, entitled, "This Is The Life," which may be seen Sunday evenings at 6 o'clock on Channel 13. This program is sponsored by the Lutheran Church.

ISABELLA

On account of so many of our people being ill there were small congregations at both services Sunday at Mulberry. Bro. Jones preached two very inspiring sermons.

The Chilton County Quarterly meeting met at Mulberry on Wednesday night with a large crowd present. The devotional, Thy Word A Lamp, was given by Mrs. Eugene Matthews. The program, "The Word of Life in the Homeland—Our Samaria." The Missionary message was given by Rev. L. E. Daniel in the morning.

Lunch was served in the basement at the noon hour.

After the business meeting in the afternoon the missionary message was given by Mrs. J. O. Richardson of Prattville.

The Study Course, taught by Bro. Paul Oden last week, closed Friday night after a week of very interesting study.

The attendance at Isabella School is off on account of so many of the pupils and teachers having the flu. There has been someone sick with flu or cold in almost every home in our community, but some are improving.

Johnson-Jones Vows Read At First Baptist Church In Clanton

The marriage of Miss Alene Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Johnson of Clanton to William Roy Jones of Florida and Texas, was a lovely affair which took place on Sunday afternoon at the First Baptist Church in Clanton. The Rev. Gilbert Hutchinson officiated at the ceremony.

The musical program was rendered by Mrs. Raymond Mims and Joe Douglas Grooms, accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Erle Ellis. Mrs. Mims sang, "A Pledge From the Wedding Song," Mr. Grooms sang, "Because" and they both sang as a duet, after the final vows were made, "The Lord's Prayer." Mrs. Ellis played as the processional Lohengrin's Wedding March.

The altar of the church was decorated with large baskets of white gladioli, greenery and was flanked by seven-branched candelabra.

The bride's little neice, Joan Johnson, and nephew, Richard Ellison, lighted the candles.

Mr. Vernon Payne and Jerry Ellison served as ushers.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Mrs. Bill Ellison of Mobile, who was dressed in a suit of beige.

The bride was lovely in a white gaberdine suit with navy accessories and she carried a white prayer book with an orchid as her bridal flower. She was given in marriage by her father.

The groom was attended by his brother, Jim Tom Jones, from Fort Myers, Fla., who served as best man.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's book was attended by Miss Eleanor Lewis.

The tea table was covered with a lace cloth, centered with a three-tiered white wedding cake, embossed with red rosebuds, and flanked by single tall white tapers in crystal holders. The punch was served from a crystal bowl by Mrs. Vernon Payne and Mrs. Norman Johnson.

Some 50 guests called during the afternoon.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mrs. W. R. Jones, the groom's mother, and Jim Tom Jones, of Fort Myers, Fla., Mrs. W. S. Jones of Buena Vista, Ga.; Mrs. W. T. Jones, of Roberta, Ga.; Mrs. H. D. Daniel, of Cordele, Ga.; Mrs. H. C. CHILTON COUNTY P.-T.A. COUNCIL MEETING

The guest speaker will be Mr. Stone, from Jacksonville State Teachers College. His topic will be, "Citizenship."

Missionary Societies Have Planned Focus Week For Young People

Something new, January 18-23, W.M.S. Focus Week. For years in mother-like fashion Missionary Societies have planned Focus Week for their young peoples organizations. Now for the first time let's have one for women.

We will have five important aims as we labor together with God:

1. To focus attention of the church and community on the purpose, work and value of the Woman's Missionary Society.

2. To focus attention of the W.M.S. members on the purpose of the Woman's Missionary Union.

3. To focus attention of officers to their particular responsibility and opportunity, each having some special activity for the week.

4. To enlist the unlisted.

5. To extend the influence mission.

On Friday you might have a tea or reception with the unlisted women as specially invited guests, or have a social hour following prayer meeting and invite the entire church.

Organize a society in a nearby church. We have five unorganized in Unity Association: Providence, Floyd, Pleasant Valley, New Prospect, and Evergreen.

Pastors, we need your words of encouragement and support on Sunday, January 18th, recognizing the W.M.S. and using our watchword, John 4:35, as a text.

Ask the music director to use the W.M.S. hymn for the year, Christ For the Whole Wide World. The other songs might be missionary too, such as, Here I Am; Send Me, O Zion Haste, Jesus Calls Us.

Ask the president or some other woman to speak briefly on the chief aim or fundamentals of Woman's Missionary Union as we begin our W.M.S. Focus Week.

May each of us pray as never before for the work in Unity Association and around the world, that we, as Christians, might lift up our eyes and look on the fields for they are white already to harvest, and laborers are few.—Mrs. Henry T. Ousley, W.M.U. President.

CIRCLE ONE MET MONDAY

Mrs. W. E. Huddleston was hostess to eight members of Circle One of the Methodist W.S.C.S. on Monday afternoon.

The meeting was called to order and Mrs. J. N. Suite read the Scripture and gave opening prayer.

The business was conducted by the co-chairman, Mrs. Jack Armstrong, during which the Mission Study Book, which will be taught each Monday evening for four weeks, beginning Monday, January 19th, was discussed. All members were urged to attend.

Cake and coffee were served by the hostess.

STUDY CLUB MET

The Study Club met on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. Watts Moore, hostess for the January meeting. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Joe Mullins presided. Previous to the devotional which was dedicated to Mrs. Mallie White, a beloved member of the Study Club, whose death saddened her co-workers, Mrs. Mullins conducted a most fitting and beautiful memorial to the memory of "Mrs. Glennie."

During the business session, consisting of routine reports from officers and chairmen, a contribution of $5.00 was made to the March of Dimes, and a communication read from Mrs. Oliver Esco, secretary of Chilton County Chapter of American Red Cross, thanking the Club for their generous response to the Christmas Cheer project for the veterans at hospitals.

Mrs. Mullins then yielded the chair to Mrs. J. R. Mullins, director for the January program, who introduced the speaker for the afternoon, Mrs. J. Gilbert Hutchinson. For the presentation of the program, the receiving rooms which were made lovely with choice cut flowers thrown into one to accommodate the large number of invited guests. Mrs. Hutchinson's address—in a pleasing and direct manner—interestingly covered many angles of Hawaii, it's people, it's picturesque customs and historical landmarks, and contrasted cleverly against the colorful background of earth, sea and sky. Mrs. Hutchinson punctuated her address with beautiful souvenirs brought from Hawaii.

A salad plate and coffee were served to the guests from the buffet, which was centered with a beautiful arrangement of tropical fruits, accentuating the theme of the program.

UNITY QUARTERLY MEETING

The W.M.U. of the Unity Association held its quarterly meeting at the First Baptist Church, Clanton, on January 6th at 10 o'clock. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Ousley. The devotional message was brought by Dr. J. Gilbert Hutchinson. The Missionary speaker for the meeting was Mrs. J. O. Richardson of Prattville. She used the program theme as her topic, "The Word of Life in the Homeland—Our Samaria."

Old and new business was taken care of and several recommendations brought before the Association.

The April meeting will be held in groups.

When you're serving any of your favorite cuts of beef, try those large Spanish onions as an accompaniment. Bake them in cream or scoop out and fill with sauteed mushrooms for a really elegant vegetable dish.

Make a lovely dessert with meringues put together with sweetened whipped cream when you're having guests for dinner. Some frozen berries spooned over the top will add a glamorous touch of color.

Dried herbs soaked in a bit of milk before you add them to ground meat for meat balls will season them delightfully. Soaking in milk helps them regain their flavor.

Recipe of the Week

Orange Raisin Pork Chops
(Serves 4)

4 pork chops
1 to 2 oranges
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
⅛ teaspoon allspice
1¼ cups hot water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ cup orange juice
¼ cup raisins

Flour chops, brown and sprinkle with salt. Remove orange rind with sharp knife; free orange sections from membrane and lay two sections on each chop. Make sauce as follows: mix together sugar, cornstarch and allspice. Gradually stir in hot water and cook until thick. Add lemon juice, orange juice and raisins. Pour sauce over chops and cook over low heat for an hour. Serve topped with sauce.

Use your bits and ends of pie crust for turnovers for the children's snacks or lunches. Apricot marmalade mixed with cranberry sauce is a good filler and so is orange marmalade with cranberry jelly.

Make your next gingerbread in two layer cake pans. When it's baked and cooled, put the layers together with apple butter and top with swirls of whipped cream.

Having neighbors in for an afternoon cup of tea or coffee? Toast bread on one side, then butter untoasted side and spread with brown sugar and broil. Cut in strips to serve.

On Jan. 6 the feast of Epiphany, which is also known as Children's Christmas, was held. The children of the Chapel of the Resurrection presented a program at the Chapel's Christmas Crib, observing this feast of manifestation of Christ's Glory. First when the wise men from the East adored Him; second in His Baptism when the Voice from Heaven proclaimed Him Son of God; and third, the miracle at Cana, when Christ began His miracles and "Manifested" His Glory. At the conclusion of the program the children received gifts from their pastor, the Rev. Walter Mikosz, C.R.

I am sure all of my readers enjoyed and appreciated the nice write-up in The Birmingham News Friday, January 9th, 1953, regarding Dr. Robert A. Martin, Veteran Pell City physician. Pell City observed Dr. Robert A. Martin Day. Dr. Martin, a native of Plantersville, and a brother of Dr. T. M. POPLAR SPRINGS

We were happy to have more out for Sunday School and worship service than we had for some time, but we are not satisfied for there are so many more who should be in Sunday School and worship service each time. All who were absent missed a great message from God's Word by our pastor.

We missed our Training Union Director Sunday night. He was not able to come. But glad to have the assistant director in charge. He carried on the service in a good way.

We are still praying and looking for each one to come to prayer service who haven't been coming each Wednesday night.

We are grateful to Mrs. Russell Scott, Mrs. Eugene Matthews and Mrs. J. W. Johnson of Thorsby, and Mrs. Fred Lowery of Liberty Hill for coming down Friday night, even though the weather was bad. We are sure all enjoyed the books they taught. And we say, "thank you," again for coming.

Mrs. Nora Cook is visiting Rev. and Mrs. N. E. Cook for several days.

Rev. and Mrs. George Smith, who have moved away to Florida, stopped by for a few minutes visit and a cup of coffee with Rev. and Mrs. N. E. Cook one day last week.

We say, congratulations to Miss Janette Wilson and Hubert Thomas who were married in the home of our pastor Saturday afternoon. We wish for them a long, happy and successful married life.

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

Several farmers have asked the price and the advisability of planting kudzu seed. In small lots, five to ten pounds, the price is $3.50 per pound, f.o.b. New York, N.Y. In hundred pounds or up, a much lower price. There are enough people wanting to plant kudzu seed to get over the 100 pound rate. If you are interested in planting kudzu seed, estimate the acres you want to plant and multiply by three or four pounds to get the amount of seed you will need. It will be necessary for everyone to pool their order to get the reduced rate, so contact the office and give us the amount you want.

If you are choosing between kudzu crowns and kudzu seed, the deciding point will be labor, and whether the area has been idle three or more years. Unless you have plenty of hoe-help don't plant kudzu seed on land that has been in cultivation during the past few years. If you plan to plant kudzu crowns—dig your own crowns and plant at least 1000 per acre as soon after digging as possible.

* * *

For several years we have been destroying kudzu as fast or faster from overgrazing than we have been planting it. Start now to build back the acreage of kudzu because it is one of our best soil builders, erosion control plants, hay and limited grazing.

* * *

Sericea lespedeza is going to be high-priced and scarce. Make preparation now for your seed.

Clean Coastal Bermuda stolens are limited, and every effort should be made to confirm the orders that are already placed.

Make your choice as to the perennial grass or legume you can best use and plant, and begin now to get planting material.

That Shy Guy
By Clarence Sydney

BILL WATCHED as she moved by in the arms of the dark haired man. She was perfect as far as Bill was concerned. With her laughing pixie-like face and her compactly well curved figure.

She was the type of girl he had dreamed of all his life, and never hoped to find. And now that he had found her, there was the dark haired man.

Bill watched them dance. He felt rather out of place at the party, but you can't refuse to attend when the invitation comes from the boss. It was the office anniversary party, and all the personnel from all the departments were there.

Being new in the office, he knew only the small group that worked in the audit section. There was Jack, Tony, Don, Martha, Fred another man named Bill—and her. Her name was Lois, and he had said less than a score of words to her in the four days he had been with the company.

He watched her and the dark haired man—he was named Jeff, and he was a vice president in the company. They danced well and Bill was painfully aware that they had danced together often.

Not like when Bill had asked her for a dance. Then he felt clumsy, Lois faltered and followed raggedly. She was quick to learn, and by the end of the number, she could follow his lead easily, but not as she followed Jeff out there now.

The music ended, and Bill glanced around to see where the couple had stopped. They were looking across the floor at him, and talking. They started over in his direction.

"How are you enjoying the party, Bill?" Jeff asked.

"Fine. Just fine."

"Why not take Lois over for some punch? I have to see Mr. Baxter for a few minutes."

Bill was elated. "Would you like some punch?" he asked.

"Very much," Lois answered, and her smile made her whole face light up. When she smiled like that, Bill thought her the prettiest girl he had ever known.

They had the punch, they had a dance, and they had still another dance. Bill glanced around and saw Jeff standing off to one side, talking to the blonde telephone girl. Jeff smiled and nodded as Lois and Bill danced by.

There was something in the smile, or the attitude of Jeff that got under Bill's skin. How could a man be so obviously confident of a girl's love to leave her with another man so long?

Bill made a decision. For tonight, he was going to change. He turned quickly to Lois. "How about us getting out of here? I'd like to talk to you. Ever since I first saw you, I knew that you were . . ."

He broke off as a heavy hand pounded his back. It was Jeff, his face still wearing that aggravating grin despite what he had heard. And he couldn't have mistaken what Bill was trying to tell Lois. "How are you two enjoying the party?"

Lois smiled impishly. "Apparently Bill isn't enjoying it too much. He wants to leave."

Jeff laughed. "You know what Bill means. He would rather have you all to himself. Right, Bill?" He nudged Bill.

Bill felt his face flush hotly. Jeff grinned at Lois. Angrily he said, "That's right. I want to tell her I love her, and . . ."

"Hey. Jeff broke in. "Wait a minute. Don't go telling me that. Get out of here. Go on, both of you. Tell her, Bill, not me."

Lois gripped his arm. "Gosh sakes, yes. I want to be the first to hear it, anyway. Then you can go around telling other people." She started to lead him to the door.

Bill followed confused. "But Jeff . . . I thought that he . . . you . . ."

Lois smiled and her face shown brightly. "You tell me first. Then we can tell him. After all, I think the girl ought to know about it before her brother, don't you?"

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

What's this going on down at the Goodyear Store? Nothing but girls, boy, girls. Jim and Mrs. Brasseit are the proud parents of a girl. Ed Clark and the Mrs. are parents of a boy and George Davis and his Madam are parents of a brand new young lady. George has been transferred to Selma as manager. Confidentially we think the Goodyear employees are partial to girls, or was this the mothers' idea —or maybe the storks.

This is going to be great fun. Either Grady Carter or Leland Hudson are going to parade down main street dressed as a horse when this March of Dimes Drive is completed. Seems Grady and Leland have wagered that each will collect the most money for the Drive and the loser has agreed he will don the horse collar, bridle, and other formal attire of a horse and parade through town wearing same. Each have a disc-jocky program and each will play any record you request just so long as you are willing to make a contribution to the March of Dimes.

After months at sea, the sailor finally got leave in England and wandered by chance to Coventry where they have an annual parade of Lady Godiva. There he noticed that crowds were gathered. All staring up the street. The sailor stopped to see what kind of procession was going to come along. After waiting for some time, he turned to the man beside him and asked what everyone was waiting to see. "A parade," exclaimed the man. "The big feature will be a naked woman on a white horse." "Yeah!" exclaimed the sailor. "I'm sure going to wait for this. Why, I haven't seen a white horse in years."

Certainly enjoyed an hour Sunday afternoon with King West when we called at his home at Lomax. He was alone with his television and thoroughly enjoying himself keeping up with what was going to happen Tuesday when "Ike" took over as president. He also related a tale that will bear repeating that happened many years ago. He probably knows enough to fill a book being that he will reach his 80th birthday this year. Anyway, back to the tale. Several years ago a friend of his on a nearby farm was made the Administrator of an estate of a friend who had died. Now he worked his farm with his son and after many, many days of having to work the farm alone because his father was in town looking after the affairs of the estate he was administering, the son was getting a way behind with his crops. One day he told King West, "I wish Dad would hurry up and get done administrating so he could help me outta this grass."

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

Committee assignments and changes highlighted the week's activities in Congress. Both the House and Senate entered the final stages of organizing their standing or permanent committees.

The House changed its rules to permit Republican members to serve on more than one major committee, Republican floor leader, Rep. Charles A. Halleck (R-Ind.) said this was done to overcome his party's slim majority in the House. With 221 Republicans to 211 Democratic members in the House, it is necessary the Republicans fill at least 237 committee posts to be certain they will have a majority on every committee. Rep. Halleck said the rules were changed for this Congress only to meet "a special situation."

I was very fortunate in being appointed to the important Committee on Veterans Affairs which is responsible for handling all veterans legislation in Congress. Unlike most House committees, it has no "twin" committee in the Senate.

Because of the many military installations in our State, the other Alabama representatives and I had hoped for my appointment to the Armed Services Committee. However, an Armed Services appointment for me at this particular time was impossible since there were vacancies for only three Democrats. These vacancies were filled by Democrats who had served in Congress for at least two terms previously and held seniority over me.

A major committee, the present Veterans Affairs Committee was formed during the 79th Congress under the Legislative Reorganization Act. The committee was actually a consolidation of three former House committees which had divided phases of veterans legislation among themselves. The present Committee is responsible for legislation affecting 19½ million veterans in the United States.

Many To View White House—

At this writing all of Washington is busy planning inauguration services and festivities. Flooded with visitors, the Capital is putting its best foot forward to be sure all who visit this city will not be disappointed in its hospitality, its historic buildings, and its beautiful scenery.

One of the main sightseeing attractions is, of course, the White House. Many inauguration visitors will view it for the first time. For a number of others, it will be the first time they have seen this historic building since its face-lifting which was completed in March, 1952. I am looking forward to a tour of the "new" White House myself within the next few days.

The first public building to be erected in Washington, the palatial White House has been the home of Presidents of the United States for more than a century and a half. Its cornerstone was laid on October 13, 1792, after George Washington had selected the site; but it was not finished for occupancy until President and Mrs. John Adams moved in some time during November, 1800.

During the War of 1812 British forces captured Washington and burned the White House to almost complete destruction. A re-building program was begun in 1815, and the White House was ready for President Monroe when he moved in during December, 1817.

Throughout its history the White House has kept in step with modern improvements. Water was piped into it in 1834, and gas lighting introduced in 1848. Other changes, including wiring for electricity, were made as needed. A swimming pool was added while Franklin Roosevelt was President in order that he, a polio victim, could use the pool daily for his health.

A thorough examination of the White House in 1948 proved the house was in an extremely run-down condition structurally. This examination inspired Congress to appropriate a total of $5,761,000 for its complete renovation. President Truman and his family moved across Pennsylvania Avenue to historic Blair House when the rebuilding program was started in 1949. With various difficulties hampering their progress, construction crews did not complete the renovation until the spring of 1952.

The present White House includes 107 rooms and 20 baths and showers. Before the renovation there were 62 rooms and 14 baths. Previous to the renovation there was only one elevator; now there are five.

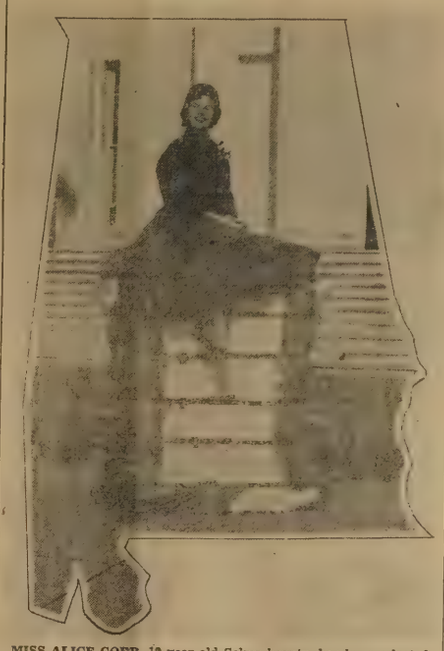
Eighteenth Century furnishings predominate throughout the White House, although all furniture of historic importance has been retained.

An interesting fact about the social life of the White House is that there was only one wedding ever to take place in this famous home. The wedding of President Grover Cleveland to Miss Frances Folsom took place there on June 2, 1886. The two were married in the historic Blue Room which is famous for its elliptical shape.

More Veto Power—

A bill destined to gain importance in Congress soon is one which gives the President authority to veto specific items in appropriations bills. After its introduction in the House, it was referred to the Judiciary Committee for study.

The present law limits the President's veto power on appropriations bills. He must either accept the entire bill as it comes to him from Congress or must veto the whole measure. Supporters of the proposed bill contend the President should be allowed to disapprove of parts of an appropriations bill without vetoing its entire contents.



MISS ALICE CORR, 19-year-old Selma beauty, has been selected to represent the nation's cotton industry as the 1953 Maid of Cotton and will tour the U. S., Canada, Europe and South America. Miss Corr will also function as "Alabama's Goodwill Representative," an assignment by Gov. Gordon Persons, on her world tour. A sophomore at the University of Alabama, the new Maid of Cotton is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Corr, of Selma. She was chosen in the finals of the National Maid of Cotton Contest, in Memphis, from a field of 22 cotton states beauties.

Junior Chamber Plans A Local Organization

Another civic organization seems to be in the making for either Chilton County or Clanton, this time in the name of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

One day last week Ben Hobson of the Extension Committee of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Birmingham was in Clanton and as a result of his interviews with several younger men of the city a meeting of all interested people has been called this Friday night at 7 o'clock in the Clanton City Hall auditorium. At that time, according to Mr. Hobson, the objectives of the organization will be explained and if interested in a local Junior Chamber warrants, a local organization will be set up with the election of it's permanent officers.

GROSS EARNINGS AT MOBILE PORT OVER FOUR MILLION

Mobile, Ala. — State Docks Director Jerry P. Turner says that gross earnings at the Mobile port and terminals facility totaled $4,053,779 for 1952.

Net revenue was $1,390,798, Turner said. He said this year's net earnings were more than the combined net earnings of 1950 and 1951.

Speaking of the expansion, Turner said the State Docks had been credited with being the principal factor in attracting some $100,000,000 worth of industries to the Mobile area.

Chilton County Holds Inauguration Service

Ten Take Oath Of Office; Receive Bible In Impressive Service

History was made at the Clanton Methodist Church Monday morning when the newly elected officials of Chilton County's government were sworn into office by Circuit Judge Oakley W. Melton before a record crowd of nearly a 1000 people, including many from the schools of Chilton County.

Folks from every walk of life, past county officials, many members of the governments of our towns and cities of the county, schools officials and many others sat and watched and listened to the very impressive ceremony, which was conducted throughout by the general [illegible] and the [illegible] Luther Litt[illegible]

It all began [illegible] November of last year, on the day after the [illegible] when several of our [illegible] were gathering on the front steps of the Chilton County Courthouse. At first the idea did not seem to catch on, but apparently as the idea began to take seed in the minds of those men, and as they continued to discuss the matter with others the County Democratic Executive Committee appointed Mr. Little as the chairman of the County Inauguration Committee. And so, on the day after election day in November, 1952, Chilton County began to make history, which was culminated in Monday morning's ceremony.

As the services began, the proverbial pin could have been heard had it been dropped on the deep-carpeted floor. Dr. B. F. Tingle, superintendent of the Tuscaloosa District of the Methodist Church, whose son, Dave Tingle, was sworn in as the next Probate Judge, opened the services by conducting the invocation.

Next on the program was the singing of three songs by members of the Glee Club of Chilton County High School, under the direction of Lamar DeLoach. This was followed by Mr. Little, whose theme was: "Local Government and how it serves and effects all of our citizens."

Immediately after Mr. Little's impressive address, the program was turned over to Judge Melton, who administered the oath of office as the new candidates gathered around the podium placing their hands on the Bible.

When this was done and the candidates had returned to their seats in the choir loft, the presentation of the Bible to the new Judge of Probate, Dave Tingle, was made, a Bible to be placed in the courthouse and to be used on other such occasions. The ceremonies were closed by Dr. J. Gilbert Hutchinson.

As the huge crowd began to leave the church all of the comments heard were of praise of Mr. Little and his committee as well as members of the County Democratic Executive Committee for fostering such a service. And all was praise for those who took part in the 45-minute program. Many of the spectators gathered on the podium after the program as well-wishers and to shake hands of the new candidates and wish them luck and success in their new jobs.

Bible Study Being Held At Methodist

On Sunday, January 18, 1953, the Methodist Church began a very interesting study, "Toward Understanding the Bible," by Georgia Harkness. Rev. Vickers is conducting the study, and it will continue through six consecutive meetings to be conducted at 6:00 p.m. on Sunday evening. There were 51 present at the first meeting, and we hope that everyone will take this invitation to be present at any or all of these lessons.

The kindergarten and primary groups met with Mrs. O. W. Miller and Miss Ada Bennett for their regular evening service.

The M.Y.F. Group met with Mr. Ed Propst for their program.

After the regular church service, the entire group met in the basement of the church for an enjoyable fellowship hour. Refreshments of coffee, cookies and sandwiches were served, while the members visited with one another.

By 1819 the population of the Alabama country was almost 128,000. About one-third of this number were slaves. The slaveholders were located mostly in the valleys of the greater rivers, the Tennessee, Tombigbee, Alabama, Black Warrior, Cahaba, Coosa, and Tallapoosa. Among them were a number of planters who owned large plantations and many slaves. Most slaveholders owned only a few slaves. The land of the small farmers and squatters extended back from these rivers into the interior.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Enter The New Year With Feeling Of Thankfulness

To enter a New Year—or even a new day—is to tread the path of the unknown. Sometimes we feel that it might be easier if we never had to cope with the unknown; but, life is growth. We would not have it otherwise. We have powers an dabilities within us that we have but half used and so we are not completely satisfied even when the conditions of our lives are most peaceful and serene.

So, let us enter the New Year with a feeling of thankfulness for what has gone before and for what is yet to come. We have faith in the goodness of God and faith in the power of God; and, we know that He will not fail us.

In this New Year the path that seems so clear and straight now may have unexpected turns, but the certainty of God's care prepares us for the turns in the road. Through this year and every year we are safe and secure in God. Our steps are taking us forward and with our hand in God's we shall not fail. With our faith strong in Him we now go forward to meet the best year we have ever known.

Hill Renews Fight To Save Tide Land Oil Royalties

Senator Lister Hill (D., Ala.,) has renewed the fight for his proposal to use oil royalties from the submerged coastal lands to relieve the financial crisis in the Nation's schools and colleges. The Alabama senior Senator has been joined by Senator John Sparkman and nineteen other Senate colleagues in the re-introduction of the Hill Oil for Education Amendment to the controversial Tidelands Oil Bill to have Congress dedicate the royalties to the long-range needs of primary, secondary and higher education and for national defense purposes.

"The decisions of the highest court has held that this oil belongs to the people of Alabama and to all the American people, not merely to the people of three States — California, Texas, and Louisiana — whose claim is no more than that they were born next door to the oil deposits," Hill said. The effect of the 'Tidelands Oil Bill will be to nullify those court devisions and give the oil to just three States."

In a Senate speech, Hill described "the vastness of the treasure" in under sea oil, calling the oil deposits "a great new land resource" worth at least 50 to 100 billion dollars.

Hill told his Senate colleagues that "they offer the greatest opportunity to American education since the dedication of a large proportion of our public lands to establish and maintain grammar schools, high schools, great State universities and land grant colleges in every State."

Hill explained that the amendment would authorize the use of the royalties for urgent defense purposes during the present emergency so as to relieve the "taxpayers of that amount of further tax burden."

The Senate vote on the Oil for Education Amendment was so close that a switch of 6 votes would have meant its adoption.

IF—

If we noticed little pleasures as we notice little pains—if we quite forgot our losses, and remembered all our gains—if we looked for people's virtues, and their faults refused to see—what a comfortable, happy, cheerful place this world would be.—Tampa Sun Dial.

SUCCESS FORMULA

Work hard, spend wisely and save your money—and you may have enough to pay your income tax before March 15th. — Evergreen Courant.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

The communists, fellow travelers and "liberals" who have been picketing the White House seeking to save atom bomb spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg who are condemned to death had their ranks increased this past week, but the new picket was not welcome. Twenty-five-year-old Gene Wheeler joined the pickets wearing sign demanding the death penalty for the Rosenbergs and "anyone else who jeopardizes the freedom of American loving people."

The Rosenbergs played an important part in delivering the atom bomb secrets to the Russians. They are traitors and should be punished as such, and will be. Death is too good for those who would "sell out" their own country to a foreign power and the fact that it is done under the guise of "political belief" is of no matter. Let 'em sizzle so that others may know that Uncle Sam punishes traitors. — Evergreen Courant.

PARKING METERS

The appearance of parking meters on Commerce street is not being met with what might be called an enthusiastic reception. In fact there are those who seem to disapprove of the whole idea. There are those who might approve, but they are not as loud-spoken as the other, and apparently, larger group.

Nothing that has happened in many a day has caused as much comment as the parking meter posts which went into the ground up and down Commerce this week.

Many of those who discuss the matter—and few other matters have been discussed—contend that the city should have installed the parking meters before clearing up the trafic situation with the enforced one-hour parking law.

At any rate, we have parking meters, and we'll get used to 'em—if our nickles hold out.—Greenville Advocate.

STEVENSON'S ROLE

Governor Adlai E. Stevenson, out-going Governor of Illinois, has not yet made definite plans for the future although he is reportedly planning to retain the titular leadership of the Democratic Party. In this role, he may face a bid for more conservative elements within the Democratic Party to take control.

The Democratic Presidential nominee is moving to Chicago, where he will set up an office, although whether he will practice law or not immediately is not clear. On tap for him this year is a trip to the Orient, including Korea, and it is said that only after this trip will he finally determine his course for the next few years.

There is no indication that Governor Stevenson is stepping down from his position as No. 1 Democrat. On the contrary, he has said he wished to speak out on vital issues from time to time and there is evidence that he and Stephen Mitchel, National Committee Chairman, are determined to complete a reorganization of the party and National Committee and maintain the Party's liberal tack.

Mr. Stevenson is soon leaving for a vacation and the British West Indies is reported to be his destination. He is expected to leave for the Far East about the first of March and in the ensuing days he will make at least two major speeches, A glance over this schedule will convince most observers that Governor Stevenson is still politically-minded and is planning to assume an active role in the Democratic Party. He seems certain to be the No. 1 caretaker of the Democratic Party's fortunes in the next four years.—LaFayette Sun.

He was a million dollar producer in the life insurance business and consequently did not have time to operate the flying school. So she went to work at the airport and for the next two years that flying school was the big black beast in her life. The succession of managers hired began to shift more and more of the responsibility on her and she simply did not have the ability to handle it. She knew little about airplanes and no matter how hard she tried, they kept going in the red.

CARNEGIE

It finally got to the point where she hated the word airplane. She cringed at the sound of one flying overhead. She would lie awake at night worrying about them and about letting her husband down. They were going to lose $20,000.00. She had knots in her stomach and thoughts of going out to the airport would actually nauseate her. She was afraid she had stomach ulcers.

Then her sister came to visit her. She saw what Shirley was doing to herself and told her that if she didn't quit worrying she would have a nervous breakdown. She added that if she had done the best she could and couldn't change things, to quit worrying about it. Then she gave the best advice Shirley says she ever received: "Live each day unto itself."

It wasn't easy, she declares, but that is how she managed to get through the next year.

When they closed the doors on the flying school they had lost $20,000.00 but she had learned a valuable lesson she says. Nothing in this world is worth the worry she devoted to that flying school.

She passes on to you this suggestion: If you ever find yourself in a situation that causes you nothing but worry and grief and you can't change things for the better, then get out of it. If you can't get out of it, the only thing you can do is to live in daytight compartments.

Important Message To Air Force Reserve Officers

Major General Charles E. Thomas, Jr., commanding general of fourteenth air force, today sent out an appeal to Air Force Reserve officers who have not as yet accepted their permanent commissions to do so without delay. The reason for immediate action on the part of reserve officers is the time element which is stressed in the new program and was fixed by Congress. Sixty days after the Air Force reserve officer receives his letter offering him a permanent commission the offer becomes invalid, and the reservists' commission is to expire on 1 April 1953 or on the expiration date of his present five year appointment, whichever is later. The entire program is beneficial to the individual American taxpayer in that it does away with the administrative workload formerly required to renew reserve commissions every five years. The acceptance of an indefinite appointment by Air Force reserve officers has no effect on reservists military status, date of rank or Air Force serial number. No physical examination is involved. Indefinite commissions do not obligate reservists for "life" service. An Air Force reserve officer may tender his resignation for valid reason the same as he could under five year apointments. These new commissions have no liabilities or requirements not present in the five year term appointments. If you have not received your reappointment letter, address an inquiry to headquarters 14th Air Force, Attn: DRONA, Robins Air Force Base,, Ga. For further information contact your nearest Air Force Installation or to the headquarters mentioned above.

Chilton Businessmen Urged To Attend Big Exhibit In Atlanta

Businessmen of Chilton County are being given an opportunity to view possible market products of the future at an exhibit to be presented by the United States Department of Commerce in Atlanta, February 11 to 13.

According to Paul W. Jones, District Manager of the Commerce Department in Birmingham, Ala., the exhibit, sponsored by that agency's field service, and to be held in the Exhibit Hall of the Atlanta Biltmore Hotel, will be designed primarily to show manufacturers and other businessmen possibilities in the expansion and development of their own production operations.

It will also be of interest to students of technology and technicians generally, it was stated.

The exhibit, will be open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. each day, and will be participated in by three divisions of the Department of Commerce concerned with technological work, the National Bureau of Standards, Office of Technical Services, and U. S. Patent Office. Also cooperating will be the Research Division of the Department of Defense.

Models, material and research reports will feature the exhibit, with a corps of experts in science and research on hand to explain the "know-how" of each.

In addition, a file of some 3,000 government-owned patents now available on a royalty-free basis will be shown through the cooperation of the Government Patent Board.

If a pan is rinsed in cold water before heating milk in it, the milk will be less likely to stick to the bottom of the pan.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

THE GLANDS

Growth of the body and the emotions are regulated by the glandular system through which flow the internal secretions. The glands include the thyroid, pituitary, parathyroids, gonads, adrenals, pancreas, thymus and spleen.

The pituitary gland has been called the master gland because its secretions act on other glands to make them secrete their hormones, chemical substances which are produced in some of the organs of the body and then transported by the blood to other areas where they produce specific effects.

The thyroid is situated in the neck, and its secretions importantly influence the size and weight of the individual. The parathyroids, several small glands situated beside the thyroid, maintain calcium balance. The pancreas secretes insulin which is necessary to the body because without it sugar cannot be properly used. The gonads secrete sex hormones which control the reproductive functions and the secondary sex characteristics such as the feminine form and the masculine beard. The adrenals exercise many complex effects on blood pressure, muscular and nervous functions, the energy level, resistance to infection, sex and other phases of life.

To determine whether a small person is normal is often difficult, since heredity plays a role in the height of many persons. There are, however, general manifestations in the growing child which suggest the need of an examination by the family doctor. A child of 8 or 9, for example, should have a certain physical development for his years. A watchful parent will be aware of any deficiencies. Abnormal development of the genital organs is a distant manifestation of inadequate glandular function. Sluggishness and a sort of mental stupor are other indications.

Authorities agree that the proper age for treatment and remedial correction of glandular insufficiency is the period of puberty during the ages of 11 and 12, although some remarkable accomplishment has been noted at various other ages.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

We've been trying to find a new name for a little boy around our house this week: The three-year-old has decided that since he will soon be four years old he needs a new name for the occasion.

"I'm just so tired of this old name I've got," he complained. "I need a brand new name."

The only trouble is that nobody has been able to suggest a name he's willing to adopt. He absolutely refuses to consider a name of anyone he knows, in either real life or fiction, already has it.

He tried to interest the six-year-old in choosing a new name for herself, too, but she explained to him: "No, I won't change my name until I get grown. Then when I meet a man with a name I like, I'll marry him and then his name will be mine."

Simple, isn't it?

* * *

Our family likes food flavored with onion, but I do dislike peeling the pesky things. Just thinking of a bout with an onion makes the tears start. Not even the saddest radio soap opera, and they do have some touching tragedies, can compete with the lowly onion in bringing a flood of tears from my eyes.

I've tried holding the onions underwater, putting two kitchen matches in my mouth like tusks and other equally foolish tricks while I peel, but I still cry.

Now the next door neighbor has come up with a remedy she positively guarantees. If it doesn't work, she promises to peel all my onions for me for the next three months. And here's what she says do:

Spear a hunk of bread, about an inch big, on the point of the knife used in peeling onions. She claims the bread absorbs the tear-producing fumes before they reach the eyes.

* * *

It was this same neighbor, of course, who taught me two new tricks to use in preparing baked potatoes.

First, she says, you should boil the potatoes for about five minutes to heat them thoroughly. This brief boiling will cut the necessary baking time in half.

Then after they are boiled and have been lightly oiled, put them in muffin tins to bake instead of letting them roll around loose in the oven.

Cut two pounds of fresh ribs into pieces 3 or 4 inches square. Melt 2 tablespoons margarine in saucepan over low heat. Add ¼ cup soy sauce, ½ cup chopped onion, 1 clove minced garlic, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon celery seed and 1 tablespoon flour. Simmer 5 minutes, stirring often. Pour sauce over ribs which have been placed in shallow baking dish. Bake in moderate over for an hour, basting occasionally. Garnish with pineapple slices.

From The Shamokin Citizen, Shamokin, Pa.: Going from neighbor to neighbor, her eyes brimming with tears, a little five-year-old girl sought help for her mother. Little Louise Chianello, of New York, overhearing her father's frantic telephone calls in his efforts to solicit blood donors for his critically ill wife, decided that her mother could best be helped by her direct appeal: "Please help my mommy so that she can come home again."

Like the worried father, she sought the precious life-giving whole blood that could restore her mother to her. To such an appeal, hardly anyone capable of giving would turn a deaf ear.

To the pleading of others who have sought the gift of health-restoring blood, many of us have turned our backs. Giving to the Red Cross bloodmobile unit is not so emotionally satisfying for the unimaginative who cannot envision the little girl in tragedy's background. But frequently the plea is made, and often the opportunity presents itself to answer a little girl's prayers for help.

To the Red Cross most of us who are in good health can give blood to those who are in desperate need. If we are sensitive enough to the plight of others, we will foresee the need before it becomes desperate. To the nameless mothers at death's door we can offer the assurance that lack of whole blood will not deny the chance of life. We need never find ourselves shamed at the pleadings of a little five-year-old girl whose mother needs our blood.

Millions and millions of dollars were poured into the election fight by professional labor bosses. And they lost every dime of it. The money didn't come out of their pockets, of course, but came from the union treasuries—from the dues of hardworking union members.

From Wilmington Morning Star, Wilmington, N. C.: The government, since President Roosevelt launched his NRA, has piled special agency upon special agency, with spendthrift frequency, so that thousands of federal employees have been getting in each other's way, listlessly duplicating each other's tasks, at the expense of the taxpayers. Surely this can be curtailed, if not wholly eliminated. The tens of millions of dollars to be saved on federal payrolls obviously would help reduce government tax bills.

A GOOD RESOLUTION

THE CUSTOM AT this time of the year of making "good resolutions" is highly commendable. However, these resolutions should be definite and few in number. A clutter of vaguely formed resolutions is hardly better than none at all. In fact it may well be that concentrating on overcoming just one fault will find us closer to God next January.

There is one resolution which hardly anyone may not vow to keep. It is one which can make the New Year a richer and more satisfying one both for himself and those with whom he comes into contact. This resolution is: to be a kinder person.

Some good people may take umbrage at the suggestion that they are not consistently and uniformly kind. It is nevertheless true that few people are kind under all circumstances.

There is no limit to the ways in which kindness can be more assiduously cultivated. Responding readily and generously to Red Cross and other appeals is an obvious one. So is making more frequent visits to sick friends or relatives.

Real kindness can be shown by patience with the shortcomings and faults of others; by refraining from hasty or ill-tempered conclusions; by warm words of praise and encouragement to those who need a little "pepping up"; by keeping a rein on the tongue when the temptation is to "blow off steam." In homes, especially, the kindness of forbearance and patience is always of vital importance.

Traffic Campaign Outstanding Says Governor Gordon Persons

Montgomery, Ala.—Gov. Gordon Persons, reaching the half-way point in his administration this week, says he believes the traffic campaign has been the prime accomplishment of his campaign.

Promising to continue his drive against useless highway slaughter, Persons said the 60-mile-an-hour speed limit order is the "most important" feature of the job. "Traffic safety will get prime consideration in the next two years, even if it saves only one life," Persons emphasized.

Governor Persons said the legislature would be asked to write a "satisfactory" speed law when it convenes in May, to replace the present restriction on fast driving put into effect by gubernatorial proclamation.

An old law allowing the speed zoning of some parts of highways was extended by the governor in November, 1951, to cover the entire length of many highways. It puts 50-mile limit on night driving and a 60-mile restriction during the day.

In reviewing the work of his administration at the close of two years, Persons mentioned these accomplishments since Jan. 15, 1951:

Increased state aid to mental hospitals, raising the per patient allotment from $9 to $11 a week.

Passage of a 3 per cent sales tax to replace the old 2 per cent levy, thus "keeping the public schools from having a complete breakdown." Sales tax revenue is earmarked for education.

Prison system improvements, including abolishment of the lash.

The governor also called attention to the pardon-parole system. While there have been "some mistakes, there have been no scandals," he declared.

TO GET REPORT FROM PARTLOW COMMITTEE

Montgomery, Ala.—State Sen. Joe Foster says that the legislative committee named to investigate conditions at Bryce [illegible] and Partlow State School [illegible] will begin writing [illegible] report [illegible].

Foster, of Jefferson [illegible] and committee chairman, said after meeting in Tuscaloosa Jan 20, members of the group would come here to prepare the report for presentation to the legislature when it meets in May.

The committee also includes: Sen. Amos Jones, Luderdale County, and Reps. William F. Baker, Lauderdale, Sim A. Thomas, Barbour, and G. B. Mathison, Sr., of Henry County.

ALABAMA INDUSTRY DAYS PLANS ARE MADE

Montgomery, Ala.—Final plans for Alabama Industry Days—April 27 through May 2—will be drawn up in a Montgomery meeting on 20 of Jan.

Paul A. Redmond, president of Alabama Mills, Inc., and Chairman of the Alabama Industry Days Committee, said "This year's observance of Alabama Industry Days will be the biggest in the history of the annual event." He urged community leaders from throughout the state to attend.

Redmond pointed out that "Alabama's Industry Days are designed for local communities and each community may enter the celebration independently of the rest of the state.

D. Trotter Jones, executive vice president of Associated Industries of Alabama, said, "This program for honoring Alabama's industry has always succeeded because of effort put forth on the community level.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

The furnishings of the early cabins were as crude as the cabins themselves. Everything was homemade with tools which were few and crude. Beds were made of split boards or small round poles which rested upon forked poles. On these boards or poles, straw, grass or leaves were piled, and this was covered with bear, deer, or buffalo skins.

Frontier cabins had no closets Extra clothes were hung on pegs driven into the log walls. Of course, there were no bathrooms. If a frontiersman wanted a bath, and it was not often that he did, he could fill up a wooden wash tub with water and climb in. Most of them usually waited until summer and then took their baths in the nearest creek.

POLICE SGT. JOHNSON was in a quandary. Two red hot tips, either of which would have determined his activities for the evening, had come in within the hour.

At 6 o'clock a strange voice had advised him over he wire that Red Salano and members of his gang were planning a hold-up at the Van Dyke charity ball, scheduled for that evening on Riverside drive. Curiously, Sgt. Johnson had previously scheduled himself to act as plain-clothes man at that very function, following a request for police protection by Mr. Van Dyke.

The second hot tip had come three-quarters of an hour later. Another strange voice had warned the sergeant that Shelia Hemingway was planning to elope that night with Robert Montmerecy. The match was much against the wishes of both parents. The elopement was planned for 11:15.

Here was a problem. Raymond T. Hemingway, father of Shelia, was high in the city's politics. If Sgt. Johnson succeeded in foiling his daughter's matrimonial enterprise, he would certainly win the favor of Raymond T. Would the favor of Raymond T. be more valuable than the glory of capturing Red Salano? Sgt. Johnson frowned and thought deeply.

There was, he reflected, another angle to be considered. Detective Harry Stone, the sergeant's underling, had ambitions. He wanted to be a sergeant. In short, he wanted Mr. Johnson's job, and he wanted it badly. Mr. Johnson disliked Mr. Stone immensely for this reason.

Sgt. Johnson pushed a button on his desk. Five minutes later Detective Stone stood before his superior.

"Detective Stone," said Sgt. Johnson, "I am about to assign you to a very important mission. A hot tip has just come in, advising that Red Salano is planning a holdup at the charity ball being held at the Van Dyke residence on Riverside drive tonight. You will take the necessary men and—do what you can."

"Sgt. Johnson," replied Detective Stone, "I have already been assigned to the Van Dyke case by Lt. Smith. And you know it. I was to accompany you there."

"But I'm not going, you idiot. I'm giving you an opportunity to do the job yourself, thereby attaining personal glory. You need not mention the fact to Lt. Smith that I am not planning to accompany you."

Detective Stone saluted and went out. Sgt. Johnson began to prepare for his night's work. He had decided that the favor of Raymond T. was of far greater value than the glory of capturing Red Salano. Moreover the Van Dyke job was dangerous, suited, so to speak, to an idiot like Detective Stone.

• • •

At 10:45 Police Sgt. Johnson secluded himself in some shrubbery close by the drive leading up to the Raymond T. Hemingway estate. From his position he could command a view of the house and grounds.

There seemed to be a party in progress at the house. The sergeant reasoned that it would probably be when the party was at its height that Miss Shelia would attempt to escape.

In his surmise the sergeant was correct. Shortly after a distant clock chimed the hour of eleven, the policeman saw two figures running across the lawn. They carried suitcases.

Sgt. Johnson set out in pursuit. Sounds of his lumbering footsteps caused the fleeing couple to halt. They seemed startled and undoubtedly would have continued a headlong flight, had not the sergeant let out a yell that included words pertaining to the law and the police.

Mr. Montmerecy thrust himself in front of the girl.

"Sorry to spoil your party, Mr. Montmerecy, but 'lopin' is against the law, especially when the girl's under age and hasn't the consent of her parents.".

"Eloping! Say, stupid, we've been married two hours. We're just trying to get away without being detected."

"Sounds logical enough. But I happen to have the inside dope. Lets go back and check up.

Mr. Montmerecy protested violently. But Sgt. Johnson was out after high favor. He half pulled, half dragged him back toward the house. Shelia trailed along behind, shrieking threats and explanations.

Sounds of the struggle attracted attention. From the house there now poured half a hundred people, headed by no less a personage than Raymond T. himself. The great man took in the situation at a glance and bristled.

"What's the meaning of this? What's happened? Can't somebody explain?"

Sgt. Johnson misinterpreted the craving for enlightenment. He grinned from ear to ear.

"I brought 'em back, Mr. Hemingway. Been watching more than half an hour. Ain't the first time I caught elopers, either."

"Elopers! You idiot, my daughter and Mr. Montmerecy were married two hours ago in this very house."

Sergt. Johnson's jaw sagged. He felt the blood rushing to his face, and heard folks laughing. He tried to speak, failed, turned and fled. At the gateway to the drive he paused. An automobile blocked his passage.

• • •

"Hello, Sergeant," said the voice of Detective Stone. "Say, we got Salano and his whole gang. Swell haul, what? Promotion for yours truly, maybe."

Sgt. Johnson swallowed. "You—you—how the devil did you know I was over here?"

Detective Stone coughed, looked wise, stuck his tongue in his cheek and said: "Now, wouldn't I be an idiot to tell you that I knew who it was that gave you the hot telephone tip about an elopement? Wouldn't I though? Especially when you don't want the lieutenant to know where you were tonight."

"And Lot pitched his tent toward Sodom."—Genesis 13:12.

The names of certain people in the Old Testament invariably suggest wholesome lessons for the encouragement of the readers thereof. With that in mind, it would be well for the intelligent student to write on the margin of his Bible where Lot's name occurs, the word, "Beware."

In most particulars Lot was a sensible man. In a crisis that involved the welfare of his entire family his stand for decency was commendable. But because of a terribly weak spot in his character the destiny of his household as well as of himself had already been determined by a deliberate decision that he had made a long time before the crisis came. "And Lot pitched his tent toward Sodom."

An oft repeated tale is that. Like most of us, Lot had no idea what he was getting himself into, when he parted company with his wise old uncle Abraham and followed the alluring road to the rich valley of the Jordan. He was so fascinated with the prospect of financial gain that he simply overlooked the danger ahead—that of losing everything of permanent spiritual value to his family and himself, becoming absorbed in the voluptous life of one of the wickedest cities on earth, his doom was sealed.

Many a real man with bright prospects and gifted with ability has followed the road that Lot traveled always with same result.

We wonder why people haven't more sense than to jeopardise every prospect for a bit of material gain. By way of reply it may be said that so many people fail to catch the long range view of things. They confuse temporal with eternal values. "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush," they think. Old Omar wrote wisely when he gave this quatrain to his oriental readers:

"The worldly hope men set their hearts upon,
Turns ashes; or anon,
Like snow upon the desert's dusty face,
Abides a little hour and is gone."

Another cause for a sensible young person falling into the trap that caught Lot and his family is that he yields to the temptation to take the easy road. Our Lord's warning is in place right there: "Wide is the gate and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction; and many there be which go in thereat."

Many years ago Justice Brewer of the United States Supreme Court delivered the address to the Graduating Class in the Yale Law School. In his peroration he said: "Young men we must remember that the things that are seen are temporal, while the things that are not seen are eternal. I exhort you to follow the road paved with eternal verities. Thereby you will find the meaning of life at its best."

Lot evidently suffered with a kind of moral opthalmia—moral blindness. Tragedy followed as it will always do.

THORSBY NEWS

ESTELLE HAYES

Lutheran Church News—

A prayer for our new President. Almighty God of our Fathers, Who hast ordained human government for the temporal welfare of mankind; we call upon Thee to invoke Thy blessings upon our new president, Dwight D. Eisenhower. Be Thou his Counsellor and Guide. Grant that he will place the welfare of his country above narrow partisanship, and shun the counsel of the selfish and avaricious. May he always seek Thy Will so that he and his associates may enact wise laws and administer them justly, that our peace and freedom may be secure. Endow him, O Lord, with the leadership qualities of Moses; the wisdom of Solomon; and the courage of Elijah so that he may govern with prudence and justice. This we humbly pray in the name of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. Amen.

The annual meeting of the congregation was held this past Sunday immediately following the service. The budget drawn up by the church council was officially adopted by the congregation. The congregation was informed that a small piece of the cemetery property had been deeded to the county as a right-of-way for the paving of the road; and that the Alabama Power Company had been granted permission to move their poles and cut several trees that were in the way. Several other items of minor importance were discussed and disposed of. The meeting was adjourned by unison praying of the Lord's Prayer.

W.M.S. Plans Focus Week For Women

Something new, January 18-23, W.M.S. Focus Week. For years in mother-like fashion Missionary Societies have planned Focus Week for their young peoples organizations. Now for the first time let's have one for women.

We will have five important aims as we labor together with God:

1. To focus attention of the church and community on the purpose, work and value of the Woman's Missionary Society.

2. To focus attention of the W.M.S. members on the purpose of the Woman's Missionary Union.

3. To focus attention of officers to their particular responsibility and opportunity, each having some special activity for the week.

4. To enlist the unlisted.

5. To extend the influence mission.

On Friday you might have a tea or reception with the unlisted women as specially invited guests, or have a social hour following prayer meeting and invite the entire church.

Organize a society in a nearby church. We have five unorganized in Unity Association: Providence, Floyd, Pleasant Valley, New Prospect, and Evergreen.

Pastors, we need your words of encouragement and support on Sunday, January 18th, recognizing the W.M.S. and using our watchword, John 4:35, as a text.

Ask the music director to use the W.M.S. hymn for the year, Christ For the Whole Wide World. The other songs might be missionary too, such as, Here I Am; Send Me, O Zion Haste, Jesus Calls Us.

Ask the president or some other woman to speak briefly on the chief aim or fundamentals of Woman's Missionary Union as we begin our W.M.S. Focus Week.

May each of us pray as never before for the work in Unity Association and around the world, that we, as Christians, might lift up our eyes and look on the fields for they are white already to harvest, and laborers are few.—Mrs. Henry T. Ousley, W.M.U. President.

The earlier settlers depended greatly upon animal skins for clothing. Deer skins were easily tanned, cut and sewed; therefore, they were most useful. They were tough enough to withstand hard wear when made into trousers for hunters or farm laborers.

Some of the earlier settlers wore the famous "hunting shirt" made of deer skin. This big sleeved shirt hung loosely from the shoulders and reached to a point between hips and knees. The shirt was open in front, but it was full enough to be wrapped around and held in place with a belt. The bosom above the belt made a useful container for extra food or any trticles, that needed to be carried.

What You Read Here May Save Your Life Later

Birmingham, Ala. — Careful reading of a magazine article was strongly recommended today by an American Cancer Society official as one means of saving many lives from mouth and throat cancer.

Mrs. Lillian G. Meade, executive director of the Alabama division, American Cancer Society, said the article "What You Read Here May Save Your Life," written by Philip Wylie, is a "strikingly accurate title." The piece appears in the January 24 issue of Collier's, on the newsstands January 16.

The article emphasizes the fact that "most cancers of the mouth and throat, if recognized soon enough, can be removed surgically, or otherwise cured (by radiation for example)."

Three important symptoms that may mean cancer and that should take anyone to a doctor for advice are cited: A sore in the mouth or throat that does not heal in a week; a lump in the neck; or hoarseness that persists for two weeks.

The piece is largely the result of cooperation between a famous throat surgeon who remains anonymous and Mr. Wylie. The author undertook the article at the urging of a friend who has had cancer for ten years and edured many operations and says "that if he had once known what he knows now, he could have saved himself years of unbelievable misery."

A Pig's Needle Teeth Are Just In The Way

Too many hogs growers never clip the black needle or "wolf" teeth found in newly born pigs, finds G. B. Phillips, API Extension hog production specialist.

He states that they do not benefit pigs in any way. However, they can cause much damage when pigs fight each other. Also, the needle teeth may cut and irritate teats so that the sow will refuse to let the pigs nurse.

Phillips says a pig's needle teeth may be removed at birth. Just clip them at gum level with a pair of side-cutting pliers.

New Gardeners Are Able To Control Nematodes

Auburn, Ala. — Many Alabama gardens that have grown vegetables for a number of years are infested with nematodes.

John Bagby, API Extension horticulturist, explains that these very small, worm-like pests attack roots of many different vegetables, causing knots or swellings on the larger fleshy roots.

The damage cuts off the passage of water and minerals that would ordinarily pass through roots and stems to the leaves. Therefore, plants wilt and become stunted.

Bagby says nematodes can be controlled with ethylene dibromide. First, prepare land by breaking, disking, and smoothing as if preparing a seedbed. Treat soil when temperature is between 50 degrees and 60 degrees Fahrenheit and just about dry enough to work. Open furrows six inches deep with shovel plow or scooter.

When applying the liquid treatment, use a fruit jar or gallon oil can with two holes in opposite sides of lid. One hole should be small for admitting air, about the size of a 4-penny nail. The hole used for pouring should be about the size of a 10-penny nail 40 per cent ethylene dibromide into furrows at the rate of one-half pint to 100 feet of row. Eight to nine gallons will be needed per acre.

"Next," says Bagby, "cover treated area immediately by throwing two furrows over each row, with a plow. Two weeks after treating, drag off tops of ridges, and the land is ready for seed or plants."

Announces Milk Producers School

County Agent Red Glasscock has announced a one-day milk producers school to be conducted in Clanton on January 23. He pointed out that one of the principle topics for discussion would be the development of artificial breeding in Chilton County as well as other important phases in the county's dairy program.

FIRST 1953 MEETING

The Chilton County Fruit and Truck Growers Association are scheduled to conduct their first 1953 general meeting in Thorsby at 7 o'clock February 4, 1953.

At that time, according to Mr. Jim Williams, chairman of the Directors meeting that was conducted last Tuesday night, there are some very important projects and business to be discussed at that time. Mr. Williams urged that all members and prospective members of the association be on hand for this important meeting.

MY PET PEEVE

NORMALLY I am a peaceful individual. I dislike fussing, fuming and fighting. But there is one thing that will set me off. That's blowing of his automobile horn by the fellow behind me when I pull up to a traffic light.

The other day, for instance, I was driving peaceably along when I came to a light. It flashed to caution and I stopped. The guy behind me blasted away with his horn. It was terrific! The sound all but picked up the back end of the flivver and exchanged it for the front.

That guy wanted me to pull out into the intersection when I knew the red light was going to flash in a second.

"This guy," I said to the wife, "is gonna get it."

"No fighting," she said. "Remember you always get whipped!"

"I have other plans," says I.

The light flashed green. I started forward and deliberately stalled the engine. The flivver jerked and came to a dead stop. The guy behind blasted away on his horn.

My wife became nervous. "Get it going," says she.

"I can't," says I and grinned what I hoped was a diabolically clever grin. "The engine is flooded."

The guy behind me blasted away on his horn.

It was the funniest thing, but that light changed five times before I could get the flivver started again. Sometime, about the third time the light switched, the guy behind me got the idea. If he hadn't stopped blowing that horn we would have been sitting there yet and this column would never have gotten written.

Nine Historical Markers To Be Placed In State

Nine historical highway markers will be erected and dedicated in Alabama within the next two weeks by the Alabama Historical Association, reports Rucker Agee, Marker Chairman.

Six will be dedicated in Butler County on January 24 and three in Autauga County on January 28. The markers will be erected in memory of the Creek Indian Confederacy, Fort Bibb, the Butler Massacre, the Ogly Massacre, Gary's Stockade, and Fort Dale in Butler County and the Pratt Gin Factory, Albert J. Pickett and the Alibamo Indians in Autauga County.

Bedroom Planning Highly Important

Consider convenience and comfort in bedrooms when making plans for a new house or for remodeling, advises Alice Peavy, API Extension home management specialist.

She recommends that every bedroom have at least two windows on different walls for cross ventilation. A comfortable location for the bed should be considered when the plan for the room is drawn.

"Arrange the room so that the head of the bed stands against a wall to the right or left of a window," suggests the specialist. "And be sure to leave at least 18 inches of free space on either side of a double bed and at least two feet between the bottom of the bed and the wall. Also provide adequate outlets for proper lighting and conveniences."

FARM PRODUCTION IN 1952

The nation produced the second largest volume of crops in history in 1952. This was done despite the drought in a large part of the country, especially in the Central and Southeastern areas.

PRESIDENT IKE . . . Facing the difficult task of guiding our nation through war and economic troubles, President Dwight D. Eisenhower, in this recent photo, exhibits courage and hope.

Sod Crops Will Hold Soil On Steep Lands

Auburn, Ala. — There are too many farmers trying to grow cotton and corn on very rolling and steep lands, according to S. R. Doughty, API Extension soil conservationist.

He warns that such lands are not adapted to growing row crops because the erosion hazard is too great. But these lands can be used to grow sericea, kudzu, and grass-legume mixtures. And the forage can be harvested by livestock and sold in the form of meat or milk.

Doughty adds that sod crops serve a three-fold purpose on such lands. They furnish ground cover to protect soil from erosion, provide the most economical source of feed for livestock, and furnish organic matter to increase the water-holding capacity and fertility of the soil.

County Cattlemen Will Meet Wednesday, Feb. 4

Spirit ran high Monday night at a meeting of the Chilton County Cattlemen's Association in the County Agent's office as plans were formulated for the first 1953 meeting of the group to be conducted on Wednesday, February 4.

Mr. Ralph Mims, president, stated that plans have been made for an all-day meeting to be opened at 9 o'clock with the morning session to be devoted to an educational program. Mr. Mims also stated that a dinner of steak would be served at noon, to be followed by a tour of some of the successful beef cattle farms in Chilton County.

Many prospective members as well as associate and regular members will be invited to attend the program that will also be the kick-off for a concentrated membership drive in an effort to strengthen the local organization.

Monday night's meeting of the Cattlemen's Association also produced a promotion program designed to stimulate beef growers to produce a much better product in the county. This plan is awaiting adoption by the full membership at the regular meeting next month.

Officers of the local Cattlemen's Association include, besides it's president: Dick Arnold, vice-president; C. C. Fiquette, secre-treas.; and directors are Dr. H. M. Nix, Earl O'Neal, Hoyt Freeman and Charlie Patterson.

Bunny's Story Had a Nice "Ring" to It

"Bunny" Baker — our cute blonde secretary over here at the newspaper — showed up late for work the other morning and "scooped" us all.

Bunny came in carrying a big box of cigars under her arm and, without a word, went around dropping a cigar off at each desk. Finally, when we were all but bursting with curiosity, Bunny told us how come. She held up her left hand and displayed a lovely diamond on her third finger.

"It's a boy," she said. "Six feet two, a hundred ninety-six pounds."

From where I sit, Bunny's way of announcing her engagement showed real ingenuity. And ingenuity — doing things in a better and different way—always stands out. Take the way the beer retailers in this state have shown their ingenuity in working voluntarily with the Self-Regulation Program sponsored by the Brewing Industry. They do everything to keep their places clean and orderly — just like anyone else who's "engaged" in running a successful business.

Alabama Industry Days Celebrations

Birmingham, Ala. — The final plans for the 1953 Alabama Industry Days celebrations, April 27 thru May 2, will be drawn up at a meeting to be held in the auditorium of the Birmingham Chamber of commerce, January 29 at 1:30 p.m.

The sponsoring organizations: Industries of Alabama, The Alabama Press Association and the University of Alabama, will have as their guests at this meeting newspaper men, radio representatives, and A.I.A. members from each community in Northern Alabama.

This meeting is for the convenience of community leaders in north Alabama and a similar meeting will be held at Montgomery the following day in the Police Court Room of the City Hall from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. for those leaders of south Alabama.

"This year's observance of Alabama Industry Days will be the biggest in the history of the annual event," said Paul A. Redmond, President of Alabama Mills, Inc., and chairman of the Alabama Industry Days Committee for the fourth consecutive year, "and all community leaders of this state are urged to attend one of these meetings."

The idea of setting aside specific days in which to observe and honor industry in Alabama, is original with Mr. Redmond, a Director and Past President of Associated Industries of Alabama. "Alabama Industry Days is designed for the local communities," stated Mr. Redmond, "and each community may enter the celebration independently of the rest of the state."

"This program for honoring Alabama's industry has always succeeded because of the effort put forth on the community level," stated D. Trotter Jones, Executive Vice President of Associated Industries of Alabama.

Governor Gordon Persons last year proclaimed the last week of April as Alabama Industry Days and concluded the proclamation by saying, the "people of this state are entitled to know better the industrial concerns and their products which have made possible the full utilizations of the vast resources of this state.

"What Alabama Makes, Makes Alabama" is the slogan of this state-wide observance. However, each community will select a theme suitable to its own needs and desires.

Best Way To Age Beef Before Storing

Auburn, Ala. — How much againg does beef need before it goes into the frozen food locker? This is a question important to both the locker manager and families who use the lockers.

Lavada Curtis, API Extension food preservation specialist, says that aging the freshly slaughtered carcass for a week or 10 days in a chill room increases the natural tenderness of the meat.

Longer aging is often used, but it allows for the development of staple odors from the growth of mold on the surface of the meat.

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. Grace Stewart, Pekin, Indiana: I remember going to mill with my father as a small child. We took corn to be made into meal and I fed the ears into the corn sheller while my father furnished the power to turn the mill. We always went to Becks Mill, south of Salem, Ind., in Washington County.

From Mrs. Hettie Rogers, 5610 Dorcas, Omaha, Nebr.: I remember when my father went to a "turkey shoot" at Thanksgiving time. Being a little short of ammunition he melted my mother's pewter spoons for his gun. He came home with a big wild turkey. It was so large mother cooked it in the wash boiler.

From Mrs. Lucy Hunt, Drum, Ky.: I remember when I used to work a yoke of steers named Brit and Bully to snake fire wood for the big fireplace in our log cabin. I also remember when I used to pick blackberries and carry them three miles to Grundy, Va., to sell them for five cents a gallon. With the money I bought calico for three cents a yard to make a dress.

From Mrs. Lillian Craig, Lynwood, Calif.: I remember when Uncle Nick Chickodowze, who lived across from the Craig Chapel, had his cobbler shop in the corner of his kitchen. He wore a leather knee apron and had a large wooden tray with different compartments before him. He sewed shoes with a waxed thread by hand and used wood pegs to resole shoes.

"MYSTERY" DEATHS

U. S. production of winter wheat for 1953 is forecast at 611,141,000 bushels. This is almost 42 per cent below last year's crop.

1953 Maid Of Cotton In New York City

New York, N. Y. — New York City was described as a "busy and wonderfully exciting city" by Alabama's Alice Corr, the nation's 1953 National Maid of Cotton.

For her it has been exactly that since her arrival ten days ago in preparation for her reign as the nation's ambassadress of good will for old King Cotton. The Selma, Ala., beauty was crowned National Maid of Cotton at Memphis last December 30 and will start soon on a world-wide tour as spokesman for the cotton industry. While she is in New York she will be outfitted in high-style cotton by many of the world's leading designers and craftsmen.

Already she has become a national favorite through her network radio and television appearances. She has appeared as guest star on Ed Sullivan's television show along with Robert Taylor and actress Margaret Sullivan.

She was the star model in an all-cotton fashion show presented by the Knitted Fabrics Institute and won the plaudits of the several thousand who witnessed the spectacle in the Grand ballroom of the Biltmore Hotel in New York City. She has dined at the famous L'Auberge French restaurant in uptown New York where she had an opportunity to sample the cuisine which will be hers when she reaches Paris on her world-wide tour.

Miss Corr, a University of Alabama coed, won the national honors shortly after being named Alabama's representative in the nation-al contest during the 1952 Alabama State Fair.

Every day promises to be a fabulously interesting day for the Alabama beauty. The nation's top milldozen exclusively designed hats inery designers are busy at this moment creating for Miss Corr two which she will wear during her tour.

Maid Alice will begin her official tour, which will cover three continents, at Miami February 2nd. She will pay an official call on her state when she will reign over a two-day celebration at Birmingham in her honor February 5-6.

Dates will keep a long time if stored in tightly covered jars to exclude air.

Keeping Heart Patients at Work

HEART SPECIALIST tracing the size, shape and position of the patient's heart.

CLINIC NURSE assists technician taking electrocardiogram of patient's heart.

CLINIC TEAM evaluating patient's heart condition to determine what kind of work he can do without risk to his health.

MOST INDUSTRIAL WORKERS with heart disease can safely keep on the job if their work does not place too great a burden on their hearts. Today, many heart associations are establishing what are called "work evaluation clinics" where workers whose hearts are impaired can obtain advice about the types of jobs for which they are suited.

Patients referred to these clinics, which are frequently set up in community rehabilitation centers, are examined by a team that usually includes a specialist in heart disease, a psychiatrist, a social worker and a vocational counsellor or placement worker. The pictures above show some of the steps that are taken in matching a worker to the job.

This program takes on special importance in view of the nation's need for all available manpower. It has been estimated that if production goals are to be met, it is necessary to bring into defense work over a million and a half additional handicapped persons, many of them with various forms of heart disease.

Fear is often the greatest obstacle the heart patient has to overcome. Sometimes the worker with heart disease is crippled by his own fear of the effect his work will have on his heart. Sometimes he is forced into unemployment because his employer fears that he will not be able to do his work satisfactorily.

Much of the fear of both employer and workers is based on misinformation about the relationship between heart disease and employment. The experience of large industries shows that heart patients can work at many kinds of jobs on an equal footing with workers who have no heart disease.

Through their information programs, heart associations are spreading the news that there is no special risk to worker or employer when the worker with an impaired heart is suitably placed. They are sponsoring research on the effects of various types of work on persons with heart disease and on the suitability of specific occupations for them.

These activities of the American Heart Association and its affiliates, aimed at promoting the selective employment of industrial workers with heart disease, are among the many community services supported by the Heart Fund.

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

What'ta ya know? Caught Jim Brasseit in town Tuesday afternoon barefooted. He said the shoe repair man had him on his feet again. He was in Jack Gore's Shoe Shop having his soul mended. Sort of a "while you wait" job, you know. Come to think of it, quite a few souls could be fixed hereabouts, but we don't think the shoe fixer is the man for the job.

Welcome to Clanton and Chilton County to the Paul Bennetts. Paul has taken over as manager at Watson's. He has a young son and they have located a house in which to live. We hope they enjoy every minute of their stay in Clanton and it stretches into years of peaceful and worthwhile living among wonderful people.

* * *

Visited the courthouse Tuesday morning to see that all of the newly elected officers were at their posts of duty and to take a picture of Judge W. L. Parrish turning the keys over to the new Probate Judge Dave Tingle. Everything was in order. As usual we began catching h— from the time we stuck our nose in the first office. The Sheriff had found that we run the heading "City Law Report" over a story about a gentleman coming to Clanton to make a speech to the peach growers, and C. Delle Cobb, our Register in Chancery, was raising the same kind of particular hades about us not getting pictures of the goings on at the Methodist Church Monday morning. She also wanted to know why we hadn't mentioned the fact that Chilton County was a step ahead of the Nation when it came to inaugurating her officials. We held our Inauguration Ceremonies Monday and the rest of the Nation held theirs Tuesday. Horsley White was on the job in the Circuit Clerks office and wasn't raising cain with anyone which gave us quite a start. Bob Fullen the new Chief Clerk in the Probate Office was very friendly and cordial as is his way. We hope he likes it here and enjoys his new work. By-the-way, no more of the courthouse had caved in since the last visit, It may last until we can get another one—if we hurry.

Down at 31 Service Station there was a fire the other morning. It was just an ordinary fire with not much harm done. It was stopped before it got started good. But it was a funny thing. It burned up all the bills that Clarence Easterling owed but didn't burn up any of the bills that were owing to Clarence. Fires do such funny things!

* * *

A farmer wasn't making very good time with his plowing because about every twenty feet his horse would stop and turn around and look at him. A city man, leaning over the fence watching, said: "You'll never get your plowing done if your horse keeps doing that. Why does he keep looking back at you?" "Well," the old gent replied, "He's a mite deaf and he's afraid I'll holler 'whoa' and he won't hear me."

* * *

Mrs. Sexton's Third Grade Class of Clanton Elementary School got to see the President's Inauguration. Half the class went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Williams and the other half went to the home of their teacher, Mrs. Sexton. We're sure it was a wonderful experience when there are millions of we Americans who, without television, would probably never have had an opportunity to see the Inauguration Ceremony.

* * *

The young husband arriving home from the office was met by his mother upset wife. "What's the matter, darling?" He asked. "Oh! I've had a dreadful day," his wife answered. "First, baby cut his first tooth; then he took his first step, and then he fell down and knocked out his tooth, and then," she answered in a shocked voice, "he said his first word."

JUDGES ANNOUNCED IN ESSAY CONTEST

Montgomery, Ala. — Judges in the third annual essay contest on "Selling as a Career" sponsored by the Montgomery Sales Executive Club have been announced by Dave Larson, chairman of the essay contest committee. They are Grover Hall, editor of The Montgomery Advertiser; John L. Goodwyn, former mayor of Montgomery and presently a member of the Alabama Supreme Court, and Walter B. Kennedy, president of the First National Bank of Montgomery.

Considerable interest in the contest is being shown in the high schools of this area. Twenty schools have been contacted to date, including Clanton High and Verbena High Schools.

The purpose of the contest is to provide strong incentives for American youth "to explore the importance of selling to our high standard of living and to consider the field as a career."

Prizes in the competition include a $100 cash prize, a second-place award of $50, a third prize of $20 and ten prizes of $5 each.

The three essays adjudged the best will automatically be entered in a national contest sponsored by National Sales Executives, and the top award in this competition will be $1,000 and a free trip to Atlantic City. The instructor who sponsors the student winning the national contest will also receive an expense-paid trip to Atlantic City. Other awards will be given teachers sponsoring winners who place in the national contest.

All high schools in the Montgomery trade area are urged to enter the contest. Chairman Larson said that the club would be glad to supply full information and materials to schools upon request. Such requests should be directed to the club at P. O. Box 815, Montgomery, Ala.

All entries must be received by the club on or before February 15.

CLANTON COUPLE ENGAGED

Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Reeves announce the engagement of their daughter, Mamie Carolyn, to Mr. Jesse Charles Mims of Clanton. Their wedding will be an event of early February.

Gamma Globulin Provides Temporary Polio Immunity

WITH the nation's polio cases mounting steadily during the last five years, news that research and scientific tests have demonstrated the effectiveness of immune serum globulin in giving human beings some degree of temporary immunity against the disease will be particularly welcome in rural areas where it has struck hardest.

The serum — commonly called gamma globulin—is a protein fractionated from human blood. Now the American Red Cross has been requested by the Office of Defense Mobilization to expand defense blood collections in an effort to make gamma globulin available during this summer's epidemics.

Working at full capacity, the country's pharmaceutical laboratories will be unable to produce sufficient gamma globulin for all persons who will be exposed to the virus—an estimated 2,000,000 children living in anticipated epidemic areas. Allocation and distribution of the serum, therefore, will not be handled by the Red Cross, but by some other agency yet to be designated by the O.D.M.

Discovery of the usefulness of gamma globulin followed scientific tests during the past two years in Provo, Utah; Houston, Texas; and Sioux City, Iowa, under the auspices of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. The gamma globulin used in these experiments also was provided by the Red Cross.

While no one can predict the incidence of polio in 1953, figures seemingly speak for themselves. The case rate has increased steadily since 1946 and last year's total of 57,000 reported cases not only was an all-time high, but was also more than two and one-half times greater than the annual average for the past 15 years. Many of the 1952 cases were in such predominantly rural states as Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, South Dakota, Kansas, New Mexico, Wisconsin, Texas, Kentucky and Michigan.

The Foundation reports that polio invaded the nation's farms with savage frequency last year. In Mapleton, Iowa, for example, 11 of the 14 children of Joe and Clara Thiel were stricken; while in Taylor, Wisc., five out of eight children in one family contracted polio.

The Red Cross also will continue its primary responsibility as the coordinating agency for the collection of whole blood for the armed forces, national defense and civilian hospitals as part of the National Blood Program under ODM auspices. Since the Red Cross launched its present blood program in 1948, it has procured—with the help of cooperating community blood banks—over 8,180,000 donations of blood for civilian use and for national defense.

Prices Less Than Year Ago Say A&P Grocery Officials

Birmingham, Ala. — Officials of A. & P. Food Stores today disclosed that retail food prices, contrary to popular belief, have not made material advances during the past year.

In fact, company officials reported, today's prices on 790 separate items are lower in A. & P. stores in this area than the prices on the same quality merchandise a year ago.

J. L. Sullivan, vice-resident of the Suthern Division and general superintendent of A. & P. operations in this part of the country, said the 790 price reductions are in keeping with the company's 93-year-old policy of "offering just as much good food for just as little money as possible."

John Franklin, Jr. Killed In Action

JOHN FRANKLIN, JR.

Pvt. John Franklin, Jr., who was reported missing in action in Korea on December 24, was killed in action. A telegram received this week by his wife, Mrs. Ruby Franklin, stated that he was killed in action, date unreported. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Franklin of Clanton Route 3.

PLEASE — DON'T ALL HIT THE ROAD AT ONCE!

Akron, O. — If every car and truck owner in the State of Alabama tried to go for a ride on the same Sunday afternoon, there would be a vehicle every 12 yards on every paved street and highway in the state.

Fortunately, the odds are against this happening, since the average motorist spends only about 25 "days" a year in his car, according to James J. Newman, vice-president of the B. F. Goodrich company.

He points out that estimates of American automobile usage and driver habits show that the average motorist drove 9,000 miles last year. At his average pace of 30 miles per hour, this totals 300 hours, or 25 daylight driving days. This is only 6.8 per cent of the daylight hours in a year, he says.

Newman says that the state's motor vehicle registration today is at its highest mark in history and will probably reach an estimated 767,000 early this year. Hard-surfaced road mileage in both rural and urban areas of the state is 5,338, which is also a new high, he says.

He reports that drivers throughout the nation feel traffic jams are responsible for the loss of millions of dollars in wasted time alone. Newman says B. F. Goodrich estimates a national increase of 12,000,000 car and truck registrations to bring the nation's total of 65,500,000 motor vehicles by 1960. This, he points out, seems to leave little chance for an early let-up in today's traffic congestion.

Newman, former chairman of the Inter-Industry Highway Safety Committee, says he believes that the nation's traffic problem could be solved if authorities start to work now on an expanded national highway program, improved parking and unloading facilities, and revisions of outmoded traffic systems and regulations.

Wetumpka Mayor Guest Speaker At Lions Lunch

Six new members of the Clanton Lions Club will be inducted into that organization today when the Clanton Lions Club conducts it's regular meeting at noon at the Dixie Cafe.

The induction ceremonies will be conducted by Lion Ellis Austin, Mayor of Wetumpka, and a Past District Governor of Alabama Lions.

At the same time the secretary of the local club, Erle Ellis, announced that the Clanton Lions Club is still running it's 100% attendance record for the month of January in their quest to win a perfect attendance record plaque. The club has already won one plaque for the same kind of a record, but this new plaque must be won over a period of six months.

Last week's meeting of the Clanton Lions Club was highlighted by the attendance of the Clanton Elementary School Safety Patrol, which is sponsored by the local organization, and by Lieutenant Bowles of the Alabama Highway Patrol.

The traffic officials paid high tribute to the Clanton Lions Club in their efforts to support the School Safety Program in the grammar school.

Local Girls' Polio Cure Made Possible Thru Your Past Gifts

MILDRED ANN CALLOWAY

Little Mildred Ann Calloway, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winston Calloway of Verbena, is Chilton County's proof of March of Dimes assistance. Ann was stricken with polio in the late summer of 1949 and was affected in her right leg and foot and in her spine. She was sent to the Warm Springs Foundation in Georgia for physical therapy treatments. After detailed instructions by the doctors there, she was sent home with exercises which she was to follow four times daily. Through the persistance of her parents, and through her own determination to continue her exercises, Ann is now a normal nine year old girl. Her leg muscles are almost perfect and her spine is evenly balanced. She goes back to Warm Springs every six months for a complete check-up and X-rays.

Her treatments are now paid for by her parents, but they credit the March of Dimes research and therapy with making her well again. Mr. and Mrs. Calloway, together with little Ann, urge every man, woman and child in Chilton County to support the Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. They know how terrible it is to have polio strike, and they can testify to the great work accomplished through the March of Dimes. Ann Calloway is one of Chilton County's living testimonies to the power of research.

A CORRECTION

Through error this week the News published the death of the infant son of Durwood and Elizabeth Easterling Minor and made an error in the death of the child. The baby was named Jeffery Dewitt Minor, and was born on January 18th. Death came the same day. Our sincere sympathy to Durwood and Elizabeth in their sorrow. — THE EDITOR.

Mr. and Mrs. Wyndol Murrah and children, Rickey and Gail, of Bay Minette, Ala., spent last week end with his mother, Mrs. George Murrah, and family.

SHIRLEY WELLS

Shirley Wells, the nine-year-old daughter of Mr and Mrs. Willard Wells of Clanton, was one of the 55,000 polio victims in 1952. Shirley was stricken in July of last year with a queer sort of stiffness that made her unable to bend over or to stop. After being treated for two weeks by local doctors, Shirley was transferred to the Crippled Children's Hospital in Birmingham. There she underwent physical therapy treatments for one month.

The money to much of Shirley's care was provided by the Chilton County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Through the aid of these funds Shirley was able to return home with no apparent effects from her seige with polio. She still has a slight stiffness in her back, but in appearance she is perfectly normal.

She attends school only half a day each day, and comes home for two hours rest after dinner. She is required by her doctors to take a warm bath each day, followed by exercises for her back and leg. Shirley goes back to Birmingham once each month for a check-up, and at the last report she was doing nicely and would soon be able to attend school full-time. Shirley is another proof of the great help which is available through the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Her treatments and recovery were made possible by Chilton County's contribution to the March of Dimes. Shirley and her family urge you to give generously in the Drive for 1953.

Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Wright and son spent last week end in Lyerly, Ga., with her father who was celebrating his 83rd birthday.

Mrs. J. E. Padgett of Birmingham was the guest of Mrs. Dan Gray Saturday.

Scanning the News

SINCE the Republican landslide of November, the average man has been wondering what approach the new congress would take toward a cut in taxes. Last week, with congress just getting down to serious work, an opinion was being formed and expressed.

Leaders in this legislative body, Washington news reports say, are just about agreed that they can not promise too much in the way of a tax cut too soon. First must come a balanced budget.

Representative Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, majority leader in the house, had this to say on the subject: "I think first of all a major objective of this new administration must be to balance the budget, and we're not going to be reckless with the finances and the financial structure of this country. But at the same time I think that we must drive to cut the cost of government and, doing that, to bring about a tax reduction.

● One of the leading news stories in the nation's press the past two weeks has been Winston Churchill's visit in the United States. His talks last week with leading national figures has caused considerable speculation, especially his talk to Dwight Eisenhower.

In that connection, it is interesting to recall what the two men have written about each other in the past. Here is what Churchill wrote about Eisenhower: "Eisenhower was a broadminded man, practical, serviceable, dealing with events as they came in cool selflessness."

Eisenhower wrote this about Churchill: "Mr. Churchill was a man of extraordinarily strong convictions and a master in argument and debate . . . He was a great war leader and he is a great man."

On his arrival in the United States, Mr. Churchill put forth these views on various subjects:

1. Now that Britain possesses an atomic weapon, she would like to be a "useful partner" of the U. S., but has been deprived of the exchange of information promised by the late President Roosevelt.

2. The Korean war has improved the chances of world peace.

3. The possibility of World War III has receded, but has not entirely disappeared.

4. His country wants "trade, not aid" to regain her economic strength. He termed the present U. S. trade policies as "unsatisfactory" and hampers the sale of British goods in this country.

● One of the most shocking reports to reach public print in many months was the recent Army statement that 46,000 enlisted men have deserted since the start of the Korean War. All of them, except 11,000, have been picked up and returned to Army service, the report said.

The Army officer who made this information available added that the desertion rate during the current hostilities was less than half of what it was during one 12-month period toward the end of World War II.

Besides the Army, the Air Force, Navy and Marines reported an additional 2,790 deserters. In all, if this Army report is correct, there are 13,790 deserters from the services roaming the streets of America.

Current regulations classify a man as a deserter if he is absent without leave more than 30 days. These figures, the Army said, does not count men merely absent without leave.

MUCHAS GRACIAS

Many thanks to all you lovely people who have congratulated us on the new and better Chilton County News. And also to all you who have so kindly assured us of your full cooperation in giving to Chilton County a better newspaper.

We deeply appreciate all the kindness and words of encouragement shown us and will do all in our power to merit your confidence and fulfill the needs of our community. Muchas Gracias.

PEOPLE ARE WILLING

It looks like the people of the county are ready and willing to start right away on building for Chilton County a new courthouse. Every conversation points to the need of a new building and there seems to be little opposition.

It will be up to the "powers that be," meaning, of course, our new Probate Judge and County Board of Revenue and Control. It may be that it will need to go before the people again and if that is true, then it is time someone got the "ball rolling."

Our public buildings are falling down and it doesn't take a construction engineer to see that. Whatever the approach to getting a new courthouse and jail should be, the Board of Revenue and Control should put much thought and study into it and try to give to the people of Chilton County dollar for dollar value for every bit of money spent whether it be in service or construction.

HAIL AND FAREWELL

The Watson's Store has a new manager in Mr. Paul Bennett, formerly of Cullman. We take this means of extending to him our every cooperation and welcome him and his little family to Clanton.

To Mr. H. M. Linton, who resigned as of January 1st, we wish the very best of luck in whatever endeavor he pursues. During his stay as manager at the Watson's Store, he was very cooperative in all public affairs and never shirked a public duty. The business life of Chilton County and Clanton will miss Herbert Linton, and it is our hope that he and his fine family stay in our midst and continue a part of our growing community.

OUR HOMETOWN MERCHANTS

For more than five years the Chamber of Commerce has been boosting Chilton County merchants, the home town business men. Why? Because Chilton County merchants stand by their home town at all times; at all times are willing to lend a helping hand in the support of every home enterprise and because they back every move that is for the best interests of Chilton County.

But we wonder if the citizens in and about the community realize the worth of the home town merchants —of the many things they do for the town and its people, and how much we, as a people, owe to them.

Back of every movement for good—for progress, development and uplift, are the home town merchants, and usually only the home town merchants, while others "pass the buck" except during beneficial showers.

Who contributes most to community welfare—to church, to school, to society, to civic movements, to charity and improvements? Usually, only the home town merchants.

Who are the vital forces in every organization having to do with community life and improvements? Usually, only, the home town merchants.

Who are the first to work for needed improvements, for better streets—for a cleaner city, for city beautification—for the very things that make us proud of our home town? Usually, only the home merchants.

Who are the first to combat the things that are injurious to our community—to society—to our industrial, commercial, financial and moral life? Usually only the home merchants.

Who digs into their pocketbooks deeper than the home town merchants to support community benefits? "Day by day, in every way," home town merchants are contributing of their time, their energy and money to make this community a bigger and better place in which to live.

It is proper and fitting then, that we give more than a passing thought to the debt we owe the home town merchant and that we come to the realization that this debt can be repaid by giving to them the trade of the community, a trade well earned and rightfully theirs.

The truth of the matter is, hometown merchants are selling goods at, or less, than prices elsewhere, and if we will be fair and include additional expenses incurred when trading away—we are bound to admit that it is cheaper to trade at home besides showing a spirit of reciprocity.

DALE CARNEGIE

This, Too, Will Pass

ANDREW BABAYAN, Chicago, left Iran and came to America to make his home. But all did not go well. He was homesick and he worried about the job that he left in Persia which he really loved. He had been a successful dentist in his own country and had everything that average people would like to have to make their lives comfortable and happy. He owned his own home, a car, had a good position, and a very good business of which he was proud because it was the result of his hard work for fifteen years.

CARNEGIE

Two weeks after arriving in this country, he had to face the fact that he could not be a dentist anymore because he couldn't get a license. He didn't know what he was going to do in a country where he had no friends and no business acquaintances. An optimist by nature, he now fell to such depths of desperation that life became a living Hell. He could think of nothing but his job and position—both lost. He saw no hope for the future. Even his family life was near the breaking point, because his wife was the cause of their leaving Iran. So he accused her of that. He neither wanted to see anyone nor to leave his house.

With these dark thoughts he kept to his bed for a whole week. At the end of the week he started to realize that he could not endure life like this any longer. He said to himself, "Andy, if you continue to see your life in such dark colors, you'll be lost. Make an end to this. Think about your wife and your beautiful daughter. Remember what you used to tell others: 'Take it easy. Time is the best physician. The worry will go with the passing of time.' " Then he decided to get a job—any kind of job only to keep busy and so not have time to worry. He decided to make friends in order not to be alone with his thoughts. He decided to forget what he once was and to face what he had become, remembering the words of the ancient Persian kings who said, "This too will pass."

POPLAR SPRINGS

Sunday School was very well attended, but many of our people are sick. We hope and pray each one will soon be well and out to services again. We do beg that each one who hasn't been coming to church will start making plans now to be present next Sunday for Sunday School and worship service.

We are still hoping for many more to enroll in Training Union. We do have good lessons and let us all study and read God's Word more. We will be looking for you next Sunday night.

We want to see each one who is able to be out for prayer service Wednesday night. So don't forget to come.

We had a good W.M.U. meeting at the church Wednesday afternoon. And as we want to store up treasures in Heaven, we decided to see how much help we could get to start the addition to our church. That was discussed in the church some time ago.

The Sunbeams met with Mrs. E. W. Hill Saturday afternoon. Nine were present to enjoy the program, refreshments and games. We hope all the little children will be present at the next meeting.

A NEW ANGLE

A Short Story By Rebecca Osborn

CUB REPORTER Jim Stanley knew it wasn't a big assignment. After two months on the Boulder Courier Times, he hadn't impressed the city editor even with his name. On the but heading downtown Jim pulled a pencil from the inner pocket of his jacket and made a few notes.

The ed had suggested an interview and he sketched out some questions: name, educational background, honors . . . Suddenly he stopped and peered out the window to the range of snow-tipped mountains above the clean, square buildings of the business district. He picked up the pad and blacked out his notes. He grinned. Sure, that was the angle!

There was a pretty, young girl behind the counter.

"Your name, please."

"James Stanley, furniture salesman. That is, I was."

"Fill these out in ink, please.

Jim took the forms to the desk, pulled the chair a little to one side so that he could steal an occasional glance at the girl, and began answering the questions that covered every activity of his life from his childhood hobbies and high school activities to his present address and whether or not he smoked. He calculated on the time it would take for the counselor's interview and wondered about the wisdom of putting so many hours on an ordinary assignment. But Cy Lucas had sent him. Let him regret it if it took all day.

The girl took the sheets of questions Jim handed her and delivered them to the back office. Jim sat down on the bench. It was 11 before he was sumoned for his interview.

The job counselor was a tall, spare man with graying hair and a nose, Jim reflected, that suggested a pointer's. Jim tried to look as he thought a man would who had just lost his job. Maybe if the city editor found him out the look would come natural.

"Furniture salesman?"

"Ah—yes, sir."

"I take it you're not too happy in that line of work?"

"Well, to be honest, I'm not," Jim confessed.

"I'd like to have you try a few tests. Here's an aptitude test—takes about an hour. Personality test—45 minutes. Job placement test—about an hour."

At the desk in the inner room, Jim looked through the first folded sheet. Three hours of tests! Well, if this was what they asked of applicants it was the information that he was after. He looked at the first question: "If you were on a street corner and a man beside you suddenly pulled out a gun and shot a pedestrian, what would you do?" Jim grinned. At the Courier Times they would call that a break!

At three o'clock the cub reporter handed in the last of the tests and sat down again on the outer bench, awaiting a consultation. Half an hour later he was called in.

The job counselor was studying a sheet of notes as he motioned to Jim to sit down. He put the sheet down and fixed his long nose on Jim.

"I've gone over your tests. Selling furniture isn't your line. Ever thought about journalism—newspaper work?"

"Well, I don't know. I guess I never thought about it."

"How'd you like me to give you a recommendation? What paper would you be interested in? Something around here?"

"Yes," Jim said, "How about the Courier Times?"

Jim thanked him, glanced at the material on his desk, and looked briefly around the room as he left. Cy Lucas would get a laugh out of it when the recommendation came through. Well, at least he'd remember the name of Jim Stanley.

He reached the newspaper office at five, relieved to see that the city editor had left. At the desk he shared with two other cub reporters, Jim began his story. The copy seemed to grow from the battered platen of the typewriter without his help. By six o'clock he was only beginning. It would be a longer story than he thought. At eight he gathered up the sheets, kissed them fondly and left them on Cy's desk.

Jim felt keen the next morning as he walked into the office of the Courier Times. There was a message on the desk to see the city editor. He knew that this was it.

Cy Lucas swung his chair around to face the cub reporter. In his hand was Jim's story of the night before.

"Too long," he said, bluntly. "Too much detail. Dry. Cut it down. As a reporter you'd make a good furniture salesman."

He thrust the pages impatiently at Jim.

"One more thing. The job counselor down at the employment office called me this morning. He's got an applicant down there who has everything it takes to make a good newspaper man. Better get on the beam, son, or he'll have your job!"

The chemical industry, it is estimated, will have to increase today's output by three-and-a-half times in order to meet demand in the coming quarter-century.

THRIFTY HAM AND CORN CASSEROLES

Second-day ham takes on wonderful new flavor in these casseroles which include corn, green pepper and onion in a well-seasoned white sauce. With crusty rolls, a green salad and zesty beer, they're perfect for a family or party meal.

Your family may not be large enough to consume a whole ham, or even a half, in one meal, but you'll find that it's smart planning to bake a ham occasionally. It's such a decorative asset to any table and it is delicious hot or cold.

With the portion left after the first meal, you will want to save some for slicing and serving in sandwiches or with the breakfast eggs. For a dinner menu, you might grind the meat for a ham loaf or cut it in cubes for a casserole combination such as this one:

Baked Ham and Corn

1 No. 2 can kernel corn
1 small onion, grated
¼ cup minced green pepper
2 cups cubed cooked ham
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1½ cups milk
½ teaspoon dry mustard
¾ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ cup fine bread crumbs
½ cup grated cheese

Combine corn, onion, green pepper and ham; mix lightly. Place in 4 to 6 individual casseroles. Melt butter in saucepan over low heat; blend in flour. Gradually stir in milk and cook, stirring constantly, until sauce is thickened (about 2 minutes). Stir in mustard, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper; pour over mixture in casseroles. Combine crumbs and cheese; sprinkle over casseroles. Bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees) 25 minutes, or until lightly browned. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Klie and little daughter, Betty, visited his mother in Birmingham last Sunday.

Jemison High School—

Tuesday night, January 6, June Northcutt was named "Miss Jemison of 1953." June was presented a lovely bouquet of red roses and an identification bracelet by Doris Peters, editor of the annual, which sponsored the contest.

June will be given a full-page picture in the annual. She will be called the Yearbook Queen.

Runners up for this title were Sue Horton and Cookie Ogburn. They will have one-half page each in the annual.

The "Junior Miss" of Jemison High for 1953 is Emily McCue. The second-place winner was Jeannette Glasscock. These two members of the Junior III Class will have one-half page pictures in the annual.

There were seven candidates for the title, "Miss Jemison." They were June Northcutt, Sue Horton, Cookie Ogburn, Rebecca Gross, Sue Martin, Bobbie Faye Martin, and Barbara Glasscock. All of these girls will be pictured in the annual in a group.

The five candidates for the title of "Junior Miss" were Emily McCue, Jeanette Glasscock, Joyce Wells, Ann Noah, and Helen Peters. They will be pictured together in the annual, also.

Senior Exemptions—

The following seniors were exempt from subjects because they had an average of A: Five subjects — Willodean Edwards; four subjects — Billie Sue Burgess, Peggy Cost, Doris Peters, Mary Ellen Blackmon; three subjects — Frances Black, Peggy Noah, Hal Faye Porter; two subjects — Nelda Childress, Hazel Ellison; one subject—Louise Lenoir, Faye Williams, Tommy Martin, Bruce Raybon, Jerry Hayes, Frances Williams, Betty Willis.

There is one thing that I'm glad about this new President Eisenhower we have. I'm glad there is a man in the White House who knows the value of trucks to our country and who has a place in his heart for truck drivers like me.

I heard a story about somebody—probably a trucking industry official—trying to tell Ike how important trucks are. Ike replied: "You don't have to sell me on trucks; I won a war with them."

I may not have quoted him word for word, but I do remember reading in his book, "Crusade in Europe," about Ike and his trucks during the North African campaign. The campaign had bogged down in Tunisia, and some high brass came over to see about things. He asked Ike what he needed most, and Ike asked for trucks. He got them—in a hurry — and the front started moving on again.

Now the only difference in Ike and everybody else is that Ike had the lesson spelled out for him. The truth is that just about everything Americans eat, wear, or use, is moved at least part of its way by trucks. People just don't realize it.

Jemison Panthers Upset Montevallo

The Jemison High School Basketeers evened the score last Friday night against Montevallo High by a 41 to 31 count. The latter had previously defeated the locals 44 to 34.

Pete Gothard (11); John Cannady (11) and J. W. Langston (13) were the big noise-makers in the scoring department for JHS while White (9) and Bunn (7) led for Montevallo.

The Jemison Bees pasted a 46 to 26 trimming on the Shelby County Bees. This was the second meeting of these two Junior teams. Jemison had previously won over them in their first encounter 26-21.

The Jemison Varsity Squad has been unable to compile a very impressive record thus far this season, winning 6, while losing 5. Yet several of their games were lost by close margins. Clanton sporting one of the better teams of Central Alabama barely squeaked by the JHS quint 45 to 44. Verbena High another cracker-jack good basketball team defeated Jemison by a 42 to 39 score.

The B team has a slightly better record, winning 8 while losing 3. Two of these losses were by 3 points each.

Milestones in heart research

In the Eighteenth Century, an English clergyman, the Rev. Stephen Hales, reasoned that if the blood circulated, there must be pressure behind it. He proved his theory by inserting a glass tube in one of the main arteries of a horse. Blood spurted eight feet into the tube.

Hale's crude device was a forerunner of the modern blood pressure machine which helps doctors detect disorders of the heart and circulation.

Today's physician—thanks to modern heart research—has many precise instruments for diagnosis.

Progress depends on research. And research depends on dollars. So why not strike a blow at heart disease now—TODAY—with a generous gift to the Heart Fund.

The Service 11:00.
Sunday School 10:00.
Visitors welcome.

With the inauguration of a new President of the United States and a change in political partisanship; we find ourselves now looking toward the uncertain future wondering what the coming years will bring. We need to beware, however, of pinning our hopes in men, political parties, or even Congress if God is left out of the picture. In this connection, I am reminded of a verse from the Bible, found in II Chronicles 7:14 which reads as follows:

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their evil ways; then will I hear from heaven and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."

What better prescription for peace could we have than that. God will always hear the prayers of His people when they call upon Him in humble, penitent faith. But if we put our hopes in men, our problems will only increase in intensity and magnitude.

God grant that our President, Congress, and all other vital government officials and agencies, will lay aside party differences and base their decisions on principles rather than politics. Both political parties have within their ranks, capable, honest, and consecrated men devoted to higher principles. Let them pool their talents and abilities to end world strife and restore peace. With God's help, it can be done; let us pray that it will be done for the welfare of our country and our people.

We are glad to see the interest increasing in our building program. February 1st, has been set aside as Building Fund Day. This is a very important day for Thorsby Baptist Church. We are praying for a great victory on that day. We need several thousand dollars so we can begin construction immediately on our new educational building. The future growth and development of our church depends upon the success of our building program which calls for a new educational building and an enlarged and redecorated auditorium. The church has already authorized the building committee to proceed with the erection of the building as soon as ample funds are in hand. The building committee consist of the following people: Sam Mims, chairman; Gene Davenport, vice-chairman; Arden Folk, Frank Porter, Charles Cleckler, J. P. Payne, Sr., M. S. Smith, H. W. Reinhardt, Robert H. Goodgame, Marvin Davenport, Mrs. Lota Mae Marcus and Mrs. Charles Cleckler.

The week of Bible study was well attended with an enrolment of 82 with an average attendance of 66.

The new packages of offering envelopes are now ready. Those who have not received theirs may get them at the church office.

News from Shoults

Funeral services for Mr. Milton Lawrence, age 82 years, were held at Pleasant Grove Church, conducted by Rev. Hymon Atcheson of Cooper, Ala. Mr. Lawrence was a life-time resident of this community until a few years ago, when he sold his farm here and moved to Selma, Ala.

His wife, formerly Miss Bessie Shoults, died about three years ago. At the time of his death Mr. Lawrence was living with his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Alice Lawrence, wife of the late Mr. Barnett Lawrence, who has only been dead a few months. Everyone who knew Mr. Lawrence knew him as a fine Christian man devoted to his church and community, always ready and willing to help build a better community in which to live.

He was buried in the Pleasant Hill Methodist Cemetery.

He is survived by three sons, Mr. Hinton Lawrence of Washington, D.C., Mr. James Lawrence of Selma, and Mr. A. J. Lawrence of this community; four daughters, Mrs. Fannie Sexton and Mrs. Eula Cummings of Selma, Mrs. Una Thompson of Denver, Colo., and Mrs. Maggie McNeil of [illegible], Ala.

We extend to this [illegible] our heart-felt sympathy.

Due to the funeral services of Mr. Lawrence Thursday afternoon the Shoults Home Demonstration Club did not hold its regular scheduled monthly meeting. We were to meet at the home of Mrs. Robert McAfee. The meeting will be at a later date, also the W.M.U. meeting will be announced later.

The building fund for the new Sunday School Classrooms is growing and we hope to begin building very soon. Any one who wishes to help with the building send donations to Mrs. Bessie Garner, Lawley, Ala., as she is church treasurer.

All who have loved ones buried in the Pleasant Hill Methodist Cemetery, please send your donations on the wire to fence the cemetery to Mr. Messer Smith, Lawley, Ala. Mr. Smith has purchased the wire and still owes some on it. If more is sent to him than the wire cost he will hire some one to clean the cemetery.

Many people in Shoults Community have installed in their home television sets. The latest to have a TV set is Mr. and Mrs. W. Latham and they say they enjoy it very much.

Mr. Barney Stroud of Stanton, who has rented the farming land of Mr. Sam Shoults and Mrs. Willie Hathcock, is here this week turning the land with the help of Mr. Johnny Rankins of Stanton. Johnny has recently returned from overseas where he served with the Armed Forces.

Mr. Stroud is a World War II Veteran and was seriously wounded in Europe during the war, and was confined to a hospital overseas for two years before returning to the States. He is a successful truck farmer, and sells his melons and vegetables to a Birmingham market.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Shoults and small son of Bessemer, Ala., were here last week end visiting with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Shoults.

Mrs. Jean Hicks and two children, Perry and Hilda, who left before Christmas to visit their parents and grandparents in Hull, England, write relatives here they enjoyed every minute of their voyage across the Atlantic aboard the Queen Elizabeth. They didn't miss a meal as they were not sea sick. Some on board were. This was a great adventure for the children. They enjoyed an English Christmas with their grandparents there. Mrs. Hicks is the wife of Tech. Sgt. Layden Hicks, son of Mrs. Willie Hicks Hathcock and the late Perry Hicks. Mrs. Hicks met her husband when she was serving with the British Army with the WAAF in Dorset, England. They were married in 1945 while Layden was in England with the U. S. Air Force.

In 1947 Mrs. Hicks and baby, Perry, flew to America by plane to be with Layden who had come to the States earlier. Now that he is in Japan for an 18 months stay, Mrs. Hicks and children will be in England until she can join her husband in Japan. She finds England has changed so much for the better since she left six years ago. But finds the English reserve rather strange after the American hospitality. However, she still likes England, especially Hull.

Tech. Sgt. Charles Shoults, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Shoults, is still in Japan. He and his cousin, Tech. Sgt. Layden Hicks, are in the same outfit with the Air Force as mechanics for the F-51 Fighters. They have living quarters together there. Tech. Sgt. Shoults' wife and two children, Vicky and Randy, are residing in Selma, where she was born and reared while her husband is in Japan. She is also hopeful of joining her husband there soon.

Bobby and Donald Latham, sons of Mr. Robert Latham, of this community, have been very sick with virus flu. Quite a few of the school children here have been ill with flu.

Mr. Tommy Shoults of Selma visited here last week with his mother, Mrs. Ollie Shoults Foshee. Tommy has recently returned from Germany and has been in the Veterans Hospital with asthma. He now has a medical discharge.

Temple Church News

We were more than happy to have Rev. and Mrs. Paul C. Meacham with us Sunday. As we have stated before they are both deaf, but Rev. Meacham speaks well enough that we were able to understand practically everything he said. We were happy, too, over the nice group of deaf people who were there. The morning and evening services were a great joy to all of them and it was something new to part of them. The services were especially interesting to the hearing people. Rev. Meacham spoke to us with his voice and to the deaf in the sign language. Mrs. Jack Jones, who is deaf, led the singing for the deaf and they sang in the sign language. It was a heartttouching scene.

The District officials of the Assemblies of God voted unanimously on Monday of this week to keep the Meachams in Alabama to establish deaf classes over the state.

He is an ordained minister of the Assemblies of God, but will be working in all churches wherever he is wanted. There is a possibility that the Meachams will make their home in Clanton.

Sunday night Mrs. Helms organized a Junior C.A. Class. The age range is 9-14. James Helms was elected president; Norma Lou Coggins, vice president; Claudia Fay Lockhart, secretary and Glenda Sue Coggins, treasurer. Mrs. Bill Coggins is the counselor. They meet each Sunday night at 6 o'clock and all boys and girls of this age are invited to be with them. They also appointed a program, friendship and social committee.

We cordially invite the public to all our services and pray God's special blessings on you all.

The Y.W.C. met Monday night at the home of Miss Alma Grace Easterling. Punch and cookies were served by the hostess to 15 members.—Reporter.

Rev. and Mrs. Atcheson and Randy made a business trip to Birmingham Wednesday for the church. While there they had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins.

Chestnut Creek News

Our Sunday School and Training Union was well attended Sunday and Sunday night. We are glad to report that we had our largest attendance for Sunday School, which was one hundred and thirty-two. There were visitors and members who just came for the preaching service.

We had a nice attendance for our prayer service Wednesday night. With a total number of seventy-six. Each organization was well represented.

The R.A. boys and G.A. girls met at the church last Friday night for a hay ride and weiner roast. After the hay ride and weiner roast the children enjoyed playing games for about an hour. These two organizations are making much progress under the direction of one of our community's finest young couples, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Mac Taylor. Mr. and Mrs. James Smith, Mrs. Hymon Atcheson, Mrs. John D. Cooper and Mrs. Nina Jones helped Mr. and Mrs. Taylor chaperone the children. We need more clean entertainment of this type for our children. Each one reported a wonderful time. There were 40 present.

* * *

Those from our church who attended the Howard College Extension banquet at Clanton last Tuesday night were Rev. and Mrs. Hymon Atcheson, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Mac Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. John Sorrell.

* * *

Several of the men met at the church last Saturday morning to finish the rock wall that is being built around the church. The R.A. boys, under the direction of their leader, Archie Mac Taylor, hauled top soil to fill in around the shrubbery. We are all proud of the interest our men and boys are taking in the church.

Mrs. James Smith entertained her young daughter, Peggy, with a birthday party on her ninth birthday, Wednesday afternoon, January 14th. There were eleven of Peggy's friends present to help her celebrate. Games were played, then Peggy opened gifts that were presented to her by each guest. Mrs. Smith served cake and cold drinks to the merry group. They departed for home wishing for Peggy many more happy birthdays.

Rev. Atcheson conducted a funeral at Pleasant Grove Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Atcheson and Randy visited in the Maplesville School, also friends and relatives in Maplesville. Wayne filled an appointment with the dentist.

We are happy to know that our Sunday School Superintendent, Mr. N. J. Robinson, is out of the hospital and doing nicely at this writing.

Mrs. Archie Taylor and Mrs. Irvin Crew shopped in Montgomery Friday.

The members ot the Brotherhood are making plans for their fish fry which will be held on Friday night, January 30th, in the Cooper School lunchroom. We urge all the men and boys from 17 years up of the community to attend the fish fry and to enlist as new members. We hope to have our State Worker as our guest speaker on that night.

The church observed family night Wednesday night with a good attendance in each organization. We are happy to know that our church now has organized and going strong every organization that Baptists sponsor. Our church now has a vision to do its best ever in one church year.

The Y.W.A. girls at Chestnut Creek met January 14th. There were nine present. Mrs. Atcheson called the meeting to order and the officers were elected. They were: President, Mildred Patterson; vice-president, Hazel Miller; secretary and treasurer, Helen Sue Sorrell; program chairman, Hazel Miller; mission chairman, Melba Cox; stewardship committee, Annette Littlejohn, Dean Dooley; community mission chairmen, everyone; social committee, Mrs. Atcheson; reporter, Helen Sue Sorrell; pianist, Helen Sue Sorrell.

We then sang three mission songs, "O Zion Haste," Bringing In The Sheaves," and "Bring Them In."

The Bible reading, Daniel 12:3 was read by Helen Sue Sorrell and Mrs. Atcheson led the prayer.

We then discussed the banquet which is going to be at Montgomery March 19th.

We are going to study "Adventuring With God," for our mission study cause. We planned some things we will do through the year.

Refreshments were served to the girls present.—Reporter.

Someone remarked on the paragraph last Friday in which "soul" appeared where "sole" should have been used. We want you to understand right now, that typesetting machine down stairs can't spell a bit better than our typewriter.

Probate Judge Dave Tingle married his first couple last week just five days after he took office. In fact he married two couples last Saturday. Saturday must be marrying day in Chilton.

* * *

Sheriff Luther Kendricks came by the office the other day and asked us to write an article regarding the scarcity of money and urging people to be more careful than has been their habit in the past. Well, we didn't get around to it right away but made a note of the suggestion. Now comes proof of the wisdom of the Sheriff's statement. He was afraid that since things were tightening up a bit that we would be having more robberies and sure enough Sunday night they struck "Chick" Wade's Jewelry Store. Luke must be psychic.

Jack Hayes reminds us that Saturday, January 31, is the last day you can pay your taxes without added cost. The Tax Collector's office is doing a landoffice business around there but they will find time to take your money too, so go on around and line up. Burns Bennett describes a taxpayer as: "a government worker with no vacation, no sick leave and no holidays." He should have added and no salary.

At a recent shipyard launching, the woman who was to christen the boat was quite nervous. When the shipyard manager perceived this he asked her if she had any questions.

"Yes," replied the woman. "How hard do I have to hit the ship to knock it into the water?"

HILL INTRODUCES BILL TO AID SCHOOLS

Senator Lister Hill has introduced in the Senate a bill to help the States in their back-to-the-wall fight to provide desk space for our rapidly mounting school age population.

The bill would renew an existing temporary program of Federal aid to the States for school construction in areas where defense activities have caused serious overcrowding and extend the program to help other communities suffering severe shortages of school facilities.

In introducing the bill, Hill called the school situation "shocking." The Nation needs well over a quarter of a million new classrooms now," Hill said. He added, "School construction has failed to keep pace with the huge increase in our national birthrate. The wartime crop of babies is over-running the lower grades and will move right on up through the elementary and high schools."

"Six hundred thousand new classrooms will be needed in the Nation within the next five years," the Alabama Senator said.

State's Youngest Probate Judge Is Presented Keys To Office

Again pledging "every citizen an honest and efficient administration," Alabama's youngest Probate Judge, Dave Tingle, entered his office in the courthouse just a week ago today to find his desk loaded down with flowers and the man who had served Chilton County for the past six years to hand over the keys.

Judge Tingle was a mighty humble man that morning as Dr. W. L. Parrish extended to him his hand generously offered his assistance in any way he could.

After his first week in office Judge Tingle offered this exclusive statement to the Chilton County News:

"After being duly sworn in on January 19th, Judge W. L. Parrish met me at the Courthouse at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning and presented me with the keys to the offices that he had occupied for the past six years and wished me all the success possible. He generously offered his assistance in any way possible in getting me started off. I am most grateful to Dr. Parrish for his every effort and assistance.

"I had not been at the courthouse long before beautiful arrangements of flowers started arriving from various friends. I want to thank those who sent the flowers and also the many friends from all over the county who came by to wish me a successful administration. I feel that I have staffed my office with the most efficient and courteous people available anywhere.

"Upon entering the office, I felt very humble, but proud and was greatly impressed with the momentus task that I have ahead of me. I feel that this is your business and, I, as your employee, shall do everything within my power to warrant your confidence when you elected me.

"As an individual citizen, I did not realize the dire need of a new courthouse. Every county office housed in this building is overcrowded. There is not adequate space to store your important records in the manner in which you would like for them to be kept and protected.

Anyone interested in getting a firsthand picture of the courthouse is invited to come by my office and we will be glad to show you around.

Knowing the people of this county as I do and being aware of their pride and progressive nature, I feel that they not only need, but deserve, a courthouse of which we could all point to with pride.

I am proud and happy to be your probate judge and invite you to call on me at any time you feel that I can be of service."

As the new Judge of Probate, Dave Tingle, took over the reigns of Chilton County for the next six years, Dr. W. L. Parrish presented him with the keys to the office that Dr. Parrish vacated last Tuesday morning. Dr. Parrish also offered any help he could to the youngest Probate Judge in Alabama.

Chilton's Health Department Makes Report To You

Jewel Thieves Take $4,000.00 In Jewelry Here Sunday Night

Police officials are combing Chilton County today in an effort to clean up a robbery of several hundred dollars at the Clanton Jewelry Company Store Sunday night

Early Monday morning Clanton Police, under Chief Charles Tucker, had placed the time of the robbery at between 5:00 p.m. and 11:00 p.m. Sunday night. The burglary was first discovered by night patrolmen Carroll, Foshee and Plyler. They reported that entrance was made into the store by forcing out a bar from a rear window leading off a small alley in the rear of the building.

Chief Tucker reported Monday morning that he believed that the burglary was done by professionals in that many of the rings, watches and other stock were well picked over, the thieves leaving only the cheaper merchandise.

Questioned in his place of business early Monday morning, the proprietor of the jewelry store, Chick Wade, told the Clanton County News that the value of the merchandise stolen would "probably run to about $4,000," but that a final inventory had not been run on the stock. Mr. Wade also reported that as far as he could ascertain none of the stock that had been put in for repair had been touched by the robbers.

Chilton County Sheriff Luther Kendrick and his deputies also were called into the case in an effort to apprehend the jewelry thieves, but until press time last night no "breaks" had been reported in the case.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

Everything is returning to normal in Washington. The city is back to a regular routine after finishing its role as host to the largest number of people ever to attend a presidential inauguration.

The first Republican inauguration since 1929 is being called the most spectacular in history. It covered a three-day period jam-packed with events honoring new President Eisenhower. The estimated crowd which actually saw the inauguration ceremonies was the largest ever recorded, and more people either listened to the event on radio or saw it on television than ever before.

An extra long inaugural parade made history, too. Unlike those in the past which have consumed from two to three hours, the 1953 parade took nearly five hours to pass in review.

President Eisenhower's inauguration created still another precedent. For the first time in history the famous inaugural ball was held in two places in order to meet the unusual demand for attendance. A committee in charge of the ball reported that it processed about 15,000 tickets.

The first inaugural ball was held in 1789 when George Washington became President, and since that time it has become an established tradition which marks the end of festivities surrounding the inauguration of the President of the United States.

On inauguration morning at 11:15 I joined all the Congressmen in the House Chamber for a brief meeting. Afterward we marched by two's through the Capitol and out to the presidential platform where we were seated near President Eisenhower. The procession through the Capitol followed a regular program of order and included the members of the House and Senate, the state governors, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Diplomatic Corps, the out-going cabinet and the new cabinet, and the Supreme Court Justices.

After the swearing in ceremonies for the new President and Vice-President, my wife and I viewed the colorful inaugural parade from a reviewing stand on Pennsylvania Avenue. That evening we enjoyed the Alabama State Society's reception for all State's Congressmen; and later the same night we attended the inaugural ball.

Besides the festivities already mentioned, we had the pleasure of attending a reception in honor of the state governors on Sunday before the inauguration. The day following inauguration I took a group of the District visitors through the White House.

During the inauguration it was a pleasure for me to have the opportunity of seeing a number of visitors from the 6th District. I was certainly glad they could be here to witness so many of the recent history-making events.

Legislative Notes—

Chairman A. L. Miller (R-Neb.) of the House Interior Committee predicts that this Congress will approve statehood for Hawaii, but he adds that statehood fog Alaska is "doubtfull." Legislation to give statehood to both countries passed the House in the last Congress, but was not approved by the Senate. However, Rep. Miller says Hawaii's situation is somewhat changed now since several key senators have decided not to oppose Hawaii's statehood as they have done in the past.

Hawaii has petitioned Congress for statehood 17 times since 1903. Alaska's first statehood bill was introduced in 1916, but no action was taken until 1950.

Because of the increasing interest in Hawaii and Alaska, both the Democratic and Republican platforms have included a plank favoring statehood since 1944.

Congress has always required three specific qualifications for statehood. First, the inhabitants of the area must prove they are acquainted with and sympathetic to the principles of American democracy and government. Secondly, the majority of the electorate must have expressed itself as favoring statehood; and finally, the area must contain sufficient population and resources to support State government and carry its share of the cost of Federal government.

Alaska and Hawaii have both voted in favor of statehood.

Rep. Miller says he believes hearings on Hawaiian statehood will open late next month.

Another House committee has hinted that it will soon study the possibility of resuming two-day home mail deliveries. This service was cut in 1950 to one mail delivery a day for residential areas.

Petition Filed To Discontinue Two Trains On L&N Between B'ham And Montgomery

A petition has been filed with the Alabama Public Service Commission by the officers of the L. & N. Railroad to discontinue trains No. 2 and 3 running between Birmingham and Montgomery daily.

The petitioner avers that its petition "is actuated by its desire and duty to institute all economies possible without unreasonably inconveniencing the travelling public."

In the petition officials of the L. & N. Railroad also state:

"Trains Nos. 2 and 3 have been and are operating at a substantial loss to petitioner. The use made of these trains by the traveling public is small. Mail and express can be adequately handled by petitioner's passenger trains which will continue to be operated between Birmingham and Montgomery and by highway transportation facilities.

Presently petitioner operates these trains between Birmingham and Montgomery and in addition operates three other daily passenger trains and another passenger train every third day operating in each direction between Birmingham and Montgomery.

Moreover, fine highways parallel the railroad, and public bus transportation will be available to serve adequately the communities between Birmingham and Montgomery. In addition private automobiles will provide transportation for the people of these places.

Petitioner alleges that the total revenues from the operation of trains Nos. 2 and 3 for a period of twelve months beginning May 1, 1951, and ending April 30, 1952, was $137,091.03, and that the cost of operating these trains for said twelve months' period was $174,736.05. The out-of-pocket loss on the two trains was $37,645.02.

Petitioner alleges that it has practiced all reasonable economies in the operation of said trains, such as converting from steam to diesel locomotives and has taken all steps reasonably possible to induce additional passengers to ride these trains, but in spite of said efforts, very few passengers use these trains and the losses on trains Nos. 2 and 3 are increasing and will continue to increase."

The Commission will, at a future date, set the railroad's petitin for a public hearing before the Commission, and when such hearing is set, notice of the hearing, stating the hour, day and place therefor, the railroad's service may, if they desire, attend or have their representatives attend such hearing and offer evidence in connection with this matter. Such notice will be mailed well in advance of the hearing.

Tommy Easterling's Home Burns Friday

Chilton County opened it's heart during this past week end and as a result today the Tommy Easterling family has a roof over their heads, food in the larder, furniture, clothes and some money.

Almost immediately after the Easterling home burned to the ground just before six o'clock Friday morning after it was struck by lightening, members of the local DAV started a collection of money for the Easterling family. Others from throughout the county heard of the tragedy and by 9 o'clock announcers at radio station WKLF were telling of the need of the stricken family. And as of Monday morning over a truck load of furniture had been turned in as well as clothes, food stuffs and about $175 in cash.

The money for the stricken Easterling family came from Chilton County people from every walk of life. There were donations from officials in the county courthouse, donations from store clerks, housewives, children and members of the Veterans Continuation School, and from Mr. and Mrs. Bob White of the Spigener Funeral Home.

Once again folks of Chilton County opened their hearts to help the stricken family of an Army veteran, who has been declared 100% disabled and spends a good deal of his time in Veterans hospitals.

U. S. AGRICULTURE IN 1952

Figures recently released show that farmers wound up the year 1952 with about the same net income as they earned in 1951, although higher operating costs kept profits below those of 1951. A price decline, which started in June, was clearly noticeable at the end of the year and was estimated at a four per cent decline by December.

Only two crops—oranges and rice—were record crops in 1952, although several crops approached all-time records. Corn and winter wheat were the second largest crops in U. S. history. The soybean crop was also near a record. Cattle increased during the year to a record number of 93,000,000 head compared with 88,000,000 on January 1st, 1952.

Because of a declining export of farm products and continuing high production totals, the new Administration may be faced with the problem of surpluses in 1953. The prospect of surpluses is blamed by some farmers for declining prices.

In this connection, Southern cotton farmers and Western wheat interests are sure to plug for continuation of the 90 per cent parity price support on the so-called basic commodities. Basic commodities, which have long enjoyed this support level, are corn, wheat, cotton, peanuts and tobacco. Northeasterners and Mid-western farm groups will probably favor flexible price supports which operate on the supply-and-demand theory.

The new Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson, of Utah, may have two years in which to work out a new support program. The 82nd Congress extended rigid support policies through 1954 and the 83rd Congress appears content to stand on this until next year, when a new agricultural bill could be worked out, to take effect in 1955.

ADVICE FROM THE HEART (ASSOCIATION)

The American Heart Association recently gave a bit of advice to all those who would avoid death from break downs of the heart and blood vessels between now and the end of March. Each year during the season between now and March 31st, heart and blood vessel failures increase about thirteen per cent.

The main cause for this is that more pneumonia, bronchitis and other illnesses put a greater strain on the heart and circulation. Also, the A.H.A. points out, certain winter activities demand greater physical exertion than other seasonal activities. These include stoking the furnace and pushing off stalled cars, among other things.

The advice of the A.H.A., if you would take good care of your heart, is as follows:

1. Avoid self-diagnosis.
2. Avoid over-exertion.
3. Get plenty of rest.
4. Avoid over-weight.
5. Avoid infections.
6. Don't worry.

From The Sylacauga News, Sylacauga, Ala: A "talking horse" has hit the headlines lately, answering many unsolved questions. This is all right if you can believe a horse. My experience has been that they are unmitigated liars. Once or twice I have inquired of one of the breed how he was coming out in a particular race, and he gave me the wrong answer by half a track. Of course he might have failed to tell the jockey what he told me.

From The Lincoln Times, Lincolnton, N. C.: Today most of us talk about billions as casually as people used to talk about thousands. And that's largely a result of the trend of government in recent years. Our national debt is around $260,000,000,000 and annual spending has been rolling merrily along at an $80,000,000,000 rate. So figures large enough to tax the imagination of a first-class mathematician are commonplace in public discussion.

In view of this, a Reader's Digest item on just what a single, solitary billion amounts to should be of wide interest.

Suppose that your family started a business with a billion dollar surplus in the year A. D. One. And suppose it had been so badly and extravagantly managed that it had lost $1,000 every day of the 1952 years that have gone by since then.

You wouldn't have to worry about it—you'd be a long, long way from broke. For you and your descendants could go right on losing that $1,000 a day until the year 2739 before you'd run out of money!

That's how big a billion is—a solitary billion, not five or ten or fifty of them. It indicates the incredible extent of today's government spending. It shows how much every taxpayer has to gain from government economy and efficiency. Thoroughly documented surveys say that Federal spending alone would be cut by as much as $10,000,000,000 a year without hurting any necessary activity. It's your money they've been so busily throwing away in Washington.

From the Catskill Mountain Star, Saugerties, N. Y.: America has a shortage of males, and its going to grow worse, we learn from an American Medical Association Journal. There aren't so many old maids any more, say the statisticians. The doctors point out that the 1950 census showed 1,430,000 more women than men and declared that the higher male death rate and more women immigrants are increasing the disparity. In the last 11 years, say the insurance men, the marriage rate of American females has increased 16 per cent. And for the first time in 60 years girls over 35 scored more weddings.

It must be because they marry so often these days.

DALE CARNEGIE

MARGARET SHAW, 2198 Pennington, Trenton, New Jersey, as a child of ten years was worried because she thought her mother would become totally blind. Her mother had already lost the sight of one eye. She remembers so well how she lay awake at night and worried. She couldn't help hearing everything that went on in the night. Mother would have spells of dizziness and lose her sight temporarily. Her dad would rub her mother's back vigorously since improvement in circulation seemed to bring back her sight. Her mother had had the very same symptoms before she lost the sight in the other eye a few years previously. All efforts to restore sight in that eye had failed.

CARNEGIE

Margaret [illegible] older sister wept until she thought her heart would break. She can't remember that she cried a great deal, but she worried and lost much sleep. Finally she realized that she wasn't helping her mother by worrying; that there was much to do with the twins and other younger members of the family needing attention. Young as she was she knew this problem was too much for her to handle, that there was a far greater Power to help in such a situation. She prayed hard and often. Not only did she pray, but she figured out just what she would do to help her mother in case she did lose her sight. She would read to her and describe all the flowers and plants that she loved so much.

Well, fortunately she never had to do any of these things because her mother never lost her sight completely. God answered Margaret's prayers.

Make Poultry Flock Think It's Spring

A winter grazing crop will act like a Spring tonic if some of it is cut and fed to the poultry flock.

John Weeks, API Extension poultryman, suggests that farmers feed some of their winter grazing crops to laying hens. Such crops can be cut and fed to layers at the rate of five pounds per day for each 100 hens. Use of green feed will reduce feed costs and improve the health of flocks.

"The green crop can be cut conveniently each day with a lawn mower," adds Weeks. "And a can-vas basket attached to the mower will save time and energy."

Do What's Necessary To Protect Topsoil

Water that runs down-hill carries away topsoil and plant food, warns S. R. Doughty, API Extension soil conservationist.

Bare land, up-and-down-slope row crops, and overgrazed pastures invite rain to carry topsoil away.

You will find that laundered garments will dry very soft if they are rinsed in water to which has been added ½ teaspoonful of powdered borax for each quart.

Letter To The Editor

To All Our Chilton County Neighbors and Friends:

Here's a few lines from down Mobile way. Seems there's never a dull day here, and at this season of the year people from all parts of the world are coming to Mobile to view our beautiful camelias and azaleas, for which our city is famous. It seems now that they will be more beautiful this year than ever, but of course weather conditions will determine the beauty of all the flowers, which only our Great Creator Who giveth real beauty to all things of the universe can determine how it shall be.

It appears to us there's more thought given to the Marti Gras season coming in February than to the flowers, which is just a lot of nonsense and foolishness, and it is a shame that the time and money is spent in such a way.

Just nine years ago we moved from Chilton County to Mobile, and have seen a lot of changes, both good and bad, but God has been so very good to us.

We have made a lot of friends in Mobile for which we are thankful.

Every so often we meet some one from Chilton County, and we always think of them as our homefolks.

We read with interest all the news from home, so all you correspondents and community reporters, we are depending on you for news, so please don't disappoint us. Often times things that seems little or uninteresting to you would be big news to us, so keep the News coming. It is like a letter from home to get the Chilton County papers.

If this misses the waste-basket, will write again in the near future.

Best wishes and may God bless all of you.

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. Emeline Ingles, Kendrith, Idaho: I remember when old fashioned spelling bees were the favorite social function of the community. Two would choose sides, each trying to get the best spellers. Sometimes it was the parents against the youngsters; sometimes it was the men and boys against the women and girls. Each side lined up on opposite sides of the room and the last speller down was the honored one.

From Mrs. Edward Koch, Ft. Recovery, Ohio: I remember, in the church I attended as a child, the men all sat on one side of the aisle and the ladies on the other, and when the sexton (as he was called) took up the collection he didn't use a plate, but had a long pole, nicely varnished with a black velvet bag fastened on one end, and to the bottom of this bag was attached a small bell. He would stand in the aisle and pass this bag down the length of the pew, giving it a vigorous shake in front of each person in the pew, who, in turn put in a penny. Since the collection was taken after a long sermon, there was probably a reason for the bell.

From Mrs. Mabel Cadotte, Kelly Lake, Minnesota: I remember the little Ford with the square lights high up on the sides. The motorists wore long coats called "dusters". The men wore caps and goggles, the women long veils over their hats. There were women drivers in those days. They always drove from the front seat, not the back.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

A child's vocabulary may be somewhat limited, but if you listen carefully to children's conversations you discover that they aren't at all hampered by their limitations. If they don't know the proper word to use, they merely make up a word to fit the situation, and usually their concocted word is much better than any listed in Webster's famous collection.

The other morning the three-year-old was limping down the sidewalk. Finally he sat down and began tugging at his cowboy boot to get it off.

"What's wrong?" I asked.

"Well," he explained, "it's my sock. It's all schringled up inside my boot."

When he got his boot off, that's exactly what was wrong. After we got the sock "unschringled" everything was all right again.

Soup has long been one of our favorite foods around our house (even the baby likes soup), but it took the next door neighbor to teach us some new ideas to try in making it.

She advises adding two or three cloves to vegetable soup while it is cooking to add flavor interest. The clves should be removed before the soup is served, she says.

And when she finds wrinkled, withered apples in her fruit basket, she doesn't throw them away, but adds them to her vegetable soup.

If her soup is too greasy, she drops a lettuce leaf into the pot to absorb the excess grease. Sometimes she uses a paper towel to remove the grease, but she prefers the lettuce leaf.

Speaking of lettuce leaves, French cooks always add them to their vegetable soup. They use the wilted, battered leaves from the outside of the head, the ones most people throw away.

Sometimes our neighbor finds that she has prepared more soup than her family can eat at one meal. On those occasions, she boils the left over soup (the kind made the old-fashioned way with a soup bone) until it is quite concentrated. Then she cools the stock, pours it into the ice cube tray of her refrigerator and freezes it until it is needed for another meal.

She's a thrifty soul, our next door neighbor is. She declares it is wasteful to add onion seasonings or other vegetable seasonings to soup until the very last. Otherwise all the flavor is lost in the steam.

Her cream soups never arrive at the table with an unappetizing surface film on them. She chases the film away by whipping the soups to a froth with an egg beater just before time to serve them.

* * *

If all this writing about soup has made you want to add it to your menu, here's a good recipe for cream of onion and cheese soup for you to try:

Place 3 tablespoons of butter or margarine in the top of a double boiler and melt it over direct heat. Add 2 cups sliced onions and cook over low heat, stirring, about 5 minutes. Place boiler over hot water. Blend in 3 tablespons flour. Add 4 cups milk, cooking and stirring until thickened. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Stir in one cup grated American cheese. Serve as soon as cheese has melted.

PLASTIC SURGERY

Many children are born with defects such as harelips, cleft palates, and deformities of the lower jaw and the ears. While these imperfections at birth are unfortunate, the fault does not rest with the parents. The advances in plastic surgery make it possible to correct these imperfections, leaving in most cases little or no scarring.

Timing is an important factor in plastic surgery, particularly in the young child. Parents, when advised by the surgeon to delay the corrective surgery for awhile, are inclined toward skepticism, not quite understanding that the growth pattern in the child must be carefully considered. On the other hand, there are some imperfections that must be corrected very early to direct the bone growth properly.

In the child, the growth potential is the ability to grow or enlarge in a normal pattern. If the corrective procedure is not timed accurately, there is danger of interfering with the growth potential and even stopping the normal development. Closing a cleft of the lip, for example, within the first six weeks of life, provided the general health of the baby is satisfactory, is generally acceptable. On the other hand it is not generally advisable to correct a cleft of the palate so early. Individual growth patterns must be studied, and very often a second and even third operation must be done to accomplish the desired effect.

While surgery accounts for a good percentage in rehabilitation of these tiny patients, some of the cleft palates can be closed to good advantage by means of artificial palate or what is known as a prosthesis.

The formation of scar tissue, the interference with blood supply and actual interference of bone forming cells are main factors considered by the plastic surgeon. These are particularly essential in traumatic or accidental injuries, where bones have been pushed back or where healing processes have resulted in scar tissue such as in burns.

In any case, the possibilities lie in taking advantage of the growth potential. If properly timed, it is possible to aid in directing this growth if it happens to be abnormal at the start.

EARLY VEGETABLE

Asparagus is one of the earliest Spring vegetables and is considered one of the garden delicacies by many folks. January is the time to plant crowns. Stalks will be ready for harvest the following Spring. One planting will last 10 or more years.

Fit Farm Marketing To Consumer Needs

Auburn, Ala. — A product delivered to market at the time it is needed by buyers and consumers is one of the keys to better business on every farm.

"This fact is especially important in times of heavy supply and high production during 1953," declares A. W. Jones, API Extension marketing specialist.

He points out that a piling up of supplies at one time of the year and a scarcity at another time does not lend itself to good marketing. This is particularly true of many perishables that Alabama farmers are producing in greater quantities than ever before.

Surplus milk production in the Spring and Summer followed by a scarcity in Fall and Winter has been a problem for many dairymen. Many poultrymen have had a similar experience with eggs.

"These are examples of some adjustments needed in marketing to fit the needs of people who buy and consume farm products," states Jones. "Similar problems affect almost every product that farmers grow for sale. Therefore, one big job of every good farmer is to find out how to fit marketing of his products to consumer needs. This should help him satisfy the consumer and, at the same time, get the most for his year's work."

BY PAUL TULIEN

CHARLEY WALTERS had promised to come at one o'clock to help me with my haying, but it was almost two before he finally came. And he wasn't wearing the grin that had won him the name of Happy back in our school days.

"What's the matter, Charley?" I asked. "Did the rain delay you, or did your wife run off with the hired man?"

He ignored my question. It hadn't rained, and Charley had neither wife nor hired man.

"Remember Ben Rant's pig that got its picture in the paper because it had a V-shaped marking on one side?" he asked.

"You bought it?"

"No. It's gone and they say I stole it."

"You!" I exclaimed.

He savagely stabbed the ground with his pitchfork. "I've got a pig with a V on it too, and some skunk driving by happened to see it, so the hot-footed it to Ben to tell him where his pig was."

"That's pretty flimsy proof, if you ask me," I said. "They'll need more evidence than that."

"They've got it. They say I was in town late Saturday night when the pig was stolen, and I drove along Ben's street after midnight on my way home."

"You're always in town late on Saturday night. Has somebody been out to see you about it?"

"Ben and the town marshal were out this noon—that's why I'm late over here. Ben gave me till Friday to give up the pig peaceably and he won't prosecute."

Next day I was helping Charley in return. It was a still, sweltering afternoon with rain likely before long.

A car stopped on the highway and a man got out and came across the field toward us. It was Chris Dawson, editor of the paper that had printed the pig's picture with a humorous story that the V stood for vittles.

"I came to see about the pig, Charley," he said. "I don't like to see a dispute like this. It isn't good for the community.'

"Oh, yeah" retorted Charley. "If you hadn't taken that picture Ben wouldn't have his phony proof."

"I'm sorry Charley, but maybe it can settle it satisfactorily. We're raising money for flood relief, so if you'll donate that pig I'll get Ben to drop his suit. Are you willing?"

"Sure, but the question is: Is Ben willing?"

"I'll appeal to his better nature."

Charley grimaced. "If he has any."

"I'm sure he has."

Charley glanced at the threatening thunderhead swelling up in the west. "Oh, yeah! And next you'll say that cloud's full of chocolate pudding."

The clouds passed by without a sprinkle. When we came in to the barn with the last load of alfalfa, Dawson was waiting for us.

"What luck?" I asked.

"None. He said Charley was mighty generous to offer someone else's property, and he'd be willing to do that too. If he gets the pig I hope he chokes to death on a piece of gristle. I'll write his obit with pleasure."

"What brings you back?" Charley asked. "Another bright idea?"

"We'll see how bright it is. If you'll show me the pig I may find some difference you missed."

Charley laughed a little sarcastically. "I've tended hogs ever since I was big enough to carry a bucket of slop. If I can't find any difference, how could you?"

"Why not? I've worked in a newspaper office 40 years, yet most of my subscribers think they could get out a better paper than I do."

"Maybe they could. They mightn't print any pictures."

The three of us went to look at the pig. The editor put on his specs and studied the picture and the pig.

I looked a little, too, over his shoulder, but I couldn't see any difference. The picture showed a black pig except for the white V-shaped marking. The marking in the picture and on Charley's pig were surprisingly alike.

Suddenly Dawson began to laugh. "You dope!" he cried. "Didn't you see their tails curl in a different direction?"

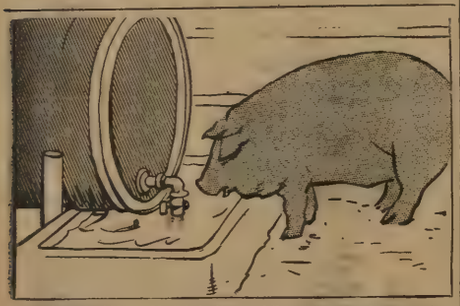
"Take it easy!" Charley advised. "Pigs' tails curl either way."

"Not the same pig's. Some pigs curl their tails one way and some the other way, but no one pig curls his either way."

"Sure, that's right! I ought to get kicked for not thinking of it!"

"Still willing to give it to flood relief?" Dawson asked.

"Sure! Only get him off my place by tomorrow. V may stand for vittles otherwise, but on that pig it just stands for vexation!"



HOG TROUGH . . . No this isn't one of the new-regime bureaucrats obtaining his place at the trough. It's a way to save time watering hogs. Drum supplies enough water to water 50 head of hogs for about 48 hours.

PREDICTS SNOW . . . Weatherman Ernest C. Johnson of Albany, N. Y., finds himself marooned atop his car by heavy snowfall which he predicted.

THE FIRST WAVE of consciousness came over him like a breath of fresh air in some long forgotten cave. He was vaguely conscious of a clean white hospital room smelling faintly of antiseptic, and by turning his eyes to one side he could see a nurse in her crisp uniform reading a novel by the window.

It was an effort to move, even his eyes. His every bone, every muscle ached as if a thousand red hot needles were stabbing his prostrate body. Presently he began to drift off into a restless slumber. The bed grew wings, the hospital walls became fleecy clouds, and once more he was flying the plane he had flown on his last mission.

The whole thing was quite unreal. In his enfeebled state he flew the plane higher into the Korean sky. He could feel his hands, moist, gripping the controls. His hands, that was it; he somehow knew that if he could hold tight with his hands, everything would be all right.

Once more he saw the Red fighters coming in fast over to the left. He waved his hand to signal to his wing man to follow him in to the attack. His hand, giving the signal.

The Red lead plane made a feint attack on the flight, while the others had peeled off and were coming in for an attack in the rear.

He reached down with his left hand and turned the oxygen valve fully open. He could feel its knurled knob twist easily between his able fingers.

The Red plane was right in front of him now, but he was not conscious of space or distance or time. It was somebody else doing all this, not him. Yet he could feel his hands skillfully guiding his plane for the attack on the Red fighter.

And then his thumb on the gun button. He felt the button give as he pressed, heard the crescendo roar of his guns, but the scene was not real. Hold tight onto those controls. Don't let go with your hands, now. Keep a firm grip.

His shots went wide of the mark as the Red fighter hung tauntingly in the air before him. This couldn't be. He had shot it down, he knew he had. He passed his hand over his fevered brow and felt the drops of perspiration there. Oh, if he could only sleep. But he mustn't sleep in the air. Why is everything acting so funny? A wave of nausea started to get him, but he was able to fight it off by holding more tightly with his hands.

There, that's better now. Good old hands. He could see the Red fighter again a mere five hundred yards ahead. Again his hand went to the gun button, again he felt it give under the pressure of his thumb. The roar of his guns was deafening in his ears, but he held his burst of fire until he saw a puff of smoke come from his adversary, and knew that his guns had done their job.

And then the shattering impact as something hit his plane. It bucked like a frightened horse, shaking him in his seat. His right hand flew to the canopy release, his left to the ejection switch. His deft fingers felt their way through the emergency procedure which had long been habit.

Again the nausea started to flood over him, its grim tentacles trying to hold him in their deadly grasp, but by gripping tightly to the ripcord he was able to overcome it.

He was falling through space. Wasn't he supposed to do something? What was it? What was it? Oh yes, he must pull the ripcord to open the parachute. He felt his fingers close around the cool metal as he tugged violently . . .

There he was in bed again. He could just manage to move his eyes enough to see that there were two other people in the room now —the same crisp nurse, and a doctor. The doctor was saying, "He'll pull through all right. He's been a very lucky fellow. It's a shame I had to amputate his hands yesterday".

DOORS TOO CLEAN

Woonsocket, R.I. — Armand J. Blandel opened the outer doors of the Woonsocket hospital and walked in. He walked into a second set of doors he didn't see at all and kept walking—right into the hospital accident room for treatment of a bruised nose, forehead, and knee. The glass door was so clean and shiny, he couldn't see it.

THORSBY NEWS

ESTELLE HAYES

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. G. Rogers, Miss Naemi Turnquist and Mrs. Marie Reagan motored to Birmingham Sunday afternoon for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Foss and the Karl Petersons. Mrs. Reagan remained for a short visit with her sisters.

On last Tuesday afternoon, friends here enjoyed seeing on Television, "Mamma Tadpole" and her little tadpoles in action. Mamma Tadpole is none other than our own Esther Johnson Garrett of Birmingham. Esther put her school children through a barage of questioning that would stump the smartest adult, and they answered them as fast as they were given to them. The program was unrehearsed and they did not know what questions were being asked. We are told that they are one of the smartest groups of children in the school and they really love "Mamma Tadpole."

Lutheran Church News—

The Service 11:00.
Sunday School 10:00.
Everybody welcome.

With all of the colds and flu prevalent now and consequently the drop in church attendance, I am reminded of a story that I once heard a prominent South Carolina Methodist minister tell. Deploring the flimsy reasons people sometimes give for missing church, he said: "It is truly amazing at the pretexts people will give for missing church, the foremost being, "it might give me a cold.' They don't mind waiting in the cold to see a movie, or standing in the rain at the liquor store; the miracle drugs will take care of that ailment in 24 hours. The cold you catch at church is a vicious disease, however, that penicillin won't touch."

He had a point there. Of course, he wasn't advocating that flu cases should come to church, or that a sickly person should take an unnecsary risk; if you are really sick and have a bona fide illness, stay home. But people use the flimsiest excuses to keep them away from church. If a highly publicized movie, especially one that is "for adults only," is playing at the neighborhood theatre, nothing short of another 40-day flood would keep the crowd away; but let one drop of rain fall on Sunday, or even the atmosphere be a little heavy, people suddenly become "health conscious." "Oh, that men would praise the Lord, for He is good, and His mercy endureth forever." The call today is for more energetic Christians who are burdened for the lost and serious about the Lord's business.

Unless sickness prevents, Emily Carolyn, the infant daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Morgan, will be received into the church by the sacrament of Holy Baptism February 15th at the morning service. Rev. David F. Conrad of Montgomery has agreed to come and perform this ceremony. Rev. Conrad married the Morgans while he was pastor of Christ Lutheran Church in Birmingham.

Rev. and Mrs. Morgan were called suddenly to Birmingham Monday morning due to the illness of her mother, Mrs. M. L. Hodges.

Our congregation is putting out a monthly news bulletin entitled "Lutheran Parish News." This was originally intended for the benefit of the members of the church, but I have received requests for copies from others. If you would like a copy we would be glad to supply you with one as long as they last. The supply is limited so "first come, first served." Write to: The Lutheran Church, Thorsby, Ala.

The school turned out Tuesday to see the Inauguration of the President. The girls, Miss Jenkins and Mrs. Petersen went to the home of Mrs. Arden Folk, who offered the use of her television. Mr. Hart, Mr. Williams, Mr. Timmerman, and the boys went to the home of Alan Howard. The students saw the inauguration and the parade which followed. It was an exciting event for all who saw it.

Alabama College Holds Its Traditional College Night

Montevallo, Ala. — It's time again for one of the most exciting all-student productions of the South—College Night!

For the 34th year at Alabama College at Montevallo, the entire student body is dividing into two sides—Purples and Golds—to compete with each other in presenting the best drama, music, and staging.

College Night, all-student production scheduled this year for February 19, 20, and 21, is the culmination of four weeks' creative activity by each side, with students writing, staging, directing, and handling every detail of an original musical-dramatic production.

College Night began as a simple observance of George Washington's birthday and has grown into a three night performance of Broadway proportions. Thousands of visitors come annually to the spectacle now staged in Palmer Auditorium on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights nearest Washington's birthday.

Competition between Purples and Golds runs riot until the decision of out-of-town judges is announced on Saturday night, when the Alumnea-of-the-year is also introduced, for Homecoming has now become a traditional part of College Night.

College Night activity began this week with selection of leaders and cabinet members for each side. Cabinet members selected by the Gold leader June Segler, Dothan, and her assistant leader, Pat Howe, Monroeville, are: ARTISTS: Lucy Burge, Birmingham; Gloria Smith, Birmingham; and Sydney Riggs, Cincinnati, O.; BUSINESS MANAGER: Billie Ann Engle, Onenta; COSTUMES: Joyce Caraway, Clayton; Laura Cleveland, Lawley; and Jean Wheeler, West Point, Ga. DIRECTOR: Elsie Singley, Greensboro. LIGHTING: Betty Hines, Sylacauga; and Dolly Brumfield, Prichard. MAKE-UP: Pat Hornung, Mobile. BRANT HARRIS swaggered into the town's one lunch room and slid onto a stool. He glanced about defiantly at the loafers taking him in.

"Cup of coffee—black," he ordered sharply.

"Coming up," Nate, the owner, grinned, winking at the others. "Right on the new job bright and early, I see. How many arrests have you made already, Constable?"

A snicker went around. Brant knew well enough his appointment by the village board hadn't gone over too well, but he'd soon show them who was boss.

"None yet, but I'm on my way. This town is going to get a cleaning up and some of the shysters are going to kick in for violations from now on. The speeders and the stop-sign-violaters and the other law-breakers are going to get it. Take old Peg-leg, for instance."

"What's HE done?" they laughed, gathering closer. Peg-leg was the town character and as harmless as he was simple.

"Sellin' live bait without a license, that's what. The fishermen stop there by the dozen on their way into the lake, and he makes a killing. It's things like that are keepin' the town coffers empty, and I aim to fix him come tomorrow." He gulped his coffee, glared around belligerently and stalked out. He could hear the guffaws as he went on up the street, but he didn't care.

* * *

The next morning he made his way up the lake road to Peg-leg's shack at the edge of town. A dozen cats scurried away from the door as he strode up on the stoop. Peg-leg's old boat was tied at the pier so he must be in, but it was a long time before Brant's hammering brought an answer.

"Yeah? Who's there?" The door opened a crack and another cat or two squeezed through. Peg-leg's grizzled beard and shaggy head peered out.

"It's me, Harris," Brant answered. The old guy probably hadn't heard of his new appointment. "Want to do a little fishin' today. How's about some bait?"

Peg-leg opened the door and grinned. "Wa-al now, a customer! And so bright and early in the mornin' too. Looks like I can git me another slab of bacon after all." He came out on the stoop shrugging into his old plaid mackinaw, for the air was crisp, and tugging his coonskin cap down on his head. He hobbled down the steps. "Come right along, Harris. Got some nice juicy night-crawlers, or would you druther hev some chubs?"

"Just some shiners, I guess. I'm not tryin' for muskie."

"Got nothin' but chubs left this mornin'," Peg-leg informed him. "Had a run on bait yesterday. That'll cost you two bucks. Good big ones."

Brant hesitated, but it would be worth it. "All right, here you are," and he handed Peg-leg two ones and took the can. "Now then, you're under arrest," he announced.

Peg-leg only stalled. "Now what in tunket for, I'd like to know?"

"For sellin' bait without a license," Brant smirked.

Peg-leg grinned then. "But I've got a license. Here, here it is." He pulled out a greasy old wallet and exhibited a nice fresh license.

Brant slapped the bait can down on the bank. "Why you, you——" But there wasn't a thing he could do about it, except pick up his bait and go on.

"Hey," Peg-leg called after him. "Effen you don't want them bait, I'll buy 'em back for a dollar," he offered.

Brant came back. No use losing a buck on this crazy deal. He set the chubs down. "That's more like it," he said. "Only worth a dollar to begin with, you old racketeer," and he pocketed the dollar and drove off.

* * *

The next morning when he stepped into the J.P.'s office a smile went around. Judge Hay wiped off a grin and handed him a paper.

"Sorry to do this, Constable, but I guess I've got to serve you with this warrant."

"Warrant? What in tarnation for?" Brant stared at the paper in his hand and scratched his head as he tried to understand it all.

"For selling bait without a license," the judge informed him. "Old Peg-leg was in yesterday afternoon and swore it out for you. Says you sold him some suckers for a dollar. He says you——"

But Brant didn't listen to the rest of it. He knew it all too well. A nice fat fine and a dollar for a batch of suckers, and here it turned out he was the biggest sucker of all.

My Pet Peeve

THE lady who came into the theater and sat down in front of me, accompanied by an elderly companion, was, for a while, my favorite kind of movie patron. She was small, she had a poodle cut and a very small hat. It wasn't any trouble to see over her at all.

My lucky day, I decided, and settled down to watch the hero battle the villian with swords, during which they raced up and down stairways, jumped on tables, and swung from the chandelier.

Then, unexpectedly, the hero said, "This girdle is killing me."

"What," I yelped aloud, before I realized it wasn't the hero but the little lady in front of me.

She turned and glared. At least I think it was a glare. "I wasn't talking to you," she snapped.

"Fresh!" snorted her companion.

"Pardon me, ladies," says I. "I thought it was the hero who said his girdle was killing him.

The little lady proceeded to give me a tongue lashing. She ended by saying she was sure the hero, Double Douglas, didn't wear a girdle.

"You did, too," the little lady said. "You said Double Douglas wore a girdle. If you don't shut up I'm going to call the manager."

"But lady," I protested.

"Silence," the guy behind hissed.

CHRIST'S HIDDEN LIFE

THE Apostle Paul says that Christ was like to us in all things, save sin. The Gospels tell the story of those last three years of His life, during which He went about His Father's business—teaching, preaching and healing. They merely mention the thirty years when Christ lived a hidden and apparently undistinguished life.

Those thirty years are, nevertheless, all-important; for they contain a deeply significant lesson. The lesson is in the very fact that there were, indeed, years of ordinary living. Far from being was some might think, wasted years, they served to drive home the point that ordinary living can, and should be, both holy and exalted.

The great mass of men whose lives follow a humdrum pattern are indebted to Christ for the long time He lived in humble obscurity. When the Son of God said His prayers at His mother's knee, He was like every child who grows and develops in the quietness of an ordinary home.

The shining glory of Christ's hidden life lay in His utter obedience to God's will. It is just as wonderful to think of the Boy Christ humbly doing the bidding of His mother as it is to reflect on the Man Christ accepting the bitter chalice of Gethsemane. At all times and in all things—great or small—Christ unswervingly followed the wishes and desires of His Father in heaven. In this He set a pattern for all who would follow Him, whether they be ruler or kings, or just plain, ordinary people.

EXTRA MEN NEEDED TO STOP LAWLESS NIGHT HUNTERS

Montgomery, Ala.—State Game and Fish Division Chief Graham Hixon said today that he has ordered six special game wardens to southwest Alabama to assist in stopping headlight hunting and poaching of deer and turkeys.

Hixon said deer and turkeys have been concentrated in small areas where they were driven from flooded bottomlands in the wet weather. This has caused more poaching and out of season hunting than normal, he said.

Every effort is being made to catch and prosecute to the fullest extent of the law those persons who hunt deer and turkeys illegally, Hixon said.

Keep Fabric Labels Ready For Reference

All labels on newly purchased fabrics should be read and then tacked away for safe keeping.

Kathleen Thompson, API Extension clothing specialist, explains that instructions about the care of one garment may be quite different from the care of another. One fabric may be suitable for dry-cleaning only, while another should be washed. Some material may be cleaned either way.

"Therefore," says the specialist, "following instructions found on labels is the only way to get best results from a particular fabric."

GOOD EYE SIGHT BLESSING—TAKE CARE OF YOUR EYES

Montgomery, Ala.—Much of the fear which people have of visual defects is unjustified, according to Alabama's State Health Officer.

"There is no doubt that serious visual deficiency can bring on a number of other serious problems," Dr. D. G. Gill said today. "Bad eyesight may handicap a person seriously in his efforts to get and hold a good job. It may prevent a child from getting an education. And, unfortunately, it may change a self-supporting person into one who is forced to accept some form of charity, either public or private. So the fear of bad eyesight is entirely understandable. However, much progress has been made in recent years in keeping good eyes good. Even those which have received injuries are often saved. Notwithstanding that progress, everyone should take the best possible care of his or her eyes."

Instead of labeling individually many glasses of jelly containing the same flavor, store the jars in a box and place one label on the outside. This not only saves time, but being in a box, the jars will be protected from dust.

Smashes The Dairy Production Record

BIBLES FOR EUROPE . . . Dr. Carl McIntire, president of International Council of Christian Churches, announces plan to drop Bibles attached to balloons into iron-curtain countries.

Carnation, Wash.—A cow which gives more than seven times the amount of milk obtained from an average dairy cow smashed the world's butterfat production record here last week.

On January 13, Carnation Homestead Daisy Madcap completed a 365-day test under constant supervision of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America. Performing under the world's most rigid and exacting rules which forbid artificial stimulants and abnormal feeding, Daisy set these world's records:

1. A new, one-year mark of 1511.8 pounds of butterfat.

2. A new, one-year average, over three 365-day test periods, of 1364.6 pounds of butterfat.

Daisy is the first fourth-generation cow which, with each of her ancestors, has produced more than 1,000 pounds of butterfat in a year.

Daisy gave each day about 46 quarts of milk, containing enough butterfat to prepare more than five pounds of butter. While she ate two or three times as much as the average dairy cow, her production was seven times the average.

This, officials of the Carnation Milk Farms said, means that an answer is being found to the world's diminishing milk supply. The total number of U. S. cows dropped from 25.6 million in 1944 to 21.6 million this year. Carnation officials said that Daisy's new records are the result of more than a quarter-century of careful breeding and scientific feeding.

QUAIL HUNTING REPORTED POOR

State Conservation Director Earl M. McGowin said today reports indicate that quail hunting has been poor during the first part of the season which began Nov. 27 but there will likely be better hunting before legal shooting ends Feb. 20.

McGowin said State game biologists report that the quail were scattered in woods and inaccessible places during the early part of the season. Dry weather also made hunting bad. However, feed is getting scarce in most places and they will be concentrated in fields and other normal habitat better suited to hunting.

Shooting has been good in some areas, very poor in others, according to reports from county wardens. The quail has been on a slow decline in Alabama in recent years because of a trend toward large pastured areas and dense forests which do not provide suitable habitat.

MEAT PRODUCTION

Commercial meat production during the first 10 months of last year was 62 per cent larger than the same period in 1951.

The Myth Of War Prosperity

BUDGET "BALANCES" . . . Sen. Styles Bridges, (R), N. H., chairman of Senate appropriations committee, weighs Truman's farewell spending budget of $78,587,000,000. GOP leader promise reduction.

Anyone who gives the matter any thought at all knows that absolutely unproductive expenditures, such as our present defense and war expenditures, cannot possibly produce prosperity. Yet the myth persists that they do, and this belief permeates all ranks, from high to low.

In his last major speech to Congress, the annual economic report, President Truman predicted "unparalleled prosperity" throughout 1953, but added that there are "some signs of trends in the opposite direction," and said that adjustments will have to be made to take up the slack when defense spending levels off late this year.

The belief spreads into the ranks of the forecasters, such a forecast in a popular magazine recently containing such comments as: Arms spending will underwrite active business; business setback will become less likely if war goes on; depression of a severe kind simply is not in sight, as spending on arms cannot be cut drastically as long as a war is under way.

A well-Known economist recently said that a recession is in the cards in the not-far-distant future, that it seemed very probable whenever arms spending turns down substantially.

Even bankers, who should be as sane and sensible about such matters as people can be, fall into the same fallacious reasoning. A poll of the opinions of bankers in a certain city recently on the economic outlook revealed that they were optimistic but that they based their optimism on the Government's continued heavy expenditures for armaments for the defense program.

It is even rumored that certain of the Communist leaders in Russia are of the opinion that they should allow the Korean war to end, in the belief that it is war spending that supports our economy and that ending of the war would bring economic collapse in this country, and they would gain their ends without further fighting.

Closely allied to this line of reasoning is the belief held by many people in Britain, Europe and elsewhere that lend-lease and Marshall Aid has helped us just as much or more than it has helped them, that it was devised for that purpose, that without the economic activity produced in the United States by these give-away programs, we would have had much unemployment and a consequent depression.

This whole attitude, of course, is part and parcel of the philosophy that has been promulgated among us in recent years—and that has misled so many of us—that we can spend ourselves into prosperity; that if we spend enough dollars—no matter what we spend them for—we can buy prosperity.

There was never any more fallacious philosophy than that defense spending and give-away spending can produce prosperity. Such spending may give the people generally a feeling of prosperity because they have more dollars in their pockets, but they are inflated dollars and inflation will eventually destroy a nation as inevitably as war and famine.

We had just as well make up our minds right now that if we cannot have prosperity in time of peace, then we don't deserve prosperity. If prosperity must be bought with the blood of our sons in far away lands, then we shouldn't want prosperity.

But we can have prosperity in time of peace. It is ridiculous to take any other attitude. This belief that our prosperity depends upon defense expenditures is a sort of hypnosis that has befallen us in recent years. We must rid ourselves of all such thinking and of the leadership that indulges in it.

It's high time we came to our senses on this question. There are multitudes of things that people want; there are many better ways of doing things and new products to be made; there are thousands of ways to raise our standard of living. That is the road to real prosperity.

Early Attention For The Strawberry Patch

Auburn, Ala. — Strawberries should receive an application of 500 pounds of 6-8-4 fertilizer per acre about 90 days before the normal ripening season, according to John Bagby, API Extension horticulturist.

He says this amount of fertilizer is needed by plants if they are to develop good size fruits. If a farmer has a small strawberry patch, about two quarts of 6-8-4 per 100 feet of row is the right amount to apply.

Bagby adds that a good three to four-inch mulch of pine, wheat, or oat straw should also be applied and worked down around the plants by hand. This practice will help serve the moisture in the soil; keep down grass and weeds, eliminating much hand weeding; and keep berries off the ground, helping to prevent them from becoming sandy and rotten.

Plentiful Eggs Can Be Used Many Ways

Auburn, Ala. — The egg is the cement that holds the castles of cookery together.

Eggs can be used to thicken a custard or sauce, to leaven or lighten a souffle or cake, and to hold together oil and vinegar in making mayonnaise.

They can be used in the main dish of meals in souffles, omelets and panecakes, as the main course of a breakfast or luncheon, and in many beverages, salads and desserts.

CHIMNEY DOWN DRAFTS

Avoid chimney down drafts by providing more combustion air for the fireplace or heating plant. This can be done by building an air duct from the outside of the house to the fireplace or furnace.

Training School Lions Win 2 Games And Lose 2

By — The Saint

Hello, sports fans. Sorry to have missed you in the last two issues of the news, nevertheless, here goes again.

January 7 the Training School Lions visited the Booker Washington Yellow Jackets in Montgomery. The Girls won out 15-14 over the Washington as the boys dropped their first game of the season 63-42. Charles Shelton of the Lions sank 19 points against the Jackets who have the same team that won five district tournaments last year. January 14 the Training School entertained the Alabama State Laboratory High Golden Gophers, Alma Mater of Coach Bell of the Lions. This team coached by Prof. Lockheart since 1930 and maybe longer has pioneered Negro high school basketball in the state. These lads, also from Montgomery, downed the Lions on their home court 48-43. State led at the half 29-25.

John Henry Rogers led in points with 15. For State it was No. 61, Martin, who sank 23.

On the next day the Lions, tempered in the Gopher brimstone the day before, blew the cinders from their boilers into the eyes of the North Highlanders of Prattville as they singed these Blue Devils 51-33. Dan Oden, a new star among the cinders, sank 15 points to lead the Lions with J. Rogers next with 12. The Lions led at half-time 25-24.

January 21, the Lions and Lionettes stacked into their gratitous "Bluehourid" and wound up in Wetumpka where they conquered another double-header from the Elmore County Training School. The Lionettes, led by G. Bolding who hit for 10 and bolstered by M. Ervine and E. Wilson who spit 16 evenly between each other led the Elmore Lassies at the end of the third quarter 32-22. Here they iced the ball, the crowd, and the game for three minutes. Final score? 33-22. Lionettes. Rosie Cole was missed, being ill with influenza and what have you. The Lions took over here and ran up a first quarter score of 16-12. Lions. However, they lost a talon or two and dropped behind at half-time 31-26. Still behind at the end of three quarters 42-41, the Lions suddenly felt their dextrose as Elmore sprung a leak so they burned sugar and Elmore with 31 points in the fourth quarter setting two records and winning sweetly 71 to 49. McCoy with 16, Rogers with 15, Oden with 13 and C. Shelton with 11 were standouts for the Training School Lions. The leak for Elmore, a lad named Cook, hit for 31 points before exhaustion overtook him in the third quarter of the fracas.

In three games this season, Gladys Bolding leads the Lionettes in scoring with 24 points followed by M. Ervine and R. Cole with 10 each, M. Gardener and E. Wilson with 8 each, L. Brown with 6 and R. Barbour with 2.

For the boys Charles Shelton leads with an even 50 hounded by J. Rogers with 33, Willie McCoy with 30, E. Singleterry with 15, H. Price and M. Cole tied with 8 apiece.

In five games the Lions have won three garnering 234 points for a 46.8 average while the opposition has netted 211 for a 42.5 average. The Lionettes have won all three of their contests. Rip snortin', eh?

Boost the Lions. They represent the County in the State. Come out and see them in action Jan. 29 against Carver High, Jan. 30 against Coosa County, Feb. 6 against St. Jude, Feb. 10 against Bibb County, Feb. 12 against Shiloh, Feb. 19 against the mighty Booker Washington, and Feb. 26 against Autauga County.

And now, this episode closes, see you again next week. Remember, boost the Lions.

MORE QUAIL

Hunters have found that good cover and food are the only insurance which will provide plenty of quail on Alabama farms. Some good food crops are bicolor lespedeza, partridge peas, common lespedeza, and Florida beggarweed.

Athens College Offers Vocational Training

Many four-year colleges with liberal arts background frown on the role of vocations or life career experiences in the college program. But not so at Athens College. In the four divisions of the college curriculum, one is named MAN AND HIS VOCATIONS. This is so, for the objectives of the college commit it to the improvement of the total life rather than a segment of it. However, the college does not propose to provide total vocational education for all careers or for many of them. Rather, it has limited its role in this division, and in addition, defined rather sharply its functions. What, then does this part of the prgram contemplate?

Historically, the college has provided education for the ministry to a limited degree, for public school teaching, and for various kinds of business. It will continue these services and attempt to improve them greatly. To these three functions, are added the following: (1) Vocational field experiences for all seniors, even though they are not in the three categories listed above; (2) Development and exercise of vocational guidance, as well as general guidance, providing this service in the environment of the college with a Christian approach to the education of youth; (3) Development of curricular materials and experiences in vocations for general educational values.

The concept of education back of this plan is that vocational education and general education should be parallel and interrelated rather than separated from each other for four years thus delaying one's choice and preparation for his or her life career.

The work provided for full-time religious service such as that for ministers poses two great problems. Many ministers cannot do postgraduate study, yet the seminaries are asking that their work be at that level. Hence, Athens College finds that it must care for those who cannot and do not do postgraduate study, and in the Methodist Church alone in northern, Alabama, there are over 100 such ministers now in active service and at the same time continuing their education. Athens College provides several excellent courses in religion and the basic education in other fields at the campus; and in addition will this year have two centers in which the college is helping those ministers and others in active service and who are located remote from collegiate facilities.

For many years, Athens College has provided some teacher education for high school teachers. However, the urgent need for teachers in elementary schools is far greater, and the college proposes, in the near future, to develop a modern educational program for elementary teachers in service as well as for those who have had no teaching experience. This will include appropriate laboratory experiences. This will include appropriate laboratory experiences. The general proposal for this work, other than that provided in other subjects, is to establish three large blocks of materials and experiences so planned that the component fields of child growth, psychology of learning, principles and methods, student teaching, etc., will be provided and assured. Such a plan will make possible a modified internship in the senior year.

Business education has been in the curriculum of Athens College for many years. It is now possible for students to specialize in business, administration, secretarial work, accounting, and the teaching of business in high schools.

The provision for field service for those with other life career choices is found in several colleges such as Bennington (Vt.) where the student has a semester away from the campus in such experience; Antioch College which began this more than 30 years ago, and at other places. This will be one of the new ventures in the Athens College program.

Perhaps the most needed and valuable part of the Division's work will be the development of vocational guidance. This has not yet been planned as a total program.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN —By Ben

Jack Hayes says we took in too much territory on our tax paragraph in Tuesday's paper. He says the 31st is the last day to pay your poll tax. Since the first falls on Sunday. February 1st, that is. Don't forget to attend to this important matter. The money on poll taxes goes to the schools, so you will be doing the school children of Alabama a favor as well as yourself when you pay your poll taxes. Other taxes have been delinquent since December 31st, 1952.

Glad to see the Grand Jury go on record as favoring a new courthouse and jail. Goodness knows we need both bad enough. Hope the Civic Clubs and Veterans Organizations in the County fall in line and go on record as favoring the same thing. If the people will only see the need for the new buildings and demand it the County Board of Revenue and Control will work out some plans of financing the project.

Congratulations to the fine young men of Clanton who are working hard to organize a Junior Chamber of Commerce. Their next meeting will be held next Tuesday night and all of you young fellows who are interested in the future of Clanton should have a chance to take part now. We wish for the new organization all the success it deserves and we pledge ourself to be of any assistance that we can to make it a success.

Two opposing political candidates were arguing at a street corner gathering. "There are hundreds of ways of making money," said one of the campaigners, "but only one honest one." "And what's that?" asked the other candidate. "Ah-ha!" answered the first, I thought you wouldn't know."

Two More Good Reasons For Donating To March Of Dimes

MARTHA ANN GRIFFIN

BILLY NABORS

Martha Ann Griffin, pictured above with Chilton County's 1953 Chairman for the March of Dimes, is the eleven year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Griffin of Jemison. Martha Ann was one of this County's polio victims in 1952.

She was stricken on August 18th with rigidity in her neck and paralysis in one arm. A week before she was taken ill with polio, she had suffered an upset stomach. No alarm was felt by the family, because this is a common childhood ailment. One week after her stomach upset, however, she began to show the effects of polio. In addition to the well known rigidity in her neck, her left arm was completely paralyzed. In 24 hours the paralysis had left her arm and moved to her right leg. In another 24 hours the leg regained its use and the polio virus traveled to Martha Ann's left leg.

She was treated by local doctors at her home in Jemison, but on September 2 the doctors advised that her parents take her to Birmingham for treatment. She returned home after a check-up, and stayed until she was admitted to the Crippled Children's hospital on October 7th. She remained for ten weeks. While there Martha Ann was given physical therapy treatments, hot baths and exercises. She is still required to take a thirty minute bath every day, and she is given 16 different exercises twice daily.

In spite of the pain she suffered while polio was gripping her, and despite the many treatments which she has to take. Martha Ann Griffin is cheerful and determined. She knows that the Chilton County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis helped to make her recovery possible, and she is keeping faith with her friends by refusing to give up. Her arms and legs are still weak, and she is not strong enough to go to school, but she is improving rapidly. She realizes that she was one of the lucky polio victims. Her little brother who contracted the virus shortly after she did was not so lucky. He was stricken with the type of polio for which there is no known cure.

The Griffin family of Jemison is sincerely grateful to the people who gave in last year's March of Dimes Drive. The generous contributions made it possible for Martha Ann to receive the hospital care which has made her walk.

BILLY NABORS

Billy Nabors, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Nabors, of the Isabella Community, is another reason why Chilton County's contributions to the March of Dimes are so important.

Billy is one of our children who has been most severaly affected by the dreaded polio. He has known the intense suffering of this disease, and has had many of his childhood activities curtailed by its crippling effects.

But Billy Nabors is one of the bravest children in Chilton County. He always has a smile and a determined lift to his chin. He knows that the day will soon come when children will no longer fear the danger of polio. With the dimes and dollars given to the March of Dimes, a cure will soon be found.

Until that day comes, Billy and his parents urge you to remember that your contributions to the March of Dimes help children all over America to walk again.

Dennis Represents Local Cattlemen

Mr. J. N. Dennis represented the Chilton County Cattlemen's Association at the annual dinner meeting of the Autauga County Cattlemen's Association conducted in the Prattville Grammar School Tuesday night.

At the meeting Mr. Dennis saw W. H. (Bill) Gaines re-elected to head the Autauga County group for the second consecutive year. Others to serve with Mr. Gaines are Carroll Jackson, vice-president; James Golsom, secretary-treasurer; and Oscar Jones and James Neighbors as directors of the association. Owen Murphree was selected as chairman of the Livestock Promotion Committee of Autauga County for the coming year.

Grand Jury Goes On Record Endorsing New Courthouse

Building Is Crowded And In Bad State Of Repair Says Jurors

The Grand Jury meeting for the January term of the Circuit Court, which met before Judge Oakley W. Melton Tuesday, has gone on record as endorsing the Chilton County Board of Revenue in any undertaking that the Board deems proper in building a new County Courthouse and Jail.

This was revealed in it's report of findings at the close of the session. Among other things the Grand Jury commended the Chilton County Sheriff, Luther Kendrick, and his staff of deputies for their efficiency in the performance of their duties as law enforcement officers.

Circuit Court of Said County and State, January Term, 1953

State of Alabama, Chilton County.

To Honorable Oakley W. Melton, As Judge of Said Court:

We, the Grand Jury, empanelled for the January Term of the Circuit Court, after receiving your Honor's most able charge, entered upon our investigations of the matters that came before us as Grand Jurors, and herewith submit the following report

During our investigation we have considered 13 cases, and have examined 22 witnesses, and are returning herewith eight true bills.

We have made a personal inspection of the County Jail, and believe it to be sufficiently safe for the keeping of the prisoners, and find that the prisoners confined therein are being well fed and cared for with reasonable comfort.

We have examined the Fee Book of the Probate Judge, and find it neatly kept and correct insofar as we were able to ascertain. We have examined the bonds of the various County Officials, and find that they are ample for the protection of the public, and in our examination of the Sheriff's account with the State for feeding prisoners, we find that it is being kept in accordance with the law. On our examination of the Office of the County Superintendent of Education, we find that his books, records, and papers are neatly kept and insofar as we ascertained were being kept fully in accordance with the law.

The Grand Jury wishes especially to commend the efficiency in the performance of their duties of our Sheriff, his deputies, and the bailiff of the Grand Jury, Mr. Frank Guy, all of whom have rendered to us valuable assistance during our investigations.

The Grand Jury wishes to go on record as endorsing the Board of Revenue in any undertaking that they may deem proper in building a new Court House and Jail at such time that such officials feel that the financial condition of the County will permit. The Court House is crowded, is in bad state of repair, and is not adequate for present conditions. The Jail is old and in bad state of repair and while we have stated it is safe at present for confining prisoners, as a matter of fact only certain parts of the Jail are safe.

We, having complied to the best of our ability with Your Honor's charge, respectfully ask that we now be dismissed until such time as Your Honor may see fit and think proper to have us to again convene.

This the 27th day of Jenuary, 1953.

ARTHUR J. LECROY,
Foreman.

Expert Says Chilton County Peach Orchards Are In Good Condition

Chilton County Peach Orchards look to be in good shape!

In effect those are the words of Dr. John Weinberger, Senior Horticulturist, USDA Peach Fields Station, Fort Valley, Ga., after his tour Monday through many of the peach orchards in this area and appearing before the Peach Growers Clinic that was conducted most of last Tuesday in Thorsby.

Dr. Weinberger's words were backed up by Mr. T. D. Pearsons of Macon, Ga., Assistant Project Leader for Phony Disease Peach Control, who made practically the same tour and appeared before the same group.

At the same time Mr. Pearsons made his final report on Phony Peach disease control for the year of 1952. Mr. Pearsons says:

"Phony disease control in 1952 in the State of Alabama was restricted, for the most part, to the Clanton Area which includes Chilton County and a part of Autauga County. In this area, 331,955 trees on 573 propertires were inspected and 11,170 trees on 378 properties were found to be infected with phony. This is an infection of 3.4% and it is slightly higher than that found in 1951, but it is the result of a rather general cleanup in certain areas where grower cooperation had been rather poor for several years. The Thorsby Section was not inspected by project inspectors because one grower would not agree to cooperate with the program. This involved a total of approximately 22,000 trees on 32 properties. A few growers of this group did, however, inspect their own orchards. Another grower with about 3,000 trees refused to cooperate with the program, but this orchard, fortunately, was well removed from other orchards.

"Commercial orchard inspections were made in Blount County where 45,088 trees on 14 properties were inspected and 8 phony trees were found on two properties. One orchard of 3,000 trees in Talladega County was inspected, but no infected trees were found. In the entire State of Alabama, and including nursery growing site inspections, 381,637 trees on 634 properties were inspected and 11,178 phony trees were found on 300 properties. By the end of December all infected trees found had been removed.

"Cooperation extended to the program by the peach growers during the year, except in very few instances, was excellent and a continuation of this fine community spirit is certain to result in good control of phony in future years.

"At the beginning of the 1952 season Mr. A. J. Coppinger, Jr., was assigned full time to direct phony disease control in Alabama. Mr. Coppinger is stationed in Clanton and can be located through the County Agent's office or by mail addressed to him at Box 263, Clanton. Mr. Coppinger has had a number of years experience on phony disease control and he will be glad to discuss control problems with you at any time.

We have never been able to understand the joys some people realize in gossip.

Money is worth only what it will buy, the economist says, and we feel that is sufficient.

The truth is often less sensational than rumor or gossip and the latter seems preferred.

Did you ever notice how often traffic lights catch fat women in the middle of the street?

We have never seen anyone disastrously affected by going to church regularly.

JANUARY AND POLIO

If you think back a few weeks, to 1952, you may recall in that year the country experienced the largest polio epidemic in its history. More than 56,000 people were struck down by the disease—a total which exceeds highway fatalities by many thousands.

It is true that in 1952, also, a vaccine was tentatively approved, which seems to immunize most of those who are given the serum. However, there is only a limited supply of the immunization and residents in most areas of the country cannot expect to see this new weapon used against polio in their communities soon.

It seems then that the March of Dimes, the request for donations by the National Foundation for infantile Paralysis during the month of January, is unusually appropriate this year. It comes when new discoveries may be on the horizon, thus making this year's victims even greater tragedies, in a way, than before. Surely, the preventive is foreseeable in the near future and every donation at present will help to spur the discovery of the final solution and help those afflicted to recover as rapidly as possible in the interval between now and the final answer to poliomyelitis.

It should be unnecessary to urge anyone to contribute to the March of Dimes. A reminder might be needed, but, in view of the facts cited above, that is all which should be necessary for you to do your part before the end of January.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR FLOWER LOVERS

Plans are being completed to welcome thousands of home gardeners and plant lovers to the third annual Flower Show and Plant Clinic, to be held in the Birmingham Municipal Auditorium Saturday and Sunday, February 7th and 8th.

Doors will be open from 2:30 to 10:30 p.m. each of these days.

There will be no admission charge, and nothing will be sold. However, each person must have a ticket for registration purposes. Tickets may be had, in any quantity, by writing the Birmingham Association of Nurserymen, Box 1765, Birmingham.

They may be had in Birmingham from this group, the Birmingham Park and Recreation Board, or from any of the 105 clubs of the Federated Garden Clubs of Third Region (Jefferson County.)

Every hour a growing plant will be awarded to someone in the audience, and several grand prizes are to be presented. Topping these will be a $50.00 landscape planting, or the equivalent in nursery stock.

In addition to the other awards, prizes to be presented clubs of the Federated Garden Clubs of Third Region (some 105 clubs in Jefferson County) will consist of gift certificates for $50, $25, $15 and $10.

Prizes for clubs outside the Third Region will consist of gift certificates for $25, $10 and $5.

All garden club awards will be made by a committee appointed by Mrs. Robert C. Palmer, Federation President.

Winners do not have to be present to receive grand prizes.

As in the past, free soil tests will be offered by Alabama Polytechnic Institute, and special exhibits of interest to home gardeners are being prepared by the University of Alabama and the Alabama Forestry Service.

Object of the annual flower show and clinic is to demonstrate the varieties of flowers, plants and shrubs best suited to the soil and climate of Alabama; and successful methods of culture.

Some 30,000 persons visited the show last year.

Can Silos Pay Their Own Way In Chilton County?

Ben Brinker, a veteran trainee, built two silos in 1952 for the purpose of storing corn silage. He feels that these two silos, due to the dry year have paid for themselves in one year. Due to the dry year, he was able to save his corn crop from a very low yield.

The two silos cost Mr. Brinker a total of $2,000.00 each installed. It cost him a total of $5.00 per ton to fill these silos to capacity. This cost included $5.00 per acre for rent, 75c per ton for labor and fertilizer and 25c per ton for gas and oil.

His plan for this Spring is to fill a silo with oats. He plans on harvesting the oats with a mowing machine and behind the mower will be a side delivery rake, behind the rake, he plans to pick up the windrows with a green forage loader and put the oats into large wagons and haul them to the ensilage cutter, cut them into 1-4 inch pieces, and blow them into the silo, mixing 100 pounds of molasses to the ton.

Mr. Brinker's future plans for dairying in Chilton County are to build another silo this year and use his silos for year-round feeding, by using corn, grain sorghum, soybeans, cereal grain and sweet sudan grass. He has been producing around 300 tons of roughage and grazing on 130 acres, but with his silos he believes he can produce 1,000 tons per year, using 30 acres for exercise ground.

In getting the best results from feeding silage, it will be necessary to feed some hay.

He also believes that in the future, with better machinery, that his silos can be filled with a cost of not over $3.50 per ton. Since he has been in the dairy business in Chilton County, he made more net profit per acre last year while he was feeding silage, than he has ever made in the dairy business.

Mr. Brinker, being a veteran of World War II, has received valuable information and instructions through the Veterans Farm Program which includes class room and on the farm instructions.

Urges Health for Defense

Lowell Thomas Asks All To Help 1953 Heart Fund

The front line of America's defense lies in the health and productive capacity of its citizens, said Lowell Thomas today, speaking on behalf of the Heart Fund. The noted author and radio commentator called diseases of the heart and circulation "the invisible enemy which attacks millions of Americans every year.

"This enemy," he explained, "still operates behind an iron curtain since we do not yet know the basic causes of certain of the most serious forms of heart and blood vessel diseases.

"The Heart Fund," he continued, "has been helping medical science set up an effective front line of defense against this enemy within our ranks through research, education and community heart programs.

Lowell Thomas

When you help the Heart Fund you are helping your heart."

The remarks by Thomas supported the appeal of the American Heart Association and its affiliates for contributions to meet the $10,000,000 national goal urgently needed to expand the attack on the heart diseases—the nation's leading cause of disability and death.

Mr. Thomas pointed out that contributions can be sent to heart associations or simply to: "Heart, care of Post Office."

Local Boy Receives A Commission In Marines

Quantico, Va. — Marine Lieutenant William C. Yearan, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Yeargan, of Clanton, Alabama, Route 2, was recently commissioned a Second Lieut. in the United States Marine Corps from the Sixth Marine Officer Candidate Course program conducted for college seniors and graduates.

Lieutenant Yeargan received his commission in the Marine Corps Reserve after attending a ten-week training course here at the Marine Corps School.

The new Lieutenant is now undertaking a five month Special Basic Course, which is included in his two years of active duty as a commissioned officer. This course is completed before assignment to Marine Corps organizations. During his tour of active duty, he has the opportunity to attend one or more of the advance specialist schools, to which 57% of commissioned officers are assigned. Such courses as Naval Flight Training, Supply, Engineer, Communications, Motor Transport and Naval Gunfire are available.

Lieutenant Yeargan attended Verbena High School and graduated from Alabama Polytechnic Institute in August, 1952.

Research Key To Progress

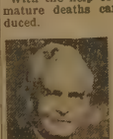
Barton Urges All to Aid Fund for Heart Research

Bruce Barton, author and advertising executive, urged national support of the research program of the American Heart Association and its affiliates through the Heart Fund.

"A well-known surgeon once told his students," Mr. Barton said, "that a man can die from a severed main artery in a few minutes. But you can save him in a few seconds . . . if you don't hurry!'

"There are times," Mr. Barton continued, "when a surgeon's hands must be more sure than swift. In much the same way, it takes time—unhurried concentration—for medical research . . . the kind of research your Heart Association is asking you to support right now.

"Diseases of the heart and circulation destroy three-quarters of a million lives each year," he said. "With the help of our dollars, premature deaths can be greatly reduced.



Bruce Barton

"Research is the key to medical progress," Mr. Barton continued. "It has already been responsible for new drugs, new surgical techniques, new methods of prevention, care, treatment and rehabilitation which are saving many lives today. By giving to the Heart Fund, you support research and help your heart!

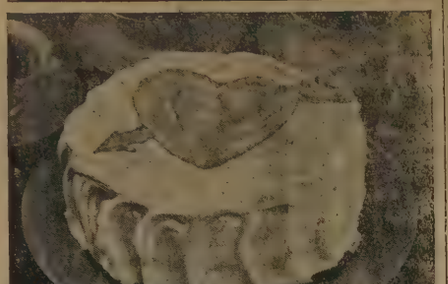
Greet Your Valentine With a Cupid's Cake



Cupid doesn't do everything in this world of ours, with the result that many a girl has won her own happiness with a helping hand.

Even though Leap Year, with its woman's right to pop the question directly is gone, a woman's initiative remains, and with it something special for HIM on Valentine's Day.

The surprise, in return for that special man that day, is a Cupid's Cake.

It is a delicious self-rising cake that will bring smiles to sweethearts. It is quick and easy, for with self-rising flour you work the dough as lightly and as little as possible.

And you can be sure of results with this Cupid's Cake. Self-rising flour takes the guesswork out of cake baking, cutting oven failures almost to the vanishing point.

CUPID'S CAKE

2¼ cup sifted self-rising flour
1½ cups sugar
½ cup soft shortening
1 cup sweet milk
1½ teaspoons vanilla (or half almond)
4 egg whites (½ cup)

Sift together the flour and sugar. Add shortening and half of the milk and beat two minutes. Add remaining milk, the flavoring and unbeaten egg whites and beat another two minutes. Pour into two 8-inch layer cake pans and bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 30 to 35 minutes. Cool before frosting.

FROSTING

2 egg whites, unbeaten
1½ cups sugar
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar (or 1 teaspoon corn syrup)
½ cup cold water
Dash of salt
1 teaspoon vanilla (or half almond)
Red coloring

Place all ingredients except flavoring and coloring in top of double boiler; mix thoroughly. Cook over boiling water, beating constantly with rotary or electric beater until mixture forms peaks, about 7 minutes. Remove from heat, add flavoring, and beat until of spreading consistency. Reserve ½ cup frosting to color pink later and cover to prevent crust forming on top. Use remaining white frosting in filling and frosting for cake. After cake has been iced, allow to stand until a slight crust has formed. Trace heart and arrow design on the top, outline design with the pink frosting, then fill in the center design with remaining pink frosting.

Table pads will not leave lint on a well polished table if one side of the pad, that with the felt on it, is covered with a piece of muslin.

Ink spots on the fingers from a leaky pen? Remove them easily by rubbing with a mixture of vinegar and salt.

If castors drop out of the legs of furniture, fill the holes with melted paraffin wax and insert the castors again. This fills the hole and holds the castor.

Exposed water pipes will not freeze if they're coated with a mixture of equal parts of melted paraffin and glycerine.

Glass on windows, electric bulbs and headlights is easily frosted by dissolving three tablespoons of Epsom salts in a glass of water. Add one teaspoon liquid glue, stir thoroughly and apply with a brush.

FUN SPOILED

Los Angles — Mrs. Billie Kelley accidentally locked herself out of her house, with Raymond, 18-months-old inside. While his mother pounded frantically and shouted for admittance, Raymond emptied the cupboards, spilled dishes, buttons, paper and food on the floor and was looking for new fields to conquer when helpful firemen summoned by Mrs. Kelley, jimmied a window, climbed in and opened the door from the inside.

WON'T RETIRE AGAIN

Hartford, Conn. — Although Elmer Phelps is 81 and has "retired" twice, he's back at work and says he will never again try to retire. He is back at work as a skilled mechanic in the manufacture of organs.

Getting Around with Mac Brown

If you found yourself about to crash head-on, and in a spot where you couldn't run your car off the road, would you know what to do when a crash couldn't be avoided? This came up the other night when I was talking to a Highway Patrolman during one of my coffee stops. I was telling him about the safe-driving lessons my company gives us drivers, and he was telling me about the same kind of schooling they get at the Highway Patrol Academy in Montgomery.

He said they are told to hold their car on the road until just the right moment, then throw it into a skid so the front end goes off the pavement and the back is turned broadside to take the impact. Thus, they might save their lives by preventing a head-on crash, and by having their car hit behind where they are sitting they might keep it on the road.

Those Patrol boys are tops in driving skill. They are tops in every way in my book, and among the best friends motorists have. Right up there with them - believe, are the truck drivers. You see, when a man makes his living by driving, he has to be the best.

Lutheran Church News—

The Service 11:00.
Sunday School 10:00.
Everybody welcome.

"That is the coldest church in town, the people are just not friendly." Have you ever head that complaint from a visitor? Maybe you have uttered it yourself.

Certainly a clannish unfriendly atmosphere is unbecoming to the people and church of God, but I cannot help but wonder if it is always their fault entirely. If you think that the people are cold, what do you do to try to bring warmth?

Let me ask you this: When you visit a strange church do you take a back seat and make a mad dash for your car as soon as the benediction is pronounced do you just sit back like a bump on a log and not try to participate in the service; and do you manifest an atmosphere of unfriendliness yourself? If so, then no wonder that the service was meaningless and the church seemed unfriendly. Remember that even in a strange church you have to show a little warmth yourself in order for people to notice you at all.

My prescription for feeling at home in a strange church (I have tried it myself with great success) is simply: Sit at about the middle of the church, not on the back seat and above all, don't be in too big a hurry to leave after the service; participate in the service as much as possible, that makes you feel more at home; and be friendly with the people around you, that always is a big help.

The next time therefore, that you felt that a church was "cold," stop and ask yourself; why? It could be possible that the reason is that you carried the "ice" in with you.

GOV. GORDON PERSONS was one of the first to join in the nation-wide drive by the Junior Chamber of Commerce to equip all cars with luminous safety tape in an attempt to cut down on the number of highway accidents. All Alabama Jaycee chapters are participating whole-heartedly in the drive. In the picture, left to right, are Dick Reid, chairman of the Montgomery Junior Chamber Safety Tape drive, the governor; Earl Andrews, Auburn, State Vice-President of the Junior Chamber, State Public Safety Director L. B. Sullivan, and standing, Charles Porter, president of the Montgomery Jaycee organization. Chairman Reid points out that the tape attached to the bumper has many advantages: it reportedly can be seen up to 75 per cent quicker than the average tail-light and is visible at least half a mile away; the tape completely outlines the rear of the vehicle and enables approaching motorists to see where the car is located and how much of the highway it occupies; the stripes are particularly good in illuminating cars on rainy nights or vehicles parked on dark streets.

If you missed hearing Bro. Jones' messages Sunday at Mulberry, you missed two wonderful sermons. There should be more at church each Sunday to hear him.

The librarian says you should read "Secrets of Old Stormy" and "Life At Eighty," from the church library. There are good books for anyone to read in the library.

The Isabella Home Demonstration Club met with Mrs. E. S. Jones on Monday afternoon with five old members and one new member, Mrs. Jessie McCraw, present. The devotional was given by Miss Johnnie Martin. In the absence of Mr. Glasscock who was to give the demonstration on poultry raising, Miss Martin talked and discussed the subject.

A salad plate was served to the group by the hostess.

And banish it away.

Temple Church News

We are praising the Lord for the sweet services that we had Sunday. Bro. Helms brought two wonderful messages. Quite a few of our people were unable to attend church because of sickness, so let's be much in prayer for them.

We are glad to have Betty Helms home for a few days. Everyone enjoyed her singing Sunday morning and Sunday night.

Joyce Payton had charge of the C. A. service Sunday night. The theme of the program was, What Is Truth? It is a lesson that we all should learn.

Remember Thursday night, January 29, is the night for the Sunday School Workers' Banquet. It will be in the C. A. auditorium of the church. We urge all those who took the course to be present. The certificates, to those taking the course, will be given next Sunday morning. Sunday will be communion day, also. We observe communion the first Sunday in each month.

The Y.W.C. met at the home of Miss Jo Ann Baker Monday night. We praise the Lord for the grand service we had.—Reporter.

CANE CREEK NEWS

Next Sunday and Sunday night will be our regular preaching services, with our pastor, Rev. Elba Deason, bringing the messages.

This church and community were saddened last Friday by the death of Mrs. J. P. Parrish. We extend our heart-felt sympathy to the family and our prayers are that the Lord will comfort them in their sorrow.

We are wishing a speedy recovery for all the members of our community who are ill. We would especially like to remember Mr. R. E. Jones and Mr. Newt Minor.

On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Leon Jones visited Mr. Jim Willis who is ill in a Birmingham hospital, and Mrs. Charles Martin, who has just returned home from the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Hunter of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., and Sgt. and Mrs. Willard Hunter (nee Sally Hughes) of Salt Lake City, Utah, visited Mr. and Mrs. Steve Hughes this past week end. Sgt. Hunter has to report to California for overseas duty shortly. May God protect him and grant him a speedy return home.

Everyone remember Sunday School next Sunday at 10:00. Come and bring someone with you. Visitors are always welcomed. - Mary Ella Bailey, Reporter.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

OKAY! Okay! We're Having One Made

Hobson Searcy, our local postman who was taken home last Saturday with a sprained hip, met us on the main street recently to discuss a matter. We talked for several minutes about this and that and mixed in the conversation half the time was a third voice telling of the Inauguration ceremonies in Washington. O.K. you wise acres, be quiet now—for a minute we thought we were going batty or something. But we summed up nerve enough to ask Searcy if he heard voices and he said: "Yep," and he turned around to display his portable radio in his mail bag.

The "Girl Friday", who is Mrs. Cecil Murrah, has been out the last week with flu and the wife has been helping at the office instead of keeping house. We have had quite a time of it—the two of us. First place we didn't know she had forgotten so many things about keeping office and bookkeeping, and second; We never had the slightest idea we knew so little about our own business. And just in case "Girl Friday" reads this; NO, you are not get a raise.

Friends of Mr. J. C. Pattillo, who was recently elected to the office of Justice of the Peace, will find him in his new offices over the Piggly Wiggly. Mr. Pattillo was circuit Clerk of Chilton County for many years. He counts his friends in this section of Alabama by the thousands. We're going up to make him a call so that when we're hauled into his Court for one thing or another we won't be strangers and get into the wrong office. Seriously we'll say this for J. C. Pattillo, no man ever left office more beloved or respected than did he.

Even though something will have to be done about our courthouse in the near future the present Board of Revenue and Control are trying to do a little cleaning and fixing. Notice they are getting ready to put the walls of the courthouse and having a little powder and paint on the Venetian blinds cleaned. Things are looking better and better around the old courthouse.

The farmer's son brought a football back from college with him and it somehow got left in the chicken yard. Coming on it for the first time the rooster eyed it for a while and then called a meeting of the hens. Pointing to the football, he announced: "Now, ladies, I don't want to appear ungrateful, or raise any unnecessary fuss, but I do want to see what is being done in her yards."

Well, according to the legend we'll have six more weeks of winter. The groundhog saw his shadow today (Monday) without any trouble. But confidentially, we're going to have six more weeks of winter regardless of what the groundhog saw or did. We'd be in check of a mess some year if that fellow ever slept and didn't come out at all, wouldn't we?

A Letter To The Editor

Dear Sir:

In the recent past we have had an influx of unscrupulous, unethical persons representing themselves as solicitors of advertising for CIO papers. We are making every attempt to eliminate these people from the scene and protect our name and reputation among the business people of Alabama who might be the victims of these solicitors.

There is only one official CIO paper in the state of Alabama. This is the CIO NEWS, published in Washington, D.C., and it does not carry advertising. There are some thirty-five national and international unions of the CIO who have their own publications which are sent to the members in the state. Only a few of these carry advertising and, to my knowledge, they do not solicit this advertising matter from the state of Alabama. Several local unions of the CIO in Mobile, Alabama, have endorsed the Gulf Coast News Digest, which is a matter of concern only to those local unions.

Any person representing himself as a solicitor of advertising for CIO publications should have credentials signed by Executive Vice President Allan S. Haywood of the CIO, President Cecil Robertson or Secretary-Treasurer Eugene M. Wells of the Alabama CIO Council, or the undersigned. To my knowledge, there is no person in the state at the present time who possesses such credentials.

I would appreciate your publishing this article in its entirety. Any assistance you can give us in preventing abuses of this nature in the future will be appreciated.

Sincerely yours,

CAREY E. HAIGLER,
State Director.

Kiwanis Pass Resolution Endorsing New Courthouse

The Clanton Kiwanis Club fell in line at their regular weekly meeting last Thursday night and passed a resolution endorsing the idea of a new courthouse and jail for Chilton County.

Only last week the Grand Jury went on record as favoring a new public building to house the county offices and jail. The Kiwanis Resolution states:

* * *

A Resolution to seek the endorsement of the Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Alabama, to pass proper Resolutions for the erection of a new Courthouse, Jail and Auditorium in Chilton County, Alabama.

Be it resolved by the Clanton Kiwanis Club as follows:

That, whereas, the present Courthouse of Chilton County, Alabama, which is located on the corner of 6th Street and 2nd Avenue, North, in Clanton, Alabama, is badly in need of repair, and is inadequate for the housing of the public records of Chilton County, Alabama, and, whereas, there is a need for a new Courthouse and Jail, as the old Jail is in bad condition, and needs certain repairs, and also there is a need in the City of Clanton and Chilton County for an auditorium for the holding of public sponsored programs as well as certain private sponsored programs for the raising of funds for charitable purposes, public meetings, etc.

It further appearing that said County is paying large sums of money for rent of space to house the Board of Education, County Engineers and other public officials, which sums of money could apply on the erection of a new Courthouse.

Therefore, be it further resolved by the Clanton Kiwanis Club that they go on record asking the Board of Revenue and Control to take the necessary steps to start the construction of a new courthouse, jail and auditorium located on the property now owned by them, and being the property located on First Avenue where the present jail is located. Said courthouse, jail and auditorium being adequate to take care of records and needs of Chilton County for the years to come, and not only adequate for the housing of the present officials in the courthouse, but those that said County pays rent for.

Be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be given each member of the Board of Revenue and Control, the Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Alabama, and to the local newspapers and radio station.

Adopted and aproved and recommended by the Public and Business Affairs Committee of the Clanton Kiwanis Club, this the 29th day of January, 1953.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

Congress spent most of the week organizing its various committees and subcommittees.

A subcommittee is a division of a permanent or standing committee. Members serving on a particular committee are usually asked to join one of its subcommittees. Although the prefix "sub" seems to lessen the committee's importance, this assumption is probably a little misleading. Many subcommittees are very powerful in Congress. They study particular phases of legislation which the full committee does not have time to study thoroughly. After the study or investigation is completed, the subcommitte reports its findings and recommendations to the full or main committee. The full committee seldom disagrees with the decision of its subcommittee. The result is that the subcommittee often has the major voice in reporting bills to the floor of the House for debate and vote.

The Veterans Affairs Committee has a total of seven subcommittees existing now. They are: Housing; administration and finance in the Veterans Administration hospitals; insurance; compensation and pension; Spanish War Veterans; and education, training and rehabilitation. The chairman of the committee has notified me that I will be assigned to one of these subcommittees.

Vets Committee Meets—

The full Veterans Affairs Committee held its first 1953 meeting recently for the purpose of organizing. Chairman Edith Nourse Rogers (R-Mass.) presided. Rep. Rogers outlined activities of the committee, answered questions of new members, and impressed upon us the importance of membership on the committee. She said the committee would meet weekly except when it is necessary to convene more often.

Mrs. Rogers also held chairmanship of this committee during the Republican 80th Congress. She has worked in connection with veterans since 1918 when she accepted a position with the American Red Cross to assist disabled veterans. She later served as personal representative in care of disabled veterans under three presidents — Harding, Coolidge and Hoover.

More Women Serve—

An interesting sidelight of the new Congress is that there are more women members than ever before in history. There are 12 women legislators in the 83rd Congress. This breaks the previous record of 11.

Seven are Republicans; five are Democrats; and all are members of the House except one.

Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers (R-Mass.) is the dean of women in the present Congress, having served continuously since her election on June 30, 1925, to fill a vacancy caused by the death of her husband.

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R-Me.) is the only woman serving in the Senate, and is one of seven women who were ever elected to the Senate. Of these seven, only Mrs. Smith and one other were elected for full terms.

Besides Mrs. Rogers, other women currently serving in the House are Reps. Bolton (R-Ohio), Buchanan (D-Pa.) and Kee (D-W. Va.), who were all originally elected to fill vacancies caused by the deaths of their husbands; and Deps. Church (R-Ill.), Kelley (D-N. Y.), Thompson (R-Mich.), Sullivan (D-Mo.), Pfost (D-Ind.), and Harden (R-Ind.).

Miss Jeannette Rankin of Montana was the first woman to be elected to Congress. She was victorious in a general election in 1916. Twenty-two years after the end of her first term she entered Congress again to serve her second term in the House. She was seated in 1941 and served until expiration of her term in 1943.

Several women throughout history have won special elections to serve in the House or Senate but were never sworn in and never drew a salary. This occurred because Congress did not meet between the time of their election and the expiration of the term they were elected to finish.

Census Records Are Substitutes For Birth Certificates

Persons lacking birth certificates or other legal evidence of citizenship, age or family relationships can obtain transcripts of their personal census records which are, in most instances, acceptable substitutes, according to District Supervisor Mary G. Auburtin of the U. S. Census Bureau.

More than 100,000 Americans turned to the Census Bureau for such evidence in 1952. They needed proof of identity or age for Government and defense jobs, Social Security, passports, the Armed Services, and in connection with insurance and estate cases.

Supervisor Auburtin pointed out that personal information recorded by the Census Bureau is entirely confidential and may be furnished only upon the written request of the individual to whom it relates or his legal representatives. The normal fee is $3.00 for searches of two censuses for one individual, each application being handled in regular turn which generally requires approximately 30 days to complete service. Expedited handling is furnished for a $4.00 fee.

Application blanks and instructions may be obtained from the Census's District Office at 211½ No. 6th St., Clanton, or by writing to the Bureau of the Census, Washington 25, D.C.

Clanton Post Office Adding 164 Boxes

CHILTON COUNTIANS ATTENDING BIG COMMERCE DEPARTMENT EXHIBIT

Chilton Countians who attend the big technical exhibit of the U. S. Department of Commerce in Atlanta, February 11 to 13, will see displays featuring new uses for chicken feathers, a gadget for gauging moisture in lumber, and new processes for advancing the production of textile goods, according to information received here from Paul W. Jones, District Manager of the Commerce Department in Birmingham.

The exhibit, to occupy some 14,000 square feet of space at the Atlanta Biltmore Hotel, is being sponsored by the Commerce Department's field service, and will be participated in by the National Bureau of Standards, Office of Technical Services, U. S. Patent Office and Government Patents Board, all in the Department of Commerce, and the Research Division of the Department of Defense.

Displays in metallurgy, syntheite gems and a machine for the dehydration of foods will be among the other items to be shown, Mr. Jones said.

Within a few days the work at the local post office will be completed and R. W. Lowe, postmaster, says that enough new boxes will be added to take care of all present applicants with a few left over for late comers.

The new design will take the form of an "L" with boxes around the inside. Now from the present setup down there it may be hard for you to picture the "L," but it will be like hundreds of other post offices you have seen the country over.

Until now the local office has had 397 boxes for rent. With the new boxes added the grand total will be 561 which is an increase of 164 boxes. The boxes came second-hand out of Atlanta, but will answer our purpose for the time being.

Postmaster Lowe is very proud of the addition to the local office and request the cooperation of the general public to help keep Clanton within the First Class division.

Last year was the first year that Clanton has reached the First Class Post Office class and with the local business houses doing their part in keeping their purchases of stamps and stamped envelopes in Clanton, we can stay in the First Class Division says Lowe.

Eyestrain Is the Price People Pay for Progress

Dr. Louis J. Girard, a New York ophthalmologist, believes that the demands of our complex civilization have made us acutely aware of our eyes because "the demand for acute vision is far greater in this highly complex civilization."

"Our eyes are no worse and, in some respects, are better than those of previous generations," he wrote in an article published by Today's Health."

Eyestrain will not permanently damage the eyes, Dr. Girard points out.

"Continuing to strain the eyes when eyestrain symptoms are present can certainly aggravate the condition, but it has not been known to produce organic changes in the eyes. It is not thought that the eye is capable of straining itself into permanent damage."

As for watching television, Dr. Girard writes that it is "inconceivable that the television screen would harm the eyes of a person on the other side of the room; television contains no harmful rays.

"Watching television to excess can cause symptoms of eyestrain, but not permanent injury. If the viewer needs glasses, has anisieikonia (unequal images are seen by the two eyes) or a muscle imbalance, he is even more likely to get symptoms of eyestrain. But if the eyes are normal or defects have been properly corrected, no symptoms will result from watching television.

"Knowing this, common sense should dictate the length of time anyone should spend gazing at the television screen."

Dr. Girard gives several reasons for eyestrain. The most common reason is a refractive error that calls for glasses. Undercorrected farsightedness, astigmatism, presbyopia or "old sight" and overcorrected nearsightedness may produce eyestrain symptoms. Proper glasses can correct these types.

Muscle imbalance, a disturbance in the delicate eye muscles that synchronizes the movements of both eyes, is another reason for eyestrain. Such affliction can be alleviated by proper glasses, certain eye exercises and, sometimes, by surgery.

Prolonged use of the eyes, improper illumination and a number of organic eye diseases can also cause eyestrain.

Miss Miglionica Speaks To Local Branch Of AAUW

The January 29th meeting of the Chilton County Branch of the A.A.U.W. was one of the highlights of the year when Dr. and Mrs. J. S. Williamson opened their lovely, spacious home at Verbena to the Association and some thirty guests.

As each guest arrived she was received and welcomed at the door by Mrs. Barney Deramus, Mrs. Joseph Sheppard, and Mrs. Williamson. Shortly after 3:30 p.m. the president, Mrs. Joe Campbell, called the meeting to order after which the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Williamson who was chairman of the program committee. Mrs. Williamson in a very clever and charming manner introduced Miss Nina Miglionica, the speaker for the afternoon.

Miss Miglionica, who is an attorney-at-law in Birmingham, served as the state chairman on the status of women for the A.A.U.W. last year. Therefore, she had much knowledge in store and gave a very inspirational talk. Her subject was on the situation of women in politics and in other respects; speaking up against indiscriminations; suggesting qualified women for important posts; and encouraging participation of women in civic life.

Following the program, the members and guests were graciously invited into the softly lighted dining room for tea. Gay floral arrangements of daffodils, narcissus and greenery were placed throughout the house. In the dining room large metal candelabrums held clusters of lighted candles.

The tea table was lovely with a floral centerpiece of spring flowers around which were arranged trays of dainty tea sandwiches and other delicacies. The table was laid with a white embroidered cutwork cloth. Presiding over the silver tea service was Mrs. Joe Campbell, assisted by Miss Sybil Langston. Others assisting in the dining room were Mrs. John Deramus, Mrs. Charles Strock, Mrs. William Claughton, Mrs. W. E. Huddleston, and Mrs. Benjamin Frucci.

Next Saturday, February 6, the A.A.U.W. will hold its annual luncheon at the high school lunchroom. The luncheon is scheduled at 1:00 p.m. after which a program will be presented on international relations.

YOUNG CLAUDIE WYATT DIED FRIDAY, JAN. 30

Funeral services for 8-year-old Claudie, Lamar Wyatt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claudie (Jack) Wyatt of Clanton Route 1, were conducted at Providence Baptist Church, six and one-half miles east of Clanton, Sunday afternoon. Spigener Funeral Home was in charge of the arrangements. Claude died in the Central Alabama Hospital early Friday morning. Besides his parents he is survived by one brother, David Randy Wyatt, and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Wyatt and Mr. J. L. Easterling.

Commander Gough To Speak At Legion Confab

Department Commander John E. Drinkard, Cullman, announced today that The American Legion's National Commander Lewis K. Gough of Pasadena, California, will address two sessions of The Department of Alabama's annual Mid-Winter Conference, to be held in Montgomery, Alabama, on February 8 and 9, 1953.

Commander Gough, who recently made headline news with his extensive trip to the trouble spots of the Far East, will speak to the full assembly of state Legion leaders in the Blue-Gray Room of the Whitley Hotel, Montgomery, at 10:30 a.m., Monday, February 9, 1953. The honor of the National Commander's visit to Alabama comes partly in recognition of the Department's standing 10th in the nation in percentage of membership gained in 1952-53.

At 7:00 p.m., Sunday, February 8, National Commander Gough will address the Past Commanders' Club at their annual dinner. Club President James M. Brown will preside and Mrs. D. Trotter Jones will direct the music for the occasion.

Mackin, Selma, will report on the activities of The Legion's giant rehabilitation program. The report of the broad work in Child Welfare done by The Legion will be given by Child Welfare Committee Chairman Dr. J. L. Thompson, Montgomery.

Membership trends and activities will be discussed by Roy E. Ling, Bessemer, Department Senior Vice-Commander; David H. Sisson, Montgomery, Department Junior Vice-Commander; Charles W. Eiland, Andalusia, Southern Area Commander; John S. Foster, Birmingham, Central Area Commander; and H. Grady Richards, Florence, Northern Area Commander.

ALL FOR PROGRESS

Seems like the Civic Clubs and organizations will fall in line for progress in regards to getting a new courthouse.

Last week the Grand Jury went on record favoring a new building and later in the week the Clanton Kiwanis Club issued a Proclamation urging the Board of Revenue and Control to use their powers to secure the badly needed structure for the people of the county.

We just hope this snow ball keeps rolling until it grows into a new courthouse. The people, we believe, are behind the idea, and when the people decide a thing SHOULD BE DID—it generally GETS DID.

THE NAZI ACT UP AGAIN

The British recently moved to head off a serious plot for the restoration of Nazi power in Germany and arrested seven confirmed Nazis who are charged with having plotted for the return of National Socialism. In typical British fashion, the seven were taken very casually by public safety officers, who carried no weapons other than warrants.

The arrests are interesting in view of the fact that the Federal German Government is now a semi-independent government, which is supposedly handling its own affairs. However, the revised Occupation Statute allows the occupying powers the right to protect the security of occupational troops, and other powers, and the British utilized this authority to put an end to the alleged plotting.

The attempted Nazi restoration shows the strength of anti-Western sentiment, which still abounds in Free Germany. Though it has been suspected that the Russians have been financing the extreme Right-Wing elements in Western Germany, it has never been proved. Whether or not this is the case, the Germans are not yet safely on their way to democracy, just as they were not securely on that road in 1932 and 1933, when the Constitutional Weimar Republic came to an end under the impact of the dictatorial ambitions of Adolph Hitler.

The Germans—or at least some of them—learn hard, it seems. The world is watching the Bonn Government to see if the German population will at last embrace democracy as the ideal form of government. If the Germans once again refuse to support this form of government, the next war might mean a permanent dismemberment of the country.

From the South Pasadena Review, South Pasadena, Calif.:

The new administration in Washington took over a government that is too big and too complex to be managed efficiently. The burden of its cost has grown too heavy for the economy to carry and remain prosperous.

The federal government has undergone this growth because it took over powers and responsibilities properly belonging to state and local governments. To do that, it increased federal taxes to such an extent that the sources of state and local revenue have become seriously depleted.

The certain cure of this condition is to restore to state and local governments their constitutional powers and responsibilities, and at the same time to set aside certain taxes or their use.

That will bring government "back home"—from Washington.

From the Webster Times, Webster, Mass.:

A state-wide curfew for teenagers is the proposal of the Child Welfare Co-ordinating committee of the Department of Massachusetts American Legion. How far the curfew would extend is not stated in the suggestion, but a study of the project has been underway for several months.

While the survey showed that some communities were not interested in such a plan, many others showed unusual interest. A state-wide curfew would seem to be a difficult project to enforce. Some communities have big teenage canteens and regularly supervised programs for the special leisure entertainment of the young crowd. Therefore, a curfew which wouldn't affect the outside activities in one town, might cut into a dance or other program in another.

The Legion group plans to consult the Massachusetts Police Chiefs Association and other law enforcement agencies in a further study of a teenage curfew, which they unanimously concluded is needed. We agree that something should be done to curb the prevalent custom of young people having "nights out" when they can't be expected home until morning, but we also believe that they are entitled to "nights out" at dances or other supervised activities.

A state-wide curfew would require much flexibility to permit a variety of approved activities, and at the same time would require strict limitations if it is to do any good. That's a delicate balance which most parents find hard to manage, and without their aid no curfew is going to do much good.

DALE CARNEGIE

GILBERT CARLETON, Madison, Wisconsin, a few years back was the victim of failure, not a financial failure, but a partnership failure. His partner had become afflicted with the evils of too much liquor.

For two weeks he couldn't eat or sleep. He was worried sick and had a fear of meeting the people of the town. He took a night job as operator in a small electric light plant and worked from 11 pm to 7 am. This way he could work at night and sleep during the day and did not have to come in contact with people he knew.

CARNEGIE

After a month he discovered this method was no good. About this time a friend asked him to sell insurance. He was like a drowning man and grabbed the first line that was tossed to him.

In trying to sell insurance he had to talk to people. Before he realized it, he had become a good listener and was gradually forgetting his worries and getting interested in people. He discovered that under every roof there was a different story, and he cared less about making sales and more about people. He worked from twelve to sixteen hours a day, for he was anxious to find what kind of story awaited him at the next place.

Before he knew it the sales were rolling in, and at the end of the first year he had won an all expense vacation trip for his wife and himself to Chicago. At that meeting he was promoted to special representative, and last year he was appointed agency manager for Southern Wisconsin.

So his advice to you is, if we think we have worries and a story to tell, start talking to people; get interested in them; be a good listener and help them.

Average State Farm Has Five Idle Acres

Auburn, Ala.—A million Alabama acres are lying idle according to the last census.

This means that on the average farm in the state there are over five acres of land not contributing to the farm income.

A great part of this land, if properly prepared, feritilized, and seeded, can produce profitable sod crops. In addition to providing grazing and hay, crops such as sericea, kudzu, and grass-legume mixtures will help control erosion.

Disc Dead Corn-Stalks Into Soil

Burning one ton of cornstalks wastes as much nitrogen as is contained in 15 to 18 bushels of corn.

New Delhi, known as the Garden City of India and its capital, has 17 million square yards of parks, gardens and open lawns, 200 miles of hedges and 80,000 trees.

One of the strangest vests ever seen in Washington was worn by Sam Houston, United States senator from Texas before the Civil War. It was made from a panther skin.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

PREPARING FOR A NEW BABY

Not so many years ago, no more than 50 years, many mothers died in pregnancy or childbed and as many as half the children born alive died in the first year of life. Nowadays, such losses in an American community would be incredible. The reason for the reduction in the deaths of mothers and children, the reason why birth is now safe for both parties is the development of obstetrics as a branch of medicine and its development of methods of prbtecting mother and child.

Some deaths, unfortunately, still occur. The way to guarantee safety, once a wife finds herself pregnant, is to seek competent medical advice immediately and to follow it carefully. That applies to the father as well as the mother. The mother is responsible for the physical development of the child, and the father is responsible for protecting the physical and mental state of the mother. Both responsibilities are important to the health and well-being of the coming child.

A visit to your physician is the first step in carrying out these responsibilities. A careful physical examination early in pregnancy is essential. The physician will ask many questions, the answers to which will decide how to care for the prospective mother. This examination will determine the stage of the pregnancy and such related factors as the condition of the mother's blood, whether there is anemia or any other disease which shows up in the blood, the condition of the teeth, weight, blood pressure, kidney function, pelvic measurements, and the condition of heart and lungs. The physician will also give the mother advice on the care of the breasts and the nipples to prevent cracking and abcess formation.

So if you're expecting a baby, see your physician and follow his advice. Do everything to keep your life tranquil and harmonious. Attention to these details will be worth the effort when proudly you can say, "We have a healthy baby."

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

This has been an exciting week around our house: The six-year-old has learned to roller skate, the three-year-old has learned to print his name (that same old name he was so tired of only a couple of weeks ago), and the new baby has learned to turn from her back over onto her fat tummy. It is hard to tell which of the three children is proudest of the new accomplishments.

The six-year-old's knees are decorated with mercurochrome and band-aids, and she has big bruises on other portions of her anatomy, but she doesn't mind her hurts at all now that she can whiz around on eight spinning wheels. The three-year-old figures his education is complete now that he can print his name. The many smudges and erasures don't bother him at all. And when the new baby, with much struggling and straining, manages to turn hermself over, she shrieks and shouts with joy until the whole family has come in to praise her.

Yessir, the adults in this household have been mighty busy this week thinking up adequate words of admiration.

* * *

I was expecting some words of admiration for myself the other morning when I took a beautifully browned lemon meringue pie out of the oven. However, when I tried to slice the pie, the meringue tore into unsightly hunks.

Then along came the next door neighbor and explained to me that if I had only sprinkled a little sugar over the top of the meringue it would have made cutting simple. I'll try her suggestion next time.

* * *

As I've mentioned before, this next door neighbor is very thrifty. She uses the fat left over from frying bacon in her pie crust instead of using commercial shortening. It's one of her pet economies.

I was a bit surprised when she suggested using cold milk in making the crust instead of using ice water. She says the improved taste is well worth the extra pennies the milk costs.

After she had advocated the use of milk in pie crust, the next door neighbor then told me how to make a substitute for whipped cream to use as topping for desserts.

She slices a ripe banana into the white of an egg and beats it with a rotary beater until stiff, and she says her family prefers this topping to real whipped cream.

Before she left (she had to stay long enough to watch the skating, the printing and the turning), she warned me never to cool a potato or pumpkin pie on a flat surface. These pies, she says, should be cooled on a cake rack to keep the bottom crust from becoming damp and limber.

Still on the subject of pies, the meat variety this time, try adding a tablespoon of minced onion to the baking powder biscuit dough used for the crust.

* * *

Now for an orange pecan pie recipe: Beat three egg yolks. Add 1 tall can evaporated milk plus enough orange juice to make 2¼ cups, grated rind of an orange and ½ cup sugar. Beat 3 eggs whites stiff, gradually adding ½ cup sugar. Fold into first mixture. Pour into unbaked pie shell, sprinkle with ½ cup chopped pecans and bake at 425 degrees for 10 minutes and then at 300 degrees for half an hour.

Junior Citizens Club Elect New Officers

The Junior Citizens' Club of the Clanton Elementary School met last Friday, January 16, 1953, in the regular club room at 11 o'clock. The meeting was called to order by the president, Carol Ann Scott. The club prayed the club's prayer and followed with the song, "America." The club then recited the American Creed and the Alabama Creed. The 13 rules of good citizenship followed. The Secretary, Dian Crew, read the minutes of the last meeting. They were corrected and approved. Then the president asked for the reports from the officers and committees. The vice-president had no report. The Treasurer, Neal Bice, reported a balance of $47.75 in the bank.

The corresponding secretary reported that the club had written a shower of letters to Mr. Albert Grammatas, Sr., thanking him for a donation of five dollars to the club. She also reported a shower of letters to Mr. James Tiffin of Tiffin Furniture Company, thanking him for installing the beautiful 27-inch screen Zenith Television in order for the club to see the inauguration of the President of the United States, Mr. Dwight D. Eisenhower. Then the committees gave their reports. The program committee reported that they were ready to present a special program on Robert E. Lee. The activity committee reported the two activities for the week. First that the club had attended the inauguration of the Chilton County officials at the First Methodist Church January 19, 1953, and second that the club had seen the inauguration of the President and Vice-President, Dwight David Eisenhower and Senator Richard B. Nixon, January 20, 1953.

The P.-T.A. Committee of the Junior Citizens' Club reported that the Clanton Elementary School P.-T.A. had given the club $5.00 for having every mother and every father a member of the Clanton Elementary School P.-T.A. The room committee reported that they had prepared the club room for the meeting.

The membership and attendance comittee reported the attendance in the club was 98% for the week. There was no old business. In the new business the sponsor, Mrs. L. C. Warr, presented the name of Albert Hughes as a candidate by request for membership in the club. The president asked the wishes of the club. The club voted unanimously to accept him as a member in the club, after a much discussion and after Albert Hughes promised that he would try hard to keep the rules of the club. The sponsor announced that Mrs. Harold Smith, Albert's teacher had agreed to give Albert permission to leave her room whenever the club meets. It was moved by James Helms and seconded that the club give the old officers and committees a rising vote of thanks for the splendid work they did during the past term. Then the president asked the program chairman, Mary Paula Johnson, to take the chair. The following program was presented:

1. The Boyhood of Robert E. Lee — Albert Grammatas.
2. The Manhood of Robert E. Lee — Joey Morris.
3. The Military Man, Robert E. Lee — John Hollis Jackson.
4. Why We Love and Honor Robert E. Lee — Mrs. L. C. Warr.
5. The Confederate Flag — The Club.
6. The Song, Dixie — Club.

At this time the new officers were installed. They were John Hollis Jackson, President; Vice-President, Dian Williamson; Secretary, James Armstrong; Treasurer, Albert Gramatas; Corresponding Secretary, Mary Paula Johnson; Parliamentarian, Joey Morris; Critic, Opal Culp.

John Hollis Jackson, the new president, took the chair and made his president's speech. Then the club gave the pledge to the Flag and sang, "Alabama" and "The Star Spangled Banner." It was moved by Albert Gramatas and seconded that the club be adjourned. The motion carried. The club stood adjourned.

Respectfully submitted,
Dian Crew, Secretary

President, John Hollis Jackson.

Clanton Pilots Entertained At Regular Meeting

Members of the Clanton Pilot Club were highly entertained at their regular weekly meeting last Tuesday night when they were treated to a panel discussion by the debating team of the Beta Club of Chilton County High School on the subject: "Challenge of Democracy."

Taking part in the discussion were Elizabeth Oglesby, who spoke on, "The Definition and Advantages of Living in a Democracy"; Judith Williams spoke on, "Education in a Democracy"; Donna Klinner spoke on, "Religion in a Democracy," and Betty Cox spoke on, "Responsibilities and Privileges of the Citizens in a Democracy." Shirley Cox was the moderator of the panel. The program will be repeated over WKLF at 3:45 p.m. Friday afternoon. The program at the Pilot's Club was under the sponsorship of the International Relations Committee of the club.

Guests at last Tuesday's meeting were Miss Betty Calloway, Mrs. J. D. Bell, Mrs. Alma Sims and Mrs. Mary Oglesby. Miss Margaret Perry, president of the Clanton Pilot Club, is also sponsor of the Beta Club.

Wear decorative flowers with your clothes? Dye them to match or contrast properly with your color scheme. You can immerse white flowers in liquid flower dye, shake off the excess and rinse in clear water.

Sweaters will dry quickly and easily if you lay them on a bath towel and press to shape. Place another bath towel over the sweater and roll out the extra moisture with a rolling pin.

Sequined dresses, blouses, scarfs, etc., can be pressed easily thus: turn all sequins in the same direction, place garment side down on board, pad with a soft cloth, cover with tissue paper and press with a warm iron.

Keep your belts in good order and easily accessible by hanging them from the buckle from nails near the top of closet doors. Drape scarfs over racks below the belts to utilize the door fully.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Cottage Cheese Dressing
(Makes 1 cup)

3 tablespoons lemon juice
6 tablespoons cottage cheese
6 tablespoons evaporated milk
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons sugar or honey
Dash of paprika
1 tablespoon chopped chives, if desired

Beat all ingredients together until smooth. Serve with fruit or green salads.

Precious hose can be protected from dirty boot or galosh tops by fitting a couple of tissues around the tops and folding over the outside. The tissues absorb dirt and moisture.

Keep some cellophane tape handy near your dressing table. It can be used to hold a hem in place if you need to do something about it during an emergency.

Have a small or medium sized embroidery hoop in your mending basket. It's excellent for holding material stretched tight when you need to do some darning.

Have a stiff-bristled brush near your ironing board for aid as pressing. It can be used for brushing before or after pressing.

Once a week go through all your handbags for cleaning them out, and then they'll be ready. Place fresh handkerchiefs and clean combs in them, and have a small lipstick in each, or keep your cosmetics in a small bag which can be transferred easily to each purse.

Can Get Personal Records At Local Census Bureau

Persons lacking birth certificates or other legal evidence of citizenship, age or family relationships can obtain transcripts of their personal census records which are, in most instances, acceptable substitutes, according to District Supervisor, Mary G. Auburtin, of the U. S. Census Bureau.

More than 100,000 Americans turned to the Census Bureau for such evidence in 1952. They needed proof of identity or age for Government and defense jobs, social security, passports, the Armed Services, and in connection with insurance and estate cases.

Supervisor Auburtin pointed out that personal information recorded by the Census Bureau is entirely confidential and may be furnished only upon the written request of the individual to whom it relates or his legal representatives. The normal fee is $3.00 for searches of two consecutive years for one individual, each application being handled in regular turn which generally requires approximately 30 days to complete service. Expedited handling is furnished for a $4.00 fee.

Application blanks and instructions may be obtained from the Census Bureau's District Office at 211½ North 6th Street, Clanton, or by writing to the Bureau of the Census, Washington 25, D.C.

Lutheran Church News—

The Service 11:00; Sunday School 10:00. Visitors welcome.

Church government has always been a fascinating subject because of the variety of forms that are to be found. Some are rigid and authoritarian, while others are somewhat loose and more flexible. Generally speaking, most forms of church government will fall under one of four types; Episcopal, Presbyterian, Lutheran, and Congregational.

The episcopal form of government is that in which the bishop plays a leading part. The word in the New Testament that is translated "bishop" is the Greek word "episcopus;" hence, an episcopal system must have a bishop. The bishop is usually supreme in all doctrinal and disciplinary matters. The Episcopal and Roman Catholic Churches are the main adherents to this form, and the Methodist Church is a modified episcopacy. Presbyterianism vests its power primarily in jurisdictional groups called presbyteries, synods, and general assemblies; each of these groups having authority over the other smaller ones. The presbytery is the smallest unit of government next to the congregation and is the most important. The Presbyterian and Reformed Churches use this type of government.

Lutheran government consists of the congregation, and a certain number of congregations within a certain area called synods. Our church in Thorsby, for example, is a member of the Georgia-Alabama Synod. Generally speaking the congregation is supreme in all matters relating to its local affairs, but certain other functions such as the ordination of ministers and organizing new congregations are delegated to the synod. The Lutheran synod is more of an advisory body to the local congregation and cannot intervene in congregational affairs as long as a problem of doctrine is not involved. Lutheran pastors are called by the congregation and not by the synod.

The Congregational theory maintains that the congregation is supreme in all matters including the ordination and discipline of pastors.

Churches governed under this type of government maintain that the congregation is completely autonomous and independent of higher ecclesiastical authority. All church boards are strictly advisory and have no authority over the congregation whatever. This means that discipline is administered by the congregation as well as the calling and ordination of pastors. The largest bodies using this type of government are the Baptists, Disciples of Christ (also called the Church of Christ, and the Congregationalists.

Those are the four main forms of government used by churches in this country. As you can see, all of the major religious bodies are covered by these practices, and the smaller sects usually follow one of these forms with a few minor variations. Which type of government does your church follow?

Council meeting: The church council will meet this Wednesday evening with Naemi. All council members plan to attend.

Women of the Church will meet February 18 with Mrs. Reagan, with Mrs. Love and Mrs. N. Laurell as hostesses.

Lent is only about three weeks away and it might be well to begin thinking about our mid-week services. Our mid-week meditations last year were very successful, so we hope that services this year will be enthusiastically. The church council will decide the day and time at its meeting this week and further notice will be posted in the bulletin next Sunday. Lent begins February 18, which is Ash Wednesday.

Help yourselves to leftover bulletins, they are no good after the service and have to be thrown away. As you leave the church take as many of the bulletins as you want and pass or mail them to friends or relatives.

Your pastor's baby will be baptized two weeks from today, February 15th, unless circumstances beyond our control should prevent it. Rev. David Conrad of Montgomery will come to perform this ceremony.

If you would like to see a Christian television program, tune in channel 13 on Sunday evenings at 6 o'clock and see This Is The Life. This program is sponsored by the Missouri Synod and is very inspirational.

Television A Blessing Or A Curse?—

Television is one of the greatest discoveries of mankind. It is here to stay. It can be and should be a blessing to mankind, but the question in my mind is this—how many are permitting it to become a curse? I have observed that some watch television when they should be attending church services. Those who stay at home on Sunday and Wednesday evenings when they should be in church are permitting it to become a curse to them. I have observed that others have their minds on some program they want to see immediately following church service, and thereby permit it to hinder their worship, hurrying away as soon as they are dismissed, failing to receive the Christian fellowship they need and failing to take an interest in others caring to shake their hands and make them feel welcome. God is not pleased with this. Those who do this are permitting their television to become a curse rather than a blessing. You will do well to give this serious thought.

Rev. Daniel asks that people who are sick to feel free to call him, that he does not know unless we do; that depends upon us. We cannot expect too much from our pastors and feel, that because they are a preacher, they must know within themselves and they never get tired. If we are Christians we must be ready to help those who are sick and in trouble. A preacher is only a human being and so are we.

Land Banks Sound Investment By Government Says Auburtin

No other group has done a better job of helping the government to get out of business than the farmers of this country, Mr. G. B. Auburtin, secretary-treasurer of the Canebrake National Farm Loan Association, declared this week.

Mr. Auburtin said that beginning in 1917, with the establishment of the Federal land banks, the government provided capital to help farmers to build their own cooperative credit system. This was one of the best investments the government ever made, Mr. Auburtin believes.

The 12 Federal land banks and over half of the production credit associations have repaid all government capital. And American farmers now have $171,175,000 of their own money invested in their credit banks and loan associations, Mr. Auburtin reported.

During the past ten years the farm credit system has increased its earned surplus and reserves by $317,825,000. The Federal land banks, the national farm loan associations and farm cooperatives have paid farmer members $28,169,000 in cash dividends and patronage refunds. The farm credit banks and associations now have a total net worth of $521,519,000.

But probably more important than these financial benefits and gains, impressive as they are, the advance in farm ownership and the improvements made in agriculture through the wise use of credit, are even more important, Mr. Auburtin believes.

The pirates are starting out young in Tampa as the annual Gasparilla Festival each year gains more popularity. Not only have the adults taken up the cutlass of the legendary pirate, Jose Gaspar, who once captured this city, but the younger generation also has caught the spirit of swashbuckling.

One of the highlights of the Gasparilla season will be the Children's Gasparilla Festival. This will be its fifth year.

Under the direction of the city recreation department, the children's festival brings each elementary school in the county into the festivities.

In these surrounding pictures, you see the youngsters who are candidates for Children's Gasparilla King and Queen V and their pages.

The coronation will be Friday night, February 13, at 7:30 o'clock in Municipal Auditorium.

Nearly 175 children from 43 Hillsborough County schools will participate in the coronation.

The colorful children's parade preceeds the coronation on Wednesday, February 11.

Tampa's Gasparilla is here to stay. A new crop of pirates and their pirate ladies — called princes and princesses — are being groomed each year ot carry on the tradition of Jose Gaspar's invasion of Tampa.

Surprise Party

By Virgie Evans Roger

In the dining nook of her apartment Sandra Cunningham yanked open the bottom drawer of her buffet. Which table cloth to use? The answer was simultaneous with the question—her best, of course. She pulled the lacy filigree from the bottom of the stack. Would this be the night for her and Jim?

Dinner for two, by candlelight, her heart sang, as she placed a tall white taper on each side of the red roses Jim had sent. He usually brought his flowers—but the roses had arrived by messenger soon after she got home from the office. Ah, she smiled, as she brought out her hope chest two-place setting of sterling, was this his way of saying be ready?

Returning to the kitchenette she took a package from the small refrigerator and unwrapped the luscious looking T-bone steaks, Jim's favorite. "Beautiful," she exclaimed under her breath, momentarily pausing to admire them before preparing for the broiler.

She lifted the lid to check the bubbling potatoes as the telephone rang sharply. "Oh, don't let it be Jim saying he can't come," she prayed.

"Hi, cookie," Jim said as she answered. "Do I smell chicken?" he teased.

"Just wait and see," she sang, anticipating his delight over the juicy steaks.

"Mind if I spring a little surprise on you?" he asked.

"Please," she begged. "Don't say you can't come."

"On the contrary. Could I bring someone along? I have a new girl friend."

His words cut like a double-edged knife. Noises hammered in her ears. She couldn't believe she had heard right. "Girl friend!" she tried to hold her voice steady.

"Just a little surprise," he answered casually.

Little surprise! The bottom had fallen out of everything. "Why, Jim," she stalled, trying to pick from her jumbled thoughts something to say. "If you . . . if you want to," she managed at last.

If he said more Sandra didn't hear. She came to with the dial tone in her ear. She slammed the phone into its cradle, a dozen questions pounding in her mind.

Her glance fell on the lace-covered table for two. Did Jim want it for three? What would Emily Post say, she wondered ironically, about how to entertain your fiance's new girl friend? But he wasn't her fiance, she painfully admitted. And what did the table matter now? Or the steaks?

How could she face Jim? How could she face his new girl friend, she questioned, with panic. She just couldn't.

She jumped when she heard a car stop in front—Jim's car. A glance out the window gave her the answer. There was the girl. Jim was helping her from the front seat. Bundled in furs, Sandra couldn't tell whether she was big or little—probably a petite brunette, in contrast to her five-footten blond make-up, she thought with chagrin, as she beat it to the back door.

By the time they came in she would be outside. She fumbled nervously with the door. "Darn that tricky latch!" she berated, as Jim rang the chimes and simultaneously burst into the living room. "Hello, Beautiful," he called. "Anybody home?" She was trapped.

An instant later Jim's tall frame was coming through the archway, a five-year-old girl in his arms. "Here she is, Cookie," he was saying to Sandra, "this is Pam, my new little girl friend.

"Oh," Sandra said, relief enveloping her, as things began to come into focus again. "Oh, Jim, what a surprise!" Suddenly they were laughing together and everything was beautiful again.

Jim quickly explained that his relatives couldn't stay, but he had made them come by to meet her. He turned to the child as she and her mother prepared to go. "Pam, maybe she'd let you call her Aunt Sandra.

Was this a preview of the all important question? Then she'd preview her answer. "Of course, Pam, dear."

Dr. Taylor Advises On Health Helps

Improper washing and disinfecting of dishes, tableware and kitchen utensils in public eating places may be contributing to the transmission of such diseases as colds, influenza and other respiratory ailments from one person to another, Dr. Taylor, County Health Officer said today, as he warned that incidence of these infections is increasing. To combat this danger, he urged all residents of the county to cooperate with the department in promoting better restaurant sanitation. Thorough cleansing and sterlization of eating utensils should also be practiced in the home, since one member of the family might infect all the other members.

The restaurant laws require that dishes and utensils used in public eating places be thoroughly washed and disinfected after each use. Dr. Taylor states that inspections have shown that some places should immediately improve their dishwashing procedure, although many others are taking their responsibility seriously and are doing a good job.

The proper procedure for cleaning eating utensils is as follows: Remove food scraps; wash thoroughly with warm water to which a good detergent has been added; rinse; render bactericidal treatment by completely immersing utensils in water of a temperature of at least 170 degrees F for one minute or more; remove from water and let dry by draining. Never wipe dishes dry unless dry cloths are known to be sterile. The addition to sterilizing water of a chlorine solution will aid in killing any bacteria which might be present.

For places which cannot meet minimum standards with their present equipment, a switch to paper service may be the solution to the problem. This service, which provides a fresh utensil for every customer is a sure way to prevent mouth to mouth spread of infection.

Residents of this county can be of real assistance in bringing about improvement in dishwashing procedures. Whenever an individual dines out at a public eating place and there is placed before him a dish, glass, cup, fork, or any utensil which is not absolutely clean, a complaint should be registered with the management. Two or three such instances will no doubt bring about improved dishwashing in that particular establishment.

Alabama farmers who have seed to sell should let their local county agent know about it. He may be able to help them locate a market.

General Rules For Removal Of Stains

Auburn, Ala.—Treat garment stains as soon as possible because after they have dried or have been set by laundering it may be very difficult or impossible to remove them.

The mildest treatment be used first. If the stain is not greasy, try sponging it with cold water. Sugary stains are easily removed with clear water. If the stain contains grease, a dry-cleaning fluid or soapsuds may do the trick.

Some stains are combinations of several types and may require several kinds of treatment. For example, a fruit-flavored, ice cream stain should be treated as a sugar, egg, grease, and fruit stain.

Best Ways To Keep Milk Quality High

Auburn, Ala.—Dairymen agree that high investment, feed, and labor costs make efficient dairy operation more necessary than ever.

And one of the ways to realize the most profit from a dairy cow is to see that all the milk she produces reaches the plant as soon as possible.

When the milk gets to the plant it should not have lost any of its high quality. Such milk assures that neither the producer nor distributor will lose money.

High quality milk production does not call for expensive equipment, but there are certain requirements that must be met.

Steps to take include careful washing and rinsing of all utensils, proper cleaning of each cow's udder, prompt cooling of fresh milk, and effective insect and pest control.

Soup Can Be Made More Nutritious

Auburn, Ala.—A thin, soup-like broth or consumme makes an excellent appetizer for a hearty meal. But a sturdier, thicker, more nourishing soup is better if it is a meal's only hot dish.

"Especially is this fact important when growing children are served soup.

She explains that too much liquid in soup served along with milk may be so filling that children will not want other foods they need.

For this reason, soup in school or home lunches should be accompanied by a sandwich with protein filling and a crisp salad. Such a meal will meet children's needs in protein, calories, vitamins, and minerals.

Keep the inside surfaces of bread boxes and other tin containers from rusting by coating them with melted paraffin.

Damp Litter Remedy For Poultry Flocks

Auburn, Ala.—Many North Alabama poultrymen are having damp litter trouble in broiler and brooder houses this season of the year.

The condition is caused by condensation of moisture given off by chicks and droppings.

To correct damp litter, it will be necessary to move more air through the house. This may be done by opening windows or replacing glass-substitute window coverings on the south or east side of the house with muslin curtains. If windows are opened on only one side of the building, no draft will be created.

Pine Seedlings Donated To 4-H Club Members

One hundred and fifteen thousand pine seedlings have been donated to 4-H Club members of Chilton County by the Coosa River Newsprint Plant and the Gulf State Paper Company, according to John Sellers, Assistant County Agent of Chilton County.

Mr. Sellers also announced that the Peoples Savings Bank and the First National Bank of Clanton have bought 18 trees planting bars for the 4-H members to use in future years in connection with the County forestry program.

As a result of the donation of these pine seedlings, says the assistant county agent, 226 boys planted from 300 to 5,000 trees each, averaging about 1,000 trees per acre. Mr. Sellers estimated that this program of tree planting would be valued at about $10.00 per tree in 15 years or a total at that time of about $11,500.

Meat-Type Hogs On The Preferred List

During the past year reduced lard prices have lowered hog prices an average of $1 per 100 pounds of live weight.

The answer to this problem is a hog called the intermediate or meat type. And there is a simple method swine growers can use to see if they are producing such hogs. It's done by checking the length of carcass and thickness of fatback when the carcass is on the pole.

An Auburn specialist states that a 225-pound meat-type market hog has a carcass length of about 30 inches from pelvic bone to front side of the first rib. The fatback is uniform in thickness, averaging about one and one-half inches.

THE USES OF ADVERSITY

"In the world you shall have distress," says the Apostle John. Suffering is an inescapable fact of living. Unfortunately, to some people suffering seems a senseless cruelty that contradicts Christian teaching concerning the love and goodness of God.

Suffering is as much a mystery to devout Christians as it is to those who presume to question the ways of God. God permits adversity to plague even the good.

By showing fortitude in adversity, the devout Christian offers a homage that is altogether pleasing to his Creator. More than that, he converts suffering into an opportunity to share in the patient endurance of Christ Himself, who said: "If anyone will come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily."

Nothing that happens to a man, whether of good or evil, escapes the eyes of God. Many accept the blessings of life without a thought of God, from Whom all gifts come. But these same people are quick to complain—sometimes to the point of blasphemy—when some major tragedy or misfortune overtakes them.

Suffering is of real importance in the spiritual life no thinking Christian denies. A man enjoying prosperity and success may have "no time" for God. But let adversity overtake him, and he soon discovers the need for this Supreme Friend. It often happens that adversity dissolves the complacency of men and banishes from their hearts the spirit of indifference or irreverance that stems from self-satisfaction.

AAUW Board Asks 'Bold And Positive' Attack On Commie Threat To Freedom, Democracy

Advocating a "bold, positive, and frontal attack on the whole problem of the communist threat to freedom and democracy," the Board of Directors of the American Association of University Women has issued a statement to the AAUW membership defining the issue and urging individual and branch study of the problem. The Board's message appears as the lead article in the winter Journal of the Association, now being circulated to the membership.

That there is a communist danger which must be faced, the AAUW Board recognizes. The Board emphatically states, "Communism is a threat to freedom and democracy. We are against it. Facism is likewise a threat to freedom and democracy. We are against it. The use of totalitarian means to fight communism or facism is a threat to freedom and democracy. We are against it..." There is also danger, the Board warns, "that we may lose our liberties by the very means employed to defend them."

Defining the differences between democratic and totalitarian values, the statement lists 19 concepts representative of democracy and their opposite number as representative of totalitarianism.

The Board emphasizes that it believes the most powerful bulwark against communism and other forms of totalitarianism is a wholehearted commitment to the things democracy stands for. "We believe that the attempt to fight communism by using totalitarian techniques is not only ineffectual but actually aids the communist enemies of democracy by undermining our free institutions," they state. "We do not have to choose between communist infiltration and methods of witch-hunting, character assassination, and demagoguery. Both methods are evil; both are threats to freedom and democracy. We repudiate both."

The statement points out that "for the most part we and like-minded groups have been put on the defensive. If we attacked communism and communists, we found ourselves in the cap with self-seeking or facist-minded individuals who by their methods of attack were undermining the freedom and democracy they professed to defend. If we defended our liberties as a free people, we ran the risk of being called communist sympathizers, fellow-travelers, and even communists. So we have sat back more or less paralyzed and have allowed other people to take the initiative. . . ."

Labeling the problem as one that is not simple, the statement declares the basic issue to be clear: That to hold fast to our most cherished values as a free people we must preserve both freedom AND national security. 'In other words," the Board declares, "the communist threat to freedom and democracy is both direct and indirect. The indirect threat lies In what fear of communism may lead us to do to ourselves. We must not become like the thing we profess to hate."

Members are called on as "educated persons who are wholeheartedly committed to the cause of freedom and democracy," to give serious attention to the following problems:

1. How to become informed as to what communism really is as a philosophy, a political organization, and an economic system.

2. How to distinguish between the liberal or non-conformist citizen who is loyal to his country and the individual who gives his allegiance to another country by adhering to a party line dictated by that country.

3. How to demonstrate to the world that democracy has more to offer people than communism (a) by upholding at home the things for which democracy stands and (b) by helping the underprivileged peoples of the world to achieve the better life which communism promises but cannot deliver.

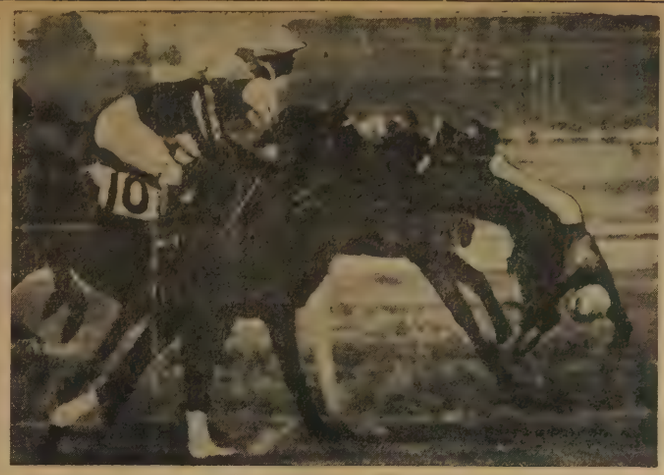
4. How to implement our conviction that the one sure defense against communism and related evils is a passionate commitment to the search for truth coupled with eternal vigilance against the enemies of truth and freedom; and how we may express this conviction through positive and constructive programs and activities in which people can engage and by which they may ensure the survival of free institutions.

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Ester Anderson, 523 Lebaron Street, Mesa, Arizona: I remember when grandmother cut a ring around her maple tree in Indiana, put a spout in the tree, caught the sap in a bucket, then boiled down the sap into maple syrup and maple sugar for us, the grandchildren.

From Claud L. Gourley, Weaverville, Trinity County, California: I remember when combined harvesters were pulled by 32 mules or horses to harvest wheat and barley in California. The animals were guided by a single line attached to the bit of the near leader and was known as a jerk line.

From H. J. Scott, Manchester, Ohio: I remember when the streets of Manchester were so full of chuck holes and rough that it was almost an impossible thing to stay in the hack. A hack was a closed wagon drawn by two horses. It went out and picked up people and took them to trains or boats. Met them and took them home or where they wanted to go much like the taxi of today. I also remember when people had large fire places and carried in logs and put the ends in the fire. The logs extended out into the room. As the logs burned they were pushed further into the fire. The people sat on each side of the logs. And I remember the old fashioned steam engine thrashing machine. When they left one farm they blew the whistle which was so loud neighbors for miles around could hear it and know when they were moving on to the next thrashing job. The machines were so heavy the bridges built in those days could not hold them, this particular one went through a bridge and the owner was killed by the steam and hot water.



SLIDE JOCKEY SLIDE... In a big race held down under at Caulfield, Australia, Jockey E. Anderson goes over the surprised head of his mount, Igeree, in this spectacular fall. The accident happened at the first jump on the treacherous course where the Tara steeplechase is held. Neither horse nor rider was injured. Horse seems to be stretching his neck to soften fall of the rider. Other horses in the picture are Parlaw (center) and Golden Dice. Race was exciting to fans all the way through.

Milestones in heart research

It was about a hundred years ago that a French physician, Rene-Theophile-Hyacinthe Laennec, held a tightly rolled cylinder of paper to a patient's chest. He found that he could hear the heart beat far more clearly than with his ear alone. Laennec's experiment led to the invention of the stethoscope, one of the greatest aids to the diagnosis of heart conditions.

Today's physician—thanks to modern heart research—has many precise instruments for diagnosing heart disease.

Progress depends on research. And research depends on dollars. So why not strike a blow at heart disease now with a generous gift to the Heart Fund.

Narrow Town–Broad Outlook

The wife's cousin Ben, and Belle, his wife, are back from their trip through the Rockies. Took them to dinner last night at the Green Gardens. Ben told about the trip:

"Went through a town in Idaho that was only 100 feet wide. No kidding! Built into a long, narrow canyon. And it shares those 100 feet with a railroad track that runs right through the hotel!

"To get gas there we had to park right on the tracks. Suddenly Belle screams—'there's a train coming'! But the gas fellow just laughs and says we were there first. Blamed if the engineer didn't stop the train and wait, too!"

From where I sit, it's a good illustration of how people can learn to "think of the other fellow" so that the community benefits. Railroaders and townspeople, Democrats and Republicans, malted milk fanciers and those who prefer a temperate glass of beer—we all have to share the same space. Let's maintain our neighbor's "right of way."

News from Alabama Mills

Gearldene Melton —Phone 601-J

The mill village is beginning to look more like a TV station than a village. Almost every house has a television set and are enjoying it better every day, especially the children when the Western Theatre comes on.

Myra Best Robinston spent Tuesday afternoon with Patricia Ann Melton.

Mrs. M. J. Bates and daughter, Faye, and son, Mr. Jack Bates, motored to Birmingham Monday on business.

To all the employees of the Mill on the sick list this week, and there are many, we hope you will all soon be much better and all of you will soon be back on the job with us. To all of those who have recently come back to work, we are very glad to have you back on your job and we hope you will continue to improve and that you will be able to remain on the job. We miss all of you when you are unable to come to work.

We are happy to see the Hayes chauffering a new 1953 Ford around the village and know that Kenneth and his wife and son will enjoy it very much.

Martha Palmer spent a while Wednesday afternoon with Patricia Melton.

We see that Raymond Price has a new car. No, I believe its the same one he has had but its painted a two-tone gray and it really looks good, too.

International Introduces New Styled R-Line

A completely new line of International trucks, with 168 basic chassis models in 296 wheelbases, was introduced today in Chilton County area, it was announced by Russell Shelton, International truck dealer for Chilton County.

"The International R-line, most complete line of trucks in the world, consists of light, medium and heavy-duty motor trucks whose gross vehicle weight ratings range from 4,200 to 90,000 pounds," Mr. Shelton said. "Gasoline, liquefied petroleum gas or diesel engines are available."

The line, announced nationally by W. C. Schumacher, general manager of the motor truck division of International Harvester Company, Chicago, is being shown in International branch and dealer showrooms throughout the country.

"The R-line trucks offer 307 new features developed at our engineering and test laboratories at Fort Wayne, Ind., and proved at our Phoenix, Ariz., desert proving ground," Mr. Shelton said.

"Truck-to-job specialization is possible with the R-line to a degree never before achieved," Mr. Shelton said. "There are 29 engines—gasoline, LPG and diesel—whose horsepower ratings range from 100 to 356, and a wide selection of transmissions, auxiliary transmissions, axles and axle ratios. The many variations and options available make it possible for any truck operator to meet his job requirements precisely with a new R-line model."

Besides its Standard chassis models, the 168-model International truck line includes a number of chassis series specialized for truck operations. These include:

Loadstar models for hauling heavy, compact loads over rough terrain which subjects the truck to a high degree of twisting and shock.

Cab-Forward models for truck operations requiring the maximum in load-space and maneuverability. In this group are two new models, the RC-190 and RC-200, both equipped with a Tiltocab-type Comfo-Vision cab.

Highly-specialized Western-built extra-heavy-duty conventional and cab-over-engine chassis for extra-heavy service on or off the highway.

Specialized fire truck chassis models.

Besides conventional and Cab-Forward models, the International R-line offers a cab feature of recent development. The "102 Space Saver" attachment is a short bumper-to-back-of-cab dimension feature which is six inches less than the conventional. This permits truck operators to use 35-foot trailers in states restricting overall tractor-trailer lengths to 45 feet. It is available on International Roadliner and Loadstar models of various wheelbases.

Powering the new light, medium and heavy-duty models are seven International valve-in-head engines, ranging from 100 to 162 horsepower. All are built at International's Indianapolis, Ind., engine plant, the largest exclusive truck engine manufacturing facility in the world. Six of the International-built engines are available with gasoline or liquefied petroleum gas fuel system.

An all-new valve-in-head engine, the International Black Diamond 282, develops 130 horsepower at 3,400 revolutions per minute. Compression ratio is 6.5 to 1. It has a fine-grained chrome-alloy iron cylinder block, short-stroke crankshaft, self-cleaning slo-roto exhaust valves, thick-dome aluminum pistons with chromeplated top rings and U-flex oil rings, and visible-flow carburetion with fast-idle cam. It is available with gasoline or LPG fuel system.

Exterior styling has been redesigned. Front end sheet metal is more functional, permitting greater air intake for more efficient cooling. The interior of International's roomy Comfo-Vision cabs, deluxe, sleeper, Space-saver and Tiltocab-types, with new instrument cluster and ignition-key starter switch, is finished in beige and Tile Red. Green-tinted, non-glare safety glass is optional. New cab mountings provide a more stable ride.

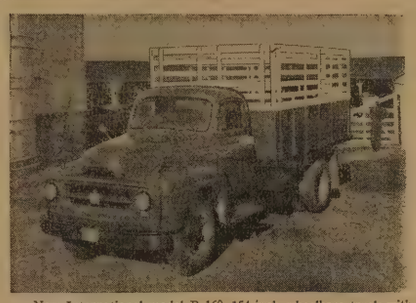
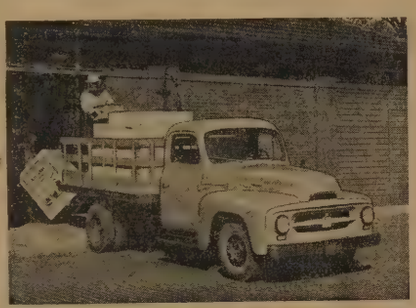
With the entirely new International 115-inch wheelbase model R-110 Travelall, International Harvester Company provides a handsomely-styled, versatile model for use in town or on the farm or ranch. The Travelall, built for passengers plus cargo or luggage, has just been introduced with International's new R-line. As a passenger vehicle, it carries eight people comfortably. Center and rear seats can be easily removed for quick conversion when it is to be used as an all-purpose carrier. Use of front seat only affords panel truck carrying capacity. This and International's other new light-duty models are powered by the 100-horse power valve-in-head Silver Diamond 220 engine. International R-line trucks are newly styled and are identified by the distinctive IH emblem, replacing the famed Triple Diamond.



New International model R-160, 154-inch wheelbase truck with 12-foot combination stock rack and grain body, is one of 168 basic truck chassis models in 296 wheelbases introduced today with International Harvester Company's new R-line motor trucks. International's R-160 Series trucks include seven models in five wheelbases, with gross vehicle weight ratings from 14,000 to 17,000 pounds. Power plant for R-160 Series trucks is the valve-in-head 108-horsepower Silver Diamond 240 engine with either gasoline or LPG fuel system. International R-line trucks are newly styled and are identified by the distinctive IH emblem, replacing the famed Triple Diamond. The new line offers 307 new features developed at International's Fort Wayne, Ind., engineering and test laboratories and proved at its Phoenix, Ariz., desert Proving Ground.



New International model R-130, 134-inch wheelbase truck with 8½-foot deluxe stake body, is one of 168 basic truck chassis models in 296 wheelbases introduced today with International Harvester's new R-line motor trucks. For light-duty trucking jobs better served by stake models, International offers a choice of 8½ and 7½-foot stake bodies for 127-inch and 134-inch wheelbase models in the R-110, R-120 and R-130 Series (GVW 4,200 to 8,600 pounds). This and International's other new light-duty models are powered by the 100-horsepower valve-in-head Silver Diamond 220 engine. International R-line trucks are newly styled and are identified by the distinctive IH emblem, replacing the famed Triple Diamond. The new line offers 307 new features developed at International's Fort Wayne, Ind., engineering and test laboratories and proved at its Phoenix, Ariz., desert Proving Ground.

International R-160 Series models are built in 130, 142, 154, and 172-inch wheelbases. Power plant is the 108-horsepower Silver Diamond 240 engine, gasoline or LPG-fueled. International R-line trucks are newly styled and are identified by the distinctive IH emblem, replacing the famed Triple Diamond. The new line offers 307 new features developed at International's Fort Wayne, Ind., engineering and test laboratories and proved at its Phoenix, Ariz., desert Proving Ground.

Corn Varieties for Alabama

By E. F. SCHULTZ, JR., Assistant Agronomist
API Agricultural Experiment Station

IN its search for the best varieties of corn for Alabama farmers, the Experiment Station has tested 30 open pollinated varieties and over 500 hybrids during the last 15 years. Most of these have proved to be unadapted.

For 1953 planting purposes, 15 hybrids are recommended as first or second choice corn for Alabama farmers. No open-pollinated varieties are on the recommended lists, although they may be used if seed of adapted hybrids are not available.

Farmers should not attempt to plant seed saved from their hybrid corn fields. The average yield loss resulting from the use of such seed, instead of properly produced seed, was 15 per cent in 28 tests conducted by the station.

Northern Alabama—First choice white hybrids: Dixie 33, Pfister (PAG) 620, and Pfister (PAG) 631. First choice yellow hybrids: Dixie 22, North Carolina 27, Pfister (PAG) 170, and U. S. 13. Second choice white hybrids: Dixie 11, Dixie 17, Georgia 101, McCurdy 1005 W1, and Tennessee 10. Second choice yellow hybrids: Dixie 18.

Central Alabama—First choice white hybrids: Coker 811, Dixie 11, and Louisiana 521. First choice yellow hybrids: Dixie 18 and North Carolina 27. Second choice white hybrids: Dixie 17, Georgia 101, McCurdy 1005 W1, Pfister (PAG) 631, Tennessee 10. Second choice yellow hybrid: Dixie 22. Trial basis: Dixie 33 (white).

Southern Alabama—First choice varieties are the same as for Central Alabama: (white) Coker 811, Dixie 11, and Louisiana 521; (yellow) Dixie 18 and North Carolina 27. Second choice hybrids are all white: Dixie 17, Georgia 101, and McCurdy 1005 W1. Trial basis: Dixie 33 (white).

Mosby and Paymaster are probably the best open pollinated varieties for Alabama farmers; however, they produce about 15 to 20 per cent less than the recommended hybrids.

New Cotton Variety

PAULA is a new cotton that has been added to the API Experiment Station's list of recommended varieties for 1953. The cotton is suitable for use in any part of the state that is free of wilt.

Here's A Serious Thought

This Baldwin County farm youngster often dreams of the day when he will operate a beef cattle farm down in South Alabama just as his father does today. Little Charles Gates already has many hours of valuable experience in beef production. The four-year-old youth has been entering cattle shows and getting ribbons since the day he was two years old. Charles, of course, can attribute much of the credit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Gates, who live on a 160-acre beef cattle farm near Robertsdale. The couple has encouraged Charles in the beef business since the youngster has been large enough to enjoy the farm. Mr. and Mrs. Gates believe they have been successful too—because Charles plans to be a cattleman just like Dad.

For Better Living

Rural Community Improvement Given a Boost

BUSINESS, industrial, and agricultural leaders have developed plans for the Alabama Rural Community Improvement Program which was started last month.

Sponsored by the API Extension Service, the Liberty National Life Insurance Co. of Birmingham, and the Alabama State Chamber of Commerce, the program will make the winning rural community some $800 richer. Total cash prizes will be $3800.

Designed to develop the social, economic, educational, and health activities of each community by raising incomes and improving standards of living, the program adds emphasis to rural community development work already going on in Alabama, explained officials of the sponsoring organizations. Probably 150 Alabama communities will enter the first year's contest, and an increasing number is expected in future annual contests.

Communities have until February 15 to enter the 1953 program. To be included, a community must be organized and must hold regular meetings during the year to work on their problems. All communities within a county will work under a county sponsoring committee which will have full control in each county.

County winners will compete in a district contest. The grand prize winner will be chosen from the district winners and honored at a state-wide dinner late in the year.

County agents have full details on the contest. Communities interested in the program should contact their agents immediately.

A state committee for the program's direction and leadership is composed of P. O. Davis, Extension director; Dr. James L. Brakefield, of Liberty National, and John M. Ward, of the State Chamber of Commerce. George Sargent, Extension specialist in community development, is committee secretary.

The prize money, donated by Liberty National, can be used only for a project that will improve the entire community.

Big Applications Of Phosphate In Past Reduce Current Needs

By L. M. WARE, Horticulturist
A.P.I. Agricultural Experiment Station

(Editor's Note: Last of Series)

IN earlier discussions it has been pointed out that vegetable crops remove from the land only a relatively small amount of phosphorus. This unused phosphate may be sufficient to give good to full yields of these crops in later years without additional applications. It is important to know what rates of phosphorus may be needed each year to maintain maximum yields on soils that have received different rates of phosphorus in the past.

Studies made at Auburn with vegetable crops help answer this question. To determine rates of fertilizer necessary for maximum yields during later years where different rates had been applied over a period of years, yields from different rates of phosphorus during a second period were compared to the yield of reference or standard plots. Reference plots on a Norfolk sandy loam had received 160 pounds of phosphoric acid (P_2O_5) per acre annually for a period of 9 years and continued to receive annual applications of 80 pounds per acre for a period of 5 years. On the Cecil sandy clay and on the Eutaw heavy clay soils, rates during the first 9 years on the reference plots were 320 pounds and for the second period 160 pounds of phosphoric acid annually. Comparisons were made of the yield at different rates as compared to the reference plots.

Plots that had received 240 pounds of phosphoric acid annually for 9 years produced during the next 5 years as much from 120 pounds as reference plots on both Cecil and Eutaw soils.

Where 160 pounds of phosphoric acid had been applied annually for 9 years, yields for the next 5 years were as high from 80-pound applications as yields of the reference plots on the Cecil soil and 93 per cent as high on the Eutaw soil. Where 80 pounds of phosphoric acid had been applied annually for 9 years, yields the next 5 years from 40-pound applications averaged 65 per cent as much on the Eutaw, 62 per cent as much on the Cecil, and 85 per cent as much on the Norfolk as the yields of reference plots.

The data, therefore, indicate that maximum or near-maximum yields may be obtained for a number of years from reduced applications of phosphorus on soils that have received high applications for a number of years.

Forestry tree plantings should usually be completed by the last of February. The dibble is the best tool for planting in soft soils. The mattock or grub hoe is best for tightly-packed soils. For best results plant seedlings during wet, rainy days.

* * *

During the next two months, forest fires will burn more woodland area than in any other corresponding period of the year. This is the time to give specific warnings against the spread of woods fires. Farmers who are clearing land and burning brush should take special precautions to prevent the spread of fire to their woodlands.

* * *

Sericea should be planted as soon as danger of freezing is past. If land has not already been prepared, it should, by all means, be prepared this month. Sericea is adapted to a wide range of Alabama soils and will give good returns from grazing from about April until November! It also produces good hay.

* * *

Select a good laying strain of birds and start at least 400 sexed pullets or 900 straight-run chicks so that a flock of 300 or more hens can be put into production this summer.

* * *

Fertilization of farm ponds should begin in February. The rate of application is 100 pounds of 6-8-4 and five pounds of ammonium nitrate or 10 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre. The first three applications should be spaced two weeks apart and applications thereafter when the hand can be seen at elbow depth.

One of the biggest problems still confronting Alabama farmers is that of getting all their usable land into profitable production. Work should be continued to put every acre into row crops, pastures, and perennials such as lespedeza sericea, kudzu, and other crops. These different kinds of crops should be fitted together in order to make good sound use of all the open land on the farm.

Along the Way with P. O. DAVIS
DIRECTOR, A.P.I. EXTENSION SERVICE

A good way to start farming in 1953 is to take a look at 1952 and learn the lessons that it taught.

I'll never forget 1952. It was a tough year in weather and otherwise. Crop prospects were wonderful until severe drouth and excess heat wrecked them.

For example, late in June corn looked like it would average 30 bushels per acre in Alabama. But it made only 11 bushels as officially reported. Drouth and heat were responsible.

Cotton was cut but not as much as corn. In spite of tough weather, cotton came through with almost an average crop. With good weather it would have made much more.

Pastures were parched for weeks but, with rain in the late summer and early fall, they revived to produce much grazing. This was another demonstration of the importance of good pastures. They can be parched one week and be providing green grazing two or three weeks later.

As I review 1952 I'm reminded to emphasize the following:

1. That a good seedbed be prepared before planting.
2. Plant at the right time. Your county agent can give you specific information as to the best time to plant.
3. Plant nothing but good seed of the variety known to be best for your farm.
4. Use plenty of fertilizer of the right kind. Good fertilizer properly used pays well. In fact Alabama farmers can make good money by doubling their 1952 use of fertilizer.

These four things are simple but they are mighty important. Success hinges upon them. They are the essence of good farming.

Another important fact gained by 1952 experience is that irrigation properly done pays big dividends. This was proven by the few farmers in Alabama who irrigated; and also by the Experiment Station at Auburn where an irrigated acre of cotton made four times as much as an unirrigated acre otherwise the same.

Any farmer who has water available, or can make it available, for irrigation needs to give serious and immediate attention to equipping himself for this practice.

The vital importance of livestock in conjunction with feed crops and cotton was again revealed. Alabama farmers are still far short of their opportunity in producing meat, milk, and eggs.

In making this statement I realize that much money is involved in preparing land for making pasture. From raw land to grasses much money is involved, and grass is high on the list of livestock essentials. It pays.

And this reminds me that 1952 was not a good price year for farmers. It was only fair. Prices that farmers paid for operating their farms and homes were higher but the prices they received when they sold their products were lower than in 1951.

And this situation still exists. In fact, the squeeze on farmers is harder in 1953 than it was in 1952.

This challenges each farmer to plan and operate his farm on a low-cost basis, provided he does not reduce his cost to the extent of curtailing his output which in turn would reduce his income to a greater degree.

Each job and each operation needs to be studied in advance with a view of trimming costs and increasing output per man and per acre. A high yield at a low cost per unit produced is vital.

Outlook For Supply Of Spring Planting Seeds

By RALPH R. JONES
A.P.I. Specialist In Seed Crops Marketing

WITH few exceptions, there will be enough seed for normal plantings of most of our crops this year. At least, that is the picture as it now appears.

The seed situation for some of our major crops is as follows:

Hybrid corn. Supplies of recommended varieties are extremely short. This shortage was caused by last summer's drought that extended throughout the Southeast and cut seed supplies of all southern hybrids.

Farmers can stretch this year's supply though by using round grades. Research shows these round grades to be equally as good as the flat grades so there is no reason why farmers should not use them. They are much better than hybrids not adapted for use in the South.

Cotton seed. There are plenty of seed of all the recommended varieties, provided we have a normal spring season. However, extensive re-planting could cause a shortage of good seed.

Sericea. Very short crops of these seed for the past two years mean that sericea will probably be hard to find.

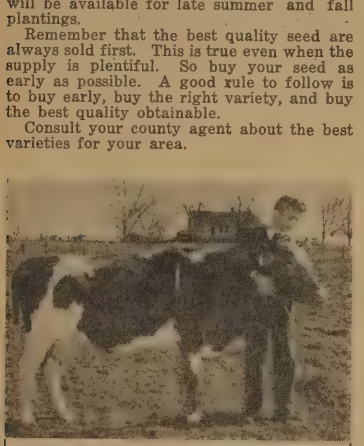
Ladino Clover. There are plenty of these seed available this year.

White clover. A fairly good stock of these should insure a sufficient supply.

Alfalfa. A large supply of alfalfa seed will be available for late summer and fall plantings.

Remember that the best quality seed are always sold first. This is true even when the supply is plentiful. So buy your seed as early as possible. A good rule to follow is to buy early, buy the right variety, and buy the best quality obtainable.

Consult your county agent about the best varieties for your area.



A SHOW WINNER AND A PAIL FILLER—Lee Dunn of Daviston in Tallapoosa County wasn't satisfied with his calf when he showed her in the county show and she didn't win. So he sold her and bought this registered Guernsey as a baby calf from Pennsylvania. With her, he won first place in the county show that year and has been taking honors in many events since. From his cow he now has a bull calf and a heifer, all of which he values at $750. Last year he sold 9,924 pounds of milk from his Guernsey for a net profit of $233. Lee has been a member of the Daviston 4-H Club since 1947.

If green grazing is temporarily not available to brood sows this winter, the next best thing is to feed high quality, leafy green alfalfa hay in racks. Only about three-fourths of a pound will be eaten by each animal daily, but vitamins and other elements, lacking in the average dry lot ration, will be provided. The result will be bigger and stronger baby pigs.

SAME HOUSE, BUT NEW BOARDERS — When the broiler business failed to produce a profit, Tom Wilson and his son, Warren, of Dadeville, Rt. 1, decided to use their poultry house for another farm business. Last August they changed the house to a grade B dairy barn and started selling milk from 11 registered Guernsey cows. Tom (right) tells Assistant County Agent Hoyt Webb that his 31 head of cows and calves are grazing crimson and white Dutch clover. The Wilsons are increasing the size of their herd by keeping heifers for future milkers.

Watch For This Pest

By W. A. RUFFIN
A.P.I. Extension Entomologist

THE European corn borer is one insect that Alabama farmers are going to hear plenty from in the future.

A pest new to this state, the borer could come to be as dreaded by corn growers as the boll weevil is by cotton farmers. At some future time it undoubtedly will be among our most difficult and costly insect enemies.

Alabama's first European corn borer was found in Cullman County last year, and did only a small amount of damage. Nevertheless, with even this small foothold, the pest is bound to spread to other areas of the state in the future.

It has been estimated the borer lowered corn yields over the U. S. by at least 314 million bushels three years ago. Since the insect is now only in 37 states, you can imagine how costly it will be when finally it spreads over the entire country.

Work of the borer, which can completely destroy a field of corn in short order, often can be detected by numerous tassels either broken or bending over.

The insect passes the winter as a flesh-colored caterpillar in the stalk of the plant on which it has been feeding. The brown moths begin to emerge from their cocoons in early spring. Though they are strong fliers, they move about mainly at night.

The female moths lay their eggs in groups of five to 50 on the underside of leaves. They lay on the average of 500 to 600 eggs that hatch in about a week. The young worms feed on the tassel, leaves, and other parts of the plant. When about half grown, they become borers. In this stage they work up and down inside the stalk, in the ears, and in the larger roots. As many as 152 borers have been taken from one plant and 42 from one ear of field corn.

The European corn borer is hard to control. Total destruction of stalks by shredding and turning them under helps reduce the numbers of the insect. Rotation of crops and planting of hybrids resistant to borers help some. During the growing season the insects can be halted with a dust containing five per cent DDT. It must be applied at the rate of 15 to 25 pounds per acre to be effective. The first application should be made when eggs start to hatch. Three or four more applications one week apart are recommended.

Drug feeding. The so-called "wonder drugs" in swine feeding—antibiotics and B-vitamins—have had their value proven by most state experiment stations. Their use has become widespread in the great corn-hog belt.

For the average Alabama hog grower, the only source of these materials up to now is through feeding commercial supplements containing antibiotics and B-vitamins. But the mere fact that they are included in the supplement doesn't mean much. Purdue Experiment Station found that there is little apparent value from adding an antibiotic to a complete swine ration unless the minimum level of antibiotic per ton of total ration is 10 grams. This is equivalent to approximately 60 grams of antibiotic in a ton of protein supplement. Aureomycin, penicillin, and terramycin are antibiotics showing best results at Purdue to date.

Be sure to buy enough nitrogen fertilizer to apply the equivalent of 300 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre to all your oats; make the applications in late February or by March 1 in order to get a good grain yield.

JUST LIKE THIS—Pine seedlings must be set just right to get them to live. Here Lee Loyd (left) and Lucius Taylor are showing their school principal, Owen Frost, that they know how it's done. They are using a dibble (planting tool) to make the opening in the soil for the plant. The seedling is then inserted in the opening and the soil packed tightly around it. These youngsters of the Eagle Creek community in Tallapoosa County are planning to set out 1000 seedlings on each of their farms.

Fescue-White Clover Furnish Winter Grazing

A big problem facing beef cattle farmers is growing plenty of pasture during winter months.

Paul Starr and his son, Paul, Jr., of Camden, don't have all the answers to the situation, but they think they are on the right road and traveling pretty fast.

Like most other farmers, the Starrs didn't have enough cold weather grazing back in 1950. So they decided they needed a new crop that would give green pastures during the winter months. Not knowing what to plant, they checked with their county agent, Frank Barnett. After looking the land over, it was decided that a mixture of fescue and white Dutch clover would be the best bet.

The land to be planted had been in native grass pasture for several years but was in bad condition. It had grown up in bushes, briars, and small pine timber. This, of course, had to be cleared before any improved pasture could be planted. The timber was cut and sold for pulpwood to help pay the cost of planting the pasture.

After the land was cleared, the Starrs prepared a good seedbed by breaking and disking the land several times in July of 1951. Before seeding, one ton of lime and 500 pounds of 6-8-4 was put on each acre. In September seven pounds of white Dutch clover and 12 pounds of Kentucky 31 fescue per acre were seeded. In February, 1952, each acre received 250 pounds of nitrate of soda.

No cattle were allowed to graze the new pasture for nine months after planting. This allowed the grass to get off to a good start, and along with heavy applications of fertilizer accounted for the crop's success.

Last June the Starrs combined 125 pounds of clean clover seed from each acre. In July 110 head of cattle were turned on the 20-acre pasture and grazed it until September.

The cows were then taken off the clover and fescue mixture and another application of 125 pounds of nitrate of soda and 500 pounds of 0-16-8 was made. Grazing was again started on December 15. Since that date the pasture has continued to keep ahead of the cattle which are gaining weight almost like it was summer time.

The Starrs liked the new pasture so much they decided to plant 50 more acres in the fall of 1952. Since they had such good luck with the first planting, the 1952 pasture area received the same treatment as the original 20 acres. Even with the extremely dry weather in the fall, the stand is perfect and the crop is looking very good.

In talking about the Starr's pasture program, Paul, Jr., said, "I think it is the best combination of grass and clover that I have ever seen for winter grazing. I believe that if we ever have a year-around pasture program, we are going to have to use some of this mixture."

The Starrs will keep on planting the combination each year until they have 200 acres.

In addition to the fescue, white Dutch clover and Dallis grass, Bahia grass on their upland, and Coastal Bermuda are also used for grazing crops for their cattle.

"It takes a lot of fertilizer to grow fescue and white clover, but it certainly has paid off for us in cattle feed," says Paul Starr, Sr.

GRAZING TO SPARE—Pasture scenes like this (upper picture) were hard to find last November and December. The fine mixture of Kentucky 31 fescue and white Dutch clover is on the farm of Paul Starr and his son, Paul, Jr., near Camden in Wilcox County. Their 20-acre pasture furnished grazing for 110 head of cattle from July to September. After fertilization the cows were turned on again in December. Assistant County Agent Frank Barnett (left) tells Paul Starr (right) and his son that controlled grazing and heavy applications of fertilizer are responsible for the good growth.

NO FEEDING PROBLEMS—It isn't hard to get cattle to eat good green crops like this in December. Paul Starr (right) and his son, Paul, Jr., say their cows are doing fine on this Kentucky 31 fescue and white Dutch clover. They now have about 70 acres of these crops on their farm to provide winter grazing for their cattle.

For Better Potato Plants

There is every indication that sweetpotato seed and plants will be scarce and high in price this spring. Farmers who expect to plant this crop should make arrangements to secure seed or plants as early as possible. The safest plan is to secure seed and produce plants so they will be available when needed. Only certified seed can legally be sold in Alabama now, but it is also important to know that the seed potatoes have good external and internal color. The plant bed should be prepared well in advance. Either thoroughly clean and treat the bed with formaldehyde (1 pint to 6 gallons of water) or copper sulphate (1 pound to 5 gallons of water) or build a new bed. Get clean topsoil where potatoes have not been grown or old sawdust to cover the potatoes. Cover with some type of cheap, close woven cotton cloth. This will save fuel, help maintain a more even temperature and protect the plants from late frosts and cold spring rains, and result in earlier, more uniform plants.

Pen Feathers

by John Weeks

WITHIN the next few months Alabama poultrymen will start about half a million pullets of meat production strains. These will produce hatching eggs to supply chicks for our rapidly expanding broiler business.

All popular broiler strains of chickens are large, thus the amount of feed needed to grow them to laying age is greater than that required by smaller breeds.

The birds mature at a very early age and lay several eggs too small for use by hatcherymen. During the last few years, some breeders have come out with a plan that is supposed to solve this problem. They say limit the amount of feed given the bird or increase the amount of fiber in the feed to a very high level. This will delay egg production, thereby reducing the number of small eggs.

However, most authorities believe such a program does not work to the advantage of the flock owner. They say the best idea is to raise pullets on a full feeding program. In other words, keep a good ration before pullets at all times. The experts say the reason for ever restricting the feed of pullets is to get them to eat more of a good grazing crop. Research of many years had proved this.

The breeders recommending a feeding system say the broiler type birds are new and the present research does not apply to them. However, some good research along this line has been going on for some time now. And here are some of the statements from those who have the facts on the work which has been conducted.

Here is what J. H. Quisenberry, Head of the Poultry Department, College Station, Texas, has to say: "All of our work for the past five years indicates that it pays to develop the pullets in such a way as to attain good body size and weight by the time they come into production.

"We carry our birds on a full-feeding program using a high efficiency type ration well fortified with vitamins, minerals, and proteins. We have attempted to take our flock replacement birds from the brooder house at eight to ten weeks of age, place them in range shelters regardless of the time of year and grow them out there, continuing our full-feeding program until they come into production. We have noted no ill effect from the program and definitely believe that cost of producing the pullets is no more and perhaps less than a restricted feeding program. In addition, we get approximately two to four weeks of egg production that the slower rate of maturity does not permit."

W. E. Newlon, Extension Poultryman, University of California, says: "We have tended to shy away from the practice of restricted feeding of pullets, which seems to have considerable popular appeal in some sections of this country. Our records seem to indicate that the grower is likely to make more money if he feeds birds generously and allows them to come into production just as soon as possible. The figures would seem to indicate that they will begin to lay large eggs just as soon, or at just as early an age as these same birds would have laid had they been 'held back' by a system of restricted feeding. It would appear, therefore, that all of the small eggs laid by the birds raised on full feeding schedule constitute just so much increased returns to the grower. He will actually get suitable hatching eggs of a proper size just as soon, in our opinion at least, as he would by any other method of feeding."

There is no guesswork about the profits when you keep a good set of books. This is why the Chastains are sure they have never lost money on a single brood of chicks during the 10 years they have been in the poultry business. Hugh Chastain, holding his grandson, Michael, shows his son, John, how much money was made on the last brood of broilers sold.

The Chastains see to it that rats do not cheat them out of their hard earned cash by eating and wasting their broiler feed. Here Hugh Chastain examines a rat poisoning station to make sure it has the warfarin and corn meal bait. The station is made by leaning a board up edgeways against the wall, thus leaving a space behind the board for the bait.

Another sure way to keep from wasting feed is to fill the troughs only half full. A coal scuttle makes an ideal feed bucket to use in filling the feeders.

For Extra Money Handle Livestock with Care

MEAT losses due to animal parasites and to improper handling of livestock being shipped from U. S. farms amount to $800 million a year.

Handling losses alone would fill 4,700 freight cars with beef cattle, hogs, and sheep —enough to feed a city the size of Birmingham for an entire year.

Bob Farquhar, API Extension assistant livestockman, says carelessness and neglect are the big reasons for the loss.

"This problem must be attacked by the full industry—the producer, trucker, railroad worker, stockyard employee, marketing agent, and the meat packer," said Farquhar. "The job of reducing parasite damage lies squarely on the farmer, but the shipping losses must be stopped by all in the industry."

Some of the ways for Alabama farmers to reduce these losses are:

1. Treat animals for internal and external parasites.
2. Do not kick animals or otherwise handle them roughly.
3. Have adequate facilities for handling and loading livestock on the farm.
4. Inspect lots, loading ramps, and passageways for loose nails, broken boards, and other danger spots.

Livestock haulers, said Farquhar, should consider these points:

1. Partition off various classes and sizes of livestock in their trucks.
2. Use flaps for loading, rather than sticks and clubs.
3. Avoid the crowding of livestock into trucks.
4. Drive carefully and avoid sudden starts and stops.

Market operators and handlers should:

1. Not use clubs and sticks on livestock nor allow spectators to do so.
2. Eliminate sharp corners and obstructions in passageways of yards.
3. Use non-skid floors in yards.

Never Lost Money On A Brood

On the Beam in the Broiler Business

TEN profitable years in the broiler business is something to be proud of but nothing to brag about.

That's how the Hugh Chastains of Billingsley, Rt. 1, feel about what they have accomplished on their Autauga County farm. They credit the success to a love for the business, understanding their chicks, and 10 good management practices.

Their chicken business was started in a small way back in 1941 by Mrs. Chastain and her son, John. They did so well that Mr. Chastain decided to quit his sawmill job and join them in the broiler project. The business grew steadily until today the Chastains can handle 11,000 chicks at a time.

And since the beginning more than 10 years ago, the family has raised over a half million broilers without losing money on a single brood. More evidence of a good job is the fact that even when birds were bringing only 22 cents a pound, there was some profit left for the Chastains.

Only once did they lose more than the extra chicks given by the hatchery. A bad batch of feed accounted for that.

Not a single time has a brood of Chastain's broilers had a serious disease outbreak. And for this reason, very little money has been spent on medicine. However, a medicated mash is fed to keep down coccidiosis.

Mr. Chastain says these 10 rules have helped his family—and will help other growers—succeed in the broiler business.

1. Buy good chicks as close to home as possible.
2. Put the chicks around comfortable brooders as soon as they arrive. Have plenty of good fresh feed and water available.
3. Watch the chicks closely when they are put around the brooders to see that they start eating and drinking.
4. Have plenty of room for the chicks, and see that the brooder is kept at the proper temperature.
5. Keep the mortality low.
6. Provide good, comfortable quarters and equipment, but keep overhead production costs low.
7. Read good poultry literature and study your business to make changes when and where needed.
8. Prevent feed waste. This can be done by controlling rats, feeding granular mash, and filling the feeders only half full.
9. Follow a good sanitation program to keep disease out of your flock.
10. Keep good records and maintain a good business relationship with customers and feed dealers.

CONGRATULATIONS FOR CITIZENS OF COTTONTON—Community improvement paid off in cash, too, for Cottonton when it was selected third place winner in the Chattahoochee Valley community improvement contest. Sponsored by the Farmers' Club of the Columbus, Ga., Chamber of Commerce, this program seeks to encourage communities to improve their schools, churches, farms, and homes. Seven Alabama counties took part in the contest. At a banquet in Columbus given for the winning community of each county in the contest, Mrs. Hugh Kite, president of the Cottonton Club, receives a prize of $275 from P. M. Strickland, chairman of the Chattahoochee Valley Farmers' Club. Looking on are P. O. Davis, director of API Extension Service (right) and George Sargent, Extension specialist in community improvement. Cottonton is in Russell County.

TOP OF THE DAIRY BUSINESS—This new grade A dairy barn is evidence of five successful years in the milk business for Robert Newman (left), who farms near Huntsville. He started his business in 1947 with 200 acres of leased land—now Robert owns a farm and 60 head of registered Jerseys. Here he points out to Assistant County Agent R. O. Magnusson a well constructed barn and plenty of storage space.

THEY'LL MOVE IN SOON—Within a short time Madison County will have another grade A barn to its credit. Robert Newman, Huntsville, points with pride to the almost completed eight-unit structure on his farm. The Jersey cows milked here will furnish a major part of Newman's income. Also shown in the picture inspecting the barn is Assistant County Agent R. O. Magnusson.

Suggestions On Growing Sericea

By J. C. LOWERY
Extension Service Agronomist

WOULD you like to plant some sericea as insurance against a feed shortage during dry seasons? It paid big dividends to many farmers during the past two years.

Here are some good suggestions on how to make sericea grow.

Kind of Soils. Sericea does well on most any soil, other than lime soils of the Black Belt, or wet swampy land. Some farmers have difficulty holding stands on deep, coarse sands.

When to Plant. Plant in spring as soon as danger of freezing is past. However, if spring seeding cannot be done, fallow land in May and June and seed during the last of June or first of July.

Soil Preparation. Make a well-settled firm seed bed. Seeding on fresh prepared, loose soil usually results in poor stands.

How to Fertilize. At planting time apply 1000 pounds of basic slag and 100 pounds of muriate of potash per acre, or, apply one ton of lime and 500 to 600 pounds of 0-16-8 per acre, or, apply one ton of lime and 300 to 400 pounds of superphosphate and 100 pounds of muriate of potash per acre.

To maintain the sericea on land where lime was applied at planting time, apply in February or March one of the following: (1) 500 pounds of 0-16-8 per acre or (2) 300 to 400 pounds of superphosphate and 100 pounds of muriate of potash. If slag was used instead of lime at planting time, apply 500 to 600 pounds of 0-16-8 or its equivalent the next year. Then alternate applications of 1,000 pounds of basic slag and 100 pounds of muriate of potash with 500 to 600 pounds of 0-16-8 every year. Be sure to fertilize established sericea every year.

At Seeding Time. Freshen seed bed very lightly with harrow or weeder. Cross-sow 30 pounds of freshly scarified seed per acre. Cover seed with cultipacker or some type of roller. Do not cover sericea seed deeply.

Know Your Dairy Cattle

Records Help Tell When To Breed

AT what time during the heat period should my dairy cows be bred? How long should I wait after calving before breeding again?

According to Pete Turnham, A.P.I. assistant Extension dairyman, the correct answers to these two questions are very important to you. And they may mean the difference between a profit or loss from your dairy animals.

Turnham says that Alabama dairymen who are members of artificial breeding associations report they are getting best results when cows are bred toward the end of standing heat. However, good results have also been obtained when cows were bred for several hours after standing heat.

True heat varies among individual cows from two to 18 hours. This is where a barn record will be useful. If heat periods are recorded, you will know just when to watch individual cows for signs of heat.

A bloody discharge which usually occurs about 18 to 24 hours after heat is a normal function and does not mean the cow has failed to settle.

The specialist pointed out that after a cow drops a calf, it is best to wait at least 60 days before breeding her again. This waiting period is necessary because of the abnormal conditions of her reproductive organs. They are enlarged and must pass off fluid before they can develop another calf. The cells lining the uterus must also go through various changes.

These processes take time, and any abnormal discharge between calving and breeding time usually indicates the presence of infection. If this is noticed, the cow should be treated by a competent veterinarian.

Some symptoms of heat are:

1. Cow is nervous and bawls frequently.
2. She rides other cows.
3. May hold up her milk.
4. Stands for other cows to ride.

These good breeding practices are simple, but they can easily mean the difference between success and failure.

FROM HAY TO BEEF—Plenty of Bullock County farmers are converting hay into choice steaks these days. Ray Graham of Union Springs, who has been in this profitable business for years, doesn't seem to be too worried about the feed situation for this winter. He has enough Johnson grass hay from his 350-acre farm to furnish plenty roughage for his 175 Hereford cattle.

Plan now to beat the 1953 fall price decline which always occurs in the hog market. Top out the spring litters, making them ready for market from July through October, by feeding and pushing the pigs to market weight by the time they are six months old. This can be accomplished by making full use of early hybrid corn, good green grazing, and supplement, and by practicing good management methods, including parasite and disease control.

This is a good month to set kudzu crowns or seedlings. Most farmers have some land which should be set to kudzu. Ask your county agent for information on where to get crowns or seedlings and how to fertilize, plant, and manage this crop.

Appetizer For Left-Over Vegetable Dishes

A custom growing more popular with homemakers is that of cooking dinner and supper at the same time.

Since winter is the most popular season for this time-saver, often one hot dish needs to be added at supper to make the left-over vegetables satisfy the family. And there's where a tasty cheese dish is just what's needed. It's a good meat substitute, has a satisfying flavor and contains lots of good food value.

Treat the family with this tasty cheese puff dish. They'll get milk and egg, too—almost without knowing it.

CHEESE PUFF

8 slices bread	2 c. milk
½ lb. cheese, grated (2 cups)	pepper, paprika, mustard, if desired
3 eggs	½ t. salt

Fit four bread slices into the bottom of a greased baking dish. Sprinkle with half the cheese and cover with remaining bread. Beat eggs, add milk and seasonings, pour over the bread-and-cheese mixture, and cover with remaining cheese. Set baking dish in a pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven for about 40 minutes, or until the custard is set and the bread puffs up.

FIRST 4-H HIGHWAY MARKER IS UP—There will be 451 of these highway markers erected on improved roads leading into Alabama and on all county lines of the state. Looking at the first sign are, left to right, Hanchey Logue of Auburn, A.P.I. Extension state 4-H leader; Ed Young of Snowdoun, president of the Alabama Council of 4-H Clubs; and Harry S. Gilmore, Jr., of Montgomery, chairman of the agricultural committee of the Alabama Bankers Association. Bankers over the state have contributed $2,200 for the purchase of the markers. The sign above is to be placed on roads leading into Alabama; county line signs within the state will substitute the name of county being entered for the word Alabama.

Alabama 4-H'ers Get $2,200 Worth Of Signs

THE first of 451 new 4-H Club county and state line highway markers has been erected in Montgomery County.

And during the next few weeks the others are to be placed on every improved road leading into all counties in Alabama.

The sign project is being sponsored by the agricultural committee of the Alabama Bankers Association and The Alabama Extension Service. Every bank in the state is contributing to the purchase of the three by four-foot markers that honor farm youngsters by carrying the words "4-H Clubs Welcome You" and featuring the organization's symbolic four-leaf clover.

Harry S. Gilmore, Jr., of Montgomery, chairman of the bankers' state agricultural committee, said that banks over the state have contributed $2,200 for the signs. "We feel this project gives deserved credit to an organization that is doing so much to improve our counties—the 4-H Club," said Gilmore, who is assistant vice president of the First National Bank of Montgomery.

Hanchey Logue, A.P.I. Extension state 4-H Club leader, who worked with Gilmore on the marker project, expressed the appreciation of 4-H'ers for the honor paid them.

In Montgomery County the nine highway markers were paid for by the Alabama National Bank, the First National Bank, and the Union Bank and Trust Co.

In addition to Gilmore, those on the agricultural committee are W. J. Alverson, Albertville; C. T. Bailey, Athens; Roy Downs, Calera; M. W. Espy, Headland; J. M. Gilmer, Marion Junction; S. W. Harper, Demopolis; Kelley Kirby, Sylacauga; Albert Nettles, Beatrice; Walter Oakley, Jr., Columbia; and L. N. Flippo, Red Bay.

Expert Says

Be Well Fed -- Grow Year Around Garden In 1953

By JOHN BAGBY
A.P.I. Extension Horticulturist

TAKE a good look at what the experts say and then it won't be hard to see why you will need a good garden in 1953.

Each member of your family will eat an average of 380 pounds of fresh vegetables this year, say the folks who study such things. In addition, each will also eat 44 pounds of canned and frozen vegetables. All of this food must come either from the home garden or the grocery store.

One important point in favor of getting most or all of your vegetables from the home garden is the amount of money it will save. It would be difficult to estimate how much the 420 pounds of vegetables needed by each person would cost at the retail grocer's. But certainly it would be several hundred dollars. Then, of course, home grown vegetables are much more delicious and nutritious than those shipped in from other sections.

To have a year-round garden, you'll have to do a lot of planning and hard work. Rather than stopping when the spring chores are done, you must continue to make the plantings throughout the year. A good plan is to make a rough drawing of the garden. Show a certain number of feet to be planted to each crop. Then allow for later plantings of vegetables that grow well on through the summer. Some late plantings may also follow early crops such as English peas, turnip greens, and early beans.

When possible, change the location of the garden every few years. Continuous planting of the same crops build up nematodes, plant diseases, and other pests. If you can't switch your garden to another spot, shift the various crops around in the garden every year.

Any organic material increases vegetable yields, but stable and chicken manure are best. Artificial compost, green manure crops, and other types of plant material will help. These need to be turned under as early as possible so they will begin to rot before planting time.

Mulching with pine straw, oat straw, peanut hulls, leaves or sawdust will help hold moisture in the soil, keep down grass and weeds, and add organic matter.

Most vegetables need high rates of fertilizer—about 1500 pounds per acre for beans, corn, and tomatoes, and 2,000 pounds on Irish potatoes are recommended. The fertilizer should be applied in two or more applications, one-half before planting and the rest when the plants are up and growing well. Extra nitrogen applied as a side dressing will help keep the plants in a thrifty growing condition while they are making a crop.

Other practices that will help you have a good garden are thorough preparation of land before planting, using varieties best suited to the area, planting at the right time, cultivating to keep down grass and weeds, controlling insects and diseases, and irrigating.

* * *

Terraces should be plowed out and weak places fixed before preparing land for spring planting. Plan to establish meadows to take care of run-off water from every terrace.

* * *

The 4-H soil conservation project offers a splendid opportunity for giving farm youth some valuable training and experience in improving and making better use of all soil and water resources.

* * *

Now is a good time to make plans for using a two-year rotation of cotton, winter legumes, and corn. This two-year rotation would be a very good 4-H Club project.

In a few weeks it will be time to plant early hybrid corns for hogging the first of the summer. See your county agent for recommended hybrid varieties for your section and plan to plant the needed acreage as soon as danger of frost has passed. Plant only enough of the early hybrids to carry the shotes for three to four weeks. By that time the regular hybrid corn crop, planted at the regular corn planting time, will be ready for finishing the shotes to top hogs.

* * *

Obtain chicks and place them in the brooder house during February if they have not been started already. This is the last call for early-hatched chicks—chicks that will come into production in July and produce eggs during the months when egg prices are highest.

* * *

For best results plant truck crops on fertile land containing a fairly large amount of organic material. The investment necessary for the production of vegetable crops is usually high; therefore, unless a reasonably good yield is made there is not much chance of making a profit. Another important factor is that good land usually produces larger size and better quality vegetables which bring a higher market price. The high cost of labor and other production items make it more important than ever to produce good yields of high quality products.

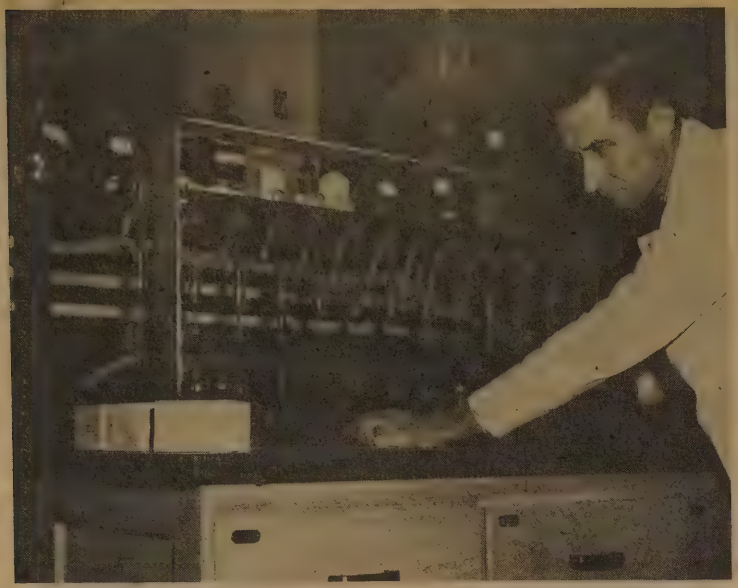
Old stands of lespedeza sericea should be re-fertilized before spring growth starts. Ask your county agent for a copy of the latest sericea circular.



In the new soil testing laboratory at Auburn, which is ready to test soil samples for farmers over the state, is Dr. Clarence M. Wilson, who will be in charge of the work. He is operating a battery of automatic pipettes used to add an extracting solution to the soil samples.

Soil Testing Made Available To Farmers

SOIL testing became available to Alabama farmers February 1.

Through this new soil testing program launched by the Agronomy and Soils Department of the API Agricultural Experiment Station in cooperation with the Extension Service, fertilizer needs for a crop to be grown on a particular field can be more accurately determined.

The educational phase of the program is being handled by county agents under the supervision of Extension agronomists J. C. Lowery and D. R. Harbor. Thus, before soil samples are taken, the farmer should contact his county agent for instructions. The agent will supply the necessary sample cartons and shipping containers along with a form on which the farmer gives information as to cropping history and other factors. A fee of $1 is charged for each sample.

After soil samples have been taken, farmers should take them by the county agent's office for assistance in completing the information sheet. The farmer then mails the samples to the Soil Testing Laboratory for analysis. After the samples are analyzed for calcium, phosphorus, and potassium, and checked for acidity, results of the test along with fertilizer recommendations are reported to the farmer by the Soils Testing Laboratory. A copy of the results is sent to the county agent.

Clarence M. Wilson, associate soil chemist of the Experiment Station, is in charge of the Soil Testing Laboratory.

Research Results

SEED-BORNE DISEASES OF FIELD CROPS can be controlled by planting seed treated with a chemical seed protectant. Evidence obtained in field tests shows that it pays to plant treated seed of crops like corn, cotton, and peanuts. In addition, seed treatments protect the seeds and seedlings from soil-borne diseases like seed-rot, seedling blight, and damping off.

SWEETPOTATO VARIETY TESTS at Ashford, Cullman, and Auburn show that L-240 and Goldrush varieties produced yields as good as Porto Rico. At Auburn 9.8 per cent of the Porto Rico plants were affected by stem rot as compared with 2.6 per cent for L-240, and 0.0 per cent for Goldrush. These two varieties were also more resistant to soil rots and growth cracks than Porto Rico.

MORE ALABAMA FARMERS SELL CATTLE THAN HOGS, but the number of hogs sold is more than twice the number of cattle sold. About the same number of farmers buy cattle and hogs and the number of animals bought is not greatly different.

ADEQUATE POTASH APPLIED TO HAY AND GRAZING CROPS is reflected for several years in high yields of cotton following these crops. Recent studies have shown that where annual applications of 400 pounds of muriate of potash were made to alfalfa, or 200 pounds of muriate to sericea, the cotton yields were higher with normal fertilization —even after several years—than could be obtained with high rates of potash applied directly to the cotton following alfalfa or sericea that received one-half the above rates.

CABBAGE, LETTUCE, AND ONION SEEDS that were planted in cold frames in December and were kept covered to prevent killing during very cold periods, will provide plants ready for transplanting by February 15. When these are transplanted at this time the cabbage and lettuce will attain heading age when the weather is most favorable for the production of good heads, and the onions will mature before the weather is too hot for best bulb development.

A RECENT SURVEY OF PECAN ORCHARDS in central and southern Alabama shows that a number of growers corrected pecan rosette in their orchards by applications of zinc sulfate. These growers applied 10 pounds of zinc sulfate per tree during the spring for two successive years. Rosette was also corrected in orchards where zinc sulfate (2 pounds per 100 gallons) was used in the bordeaux spray and applied four times each of two successive years.

LONGLEAF PINE can be planted under scrub hardwoods successfully provided the hardwoods are removed one or even two years after planting. Experimentally, such plantings resulted in good stands. However, where removal of hardwoods was delayed, mortality of longleaf pine was excessive.

Too much cannot be said for the work of Miss Helen Parrish in the recent campaign for the March of Dimes. We'll put Helen at the top of the list when it comes to getting things done. She worked night and day on the Dime's March and she certainly was a great help to the Chairman and his committee.

In the annual Burlington Liars Contest, an Air Force man recently won first place with the following story: "One night last July when I had turned out the lights for the night, I heard the door open. At first I thought it was one of the boys who slept in the room with me. When I got a better look, I saw two mosquitoes. They stood nearly six feet tall, and believe me, I was too terrified to move so I just lay there as they approached the bed. Suddenly I heard one of them say, 'Do you think we should eat him here or should we carry him home?' After a moment's consideration the other one said, 'Let's eat him here. You know very well if we take him home the big mosquitoes will take him away from us.' "

When we answered that we were not a county official and were ineligible, he said that we were mighty lucky then we hadn't been branded a criminal yet.

Chilton C of C Will Sponsor County's Annual Peach Festival

Although it has not as yet been ascertained whether or not Chilton County will have a Peach Festival for 1953, the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce has gone on record as again being the sponsoring agent if it is decided that the biggest even of the season will be conducted this year.

This move was decided upon at the regular monthly meeting of the Chamber conducted last Monday noon at the Dixie Cafe in Clanton.

At the same time the Chamber voted to adopt other recommendations of the Agricultural Committee of that organization, which include the continued support of the Grade "B" milk program, expand the publicity program to include many other farm products, underwrite the annual hog show and to support the Chilton County Fruit and Truck Growers Association of Thorsby. The agricultural committee is headed by M. R. Glasscock, County Agent.

F. Leo Thompson made an encouraging report for the Industrial Committee and urged that everyone lend their cooperation to the efforts of that committee. In response R. C. Williams, a member of the Clanton City Council, reported that the city officials would respond at any time they were called upon.

Following the showing of a promotion film for the state of Georgia, the Chamber voted to underwrite $1000 as the County's share of the same type film now being made for the state of Alabama under the direction of The State Planning Board.

Supervision of the making of the film in this area will be handled by Joe Jackson as head of the publicity committee as well as the heads of all other committees of the Chamber. The next regular meeting of the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce will be conducted the first Monday in March.

County Governing Body To Get New Courthouse Question Next Monday

The question as to whether Chilton County will get a new courthouse and jail will come before the members of the County Board of Revenue and Control at their regular meeting next Monday morning.

Members of the Board spent one day last week visiting Fort Payne, Alabama, and inspecting their courthouse which is comparatively new and came back with much enthusiasm for a new one for Chilton County.

Chances are that when, and if, a new courthouse is constructed it will be built on the county property where the jail now stands. The present building then could be used until completion of the new structure.

Just what measures the Board will take next Monday cannot be known, but it is reported that all members are thinking favorably of the new venture.

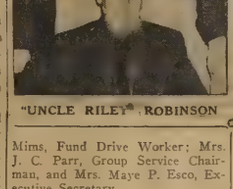
"Uncle Riley" Robinson To Celebrate 102nd Birthday At Home Next Sunday



"UNCLE RILEY" ROBINSON

Folks from all over Central Alabama will pay homage to Chilton County's oldest living resident this Sunday as Uncle Riley Robinson celebrates his 102 birthday.

People from every walk of life will gather at Uncle Riley's home in Beat 16 near Providence during the day Sunday to wish him well and to shower congratulations on the man, who attributes his long life and good health to "moderation in all things."

Although Uncle Riley's birthday is not actually until Wednesday, February 11, his big day probably will start when he goes to church at Providence, where he has been accorded the distinction of being a life-long superintendent of the Providence Sunday School, for Uncle Riley is a devout Christian and a consistant church attendant.

Uncle Riley was born February 11, 1851, and has been residing in the same house for the past 69 years. Mr. Robinson is one of the very few men in Alabama who have passed their 100th milestone.

At last year's celebration over 100 people attended the 101st birthday including six living children and over a score of grand children on down through the 5th generation.

Plans are being made this year for as many if not more to attend the celebration.

Just listen to a man talk about himself and he will either fool you or you will fool him.

Office-holders will always play politics, but that does not mean that the voter has to be a sucker.

The acid test of friendship is applied when a man seeks to borrow a hundred dollars without security.

There are no master-minds and no super-men; if you think otherwise, somebody has you fooled.

The idea that all marriages are made in Heaven places an undue responsibility upon the celestial regions.

We seem to be unable to convince ourselves that every issue is as important as some people think it is.

Education is a tremendous incentive toward better living, but there is need for better education, as well.

We have an idea that price controls limited profits which seems to explain why the cost of living continues to rise.

A DOG POISONER?

Reports come to us that four dogs have died from poison in South Clanton within the past few days. That does indicate that the lowest form of human being is waging a fight against the dogs in that section.

We are not especially a dog lover, and are at times, troubled by stray dogs and neighbor dogs, but such a thing as destroying a neighbor's pet or a child's playmate, is a thing too low to contemplate.

At one time or another we all are vexed with dogs, yes, even those who are considered true dog lovers, but if it is possible for the law to find out who has killed the pets of those residents of South Clanton, they should be dealt with according to the law. Surely now, you wouldn't break a child's heart just to get even with a dog?

COUNTY OWES THEM DEBT

The County of Chilton owes Rev. Fred Lowery and his fine staff a vote of gratitude and thanks for the job they have done in the March of Dimes Drive.

Of course, so many took part in this wonderful work that we cannot possibly name them all, but let it be recorded that all did their part well and the sum-total was very pleasing to the Chairman and Committee.

Rev. Marvin Vickers who acted as Clanton Chairman and Assistant; Mrs. Russell Williams, who acted as Chairman of the Mothers March for the County, and Mrs. R. C. Williams, who acted as Clanton Chairman, all worked long and tirelessly at their task.

A full report is in today's Chilton County News and the News congratulates the Rev. Lowery and his staff on a job well done.

Court Juries Only Answer To Unfair Traffic Law Enforcement

Citizens of Huntsville and Madison County were told today by their County's Legislative Delegation and W. Bancroft Timmons, Manager of the Alabama Motorists Association, AAA, that their county court juries were the only answer to their problem of trying to end the unfair traffic law enforcement procedures now being used in Madison County by the Alabama Highway Patrol, and the legislative group that their fellow citizens would serve on juries and "Take Charge."

"Tourists traveling through Huntsville are being treated like common criminals," stated Senator Joe Foster. Other members of the County Delegation, Luke Reynolds and Bob Eslick also said that they had been swarmed with similar complaints.

Timmons, professional tourist booster for Alabama, was requested to survey the bad situation in detail and he reported to the Delegation that the complaints were justified, moreover, his files were also full of complaints. After spending Wednesday afternoon surveying the driving practices of tourists and the law enforcement acts against them, he reported that most of the arrests that were being made against the tourists who were traveling in a good car and on an excellent modern road — U. S. 231, south of Huntsville — a road that should permit a higher speed than the average out-dated and congested Alabama highway; however, he reported his files showed that complaints were being made by motorists who were arrested when traveling below the posted speed limits. They also contended that their regular surety bonds to guarantee their court of appearance were being rejected.

The entire delegation of the County and Timmons agreed that there was only one course open when a motorist was unjustly arrested, i.e., appeal the case from the Justice of the Peace Court and go direct to a County Court where a jury could hear the evidence, thereby protecting themselves.

Senator Foster further stated, "I am terribly disappointed that our state is doing the same thing to tourists that the Constables have been doing in Georgia for many years. Now that the tourists are leaving Georgia and coming through Alabama, we should be guarding against a "Soak-the-stranger" policy.

"Local Government," said Timmons, "is still supreme in this State and in this Country and if the Montgomery "big-wigs" of the Highway Patrol want to adopt the policy for money raising purposes, it still does not have to be accepted by the citizens of any County. I am against the present system whereby the Highway Patrol gets the money collected on traffic fines."

The County Delegation further expressed a unified sentiment by a statement through Representative Bob Eslick when he said, "If the Highway Patrol is going to be financed on a fee grabbing basis, I see no reason for additional appropriations for the Department at the 1953 Legislature Session. In addition, our Delegation will strive to change the system whereby our Highway Patrol gets the fines collected. We will try to divert these fines to the County Government in which the arrest was made thereby removing the pressure of the patrolman to make a certain number of arrests, or to meet his 'arrest quota' in each district."

My Pet Peeve

I LIKE television and so do the kids around the house. But I'm not so certain about this new vocabulary it is giving to youngsters.

In my day is was radio and horse operas. Now the vogue of "space operas" is giving the oldtime westerners a run for their money.

This new vocabulary of space cadets and adventurers sometimes startles me, especially when one of the boys is the source.

For instance, I told one of them the other day, "You are doing very well in school this year."

"Sure," says he, "I'm rocketing on all jets."

"Huh?" says I.

Then the other one pipes up, "He's full of space gas, Pop."

"Plug your jets," the first screams.

"Wait a minute, boys," says I. "Explain all this."

At length and impatiently they explained: 'Plug your jets' means stop talking or boasting, 'full of space gas' means he is mistaken.

"How do you say go away in television conversation?" I asked.

"Blast off," they said, "how else?"

"O. K.," says I. "BLAST OFF!"

A Peek at THE STARS

By LYN CONNELLY

COLUMBIA Records began 1952 with one 2,000,000 sales record, Johnnie Ray's "Cry," and closed with another, 12-year-old Jimmy Boyd's "I Saw Mommy Kissing Santa Claus," establishing both singers as stellar entertainment personalities . . . Johnnie Ray's first album also topped the 100,000 sales mark to become Columbia's top set of the year, and his recording of "Please, Mr. Sun," was the company's fourth best-selling single disc.

1952 was a year of double-header hits for singing stars Jo Stafford and Rosemary Clooney . . . Miss Clooney's recording of "Half As Much" was No. 3 on Columbia's best-seller list and "Botch-A-Me" was No. 7 . . . Jo Stafford's "You Belong to Me" and "Jambalaya" were Nos. 5 and 6 respectively . . . Jo has started 1953 with a bang with her sensational recording of "Keep It a Secret" . . . Frankie Laine's "High Noon" was No. 8, Arthur Godfrey's "Dance Me Loose" was No. 9 . . . Doris Day's "A Guy Is a Guy" was No. 10, while a collection of songs from her film, "I'll See You in My Dreams," was Columbia's second best-selling album of the year.

The jazz record renaissance, initiated in 1950 with Columbia's release of the Benny Goodman 1938 Carnegie Hall Jazz Concert, was further stimulated in 1952 with a second Goodman anthology of 1937-38 performances which had become the nation's best-selling album by the end of the year . . . Gene Autry and Rosemary Clooney were the top children's recording artists of the year, each with a string of 1952 successes added to their perennial best-sellers and a hit duo disking of "The Night Before Christmas."

A quartet of young singers dominated Columbia's folk music best-seller lists during 1952 . . . Carl Smith had four hit records and close behind was Lefty Frizzell with two.

● The big news story for the next few weeks, now that the inauguration is over, is the battle developing in congress to cut ex-President Truman's $78,587,000,000 budget.

A cut is a certainty since President Eisenhower is under firm campaign pledges to cut taxes and to balance the budget as soon as possible. This brings up the two major problems facing congress: (1) Where can taxes be cut, and (2) where can the budget be sliced?

As for the first, the new administration is doing everything in its power to keep from giving the taxpayer any hope of a cut this year.

And for the second, there are a number of major problems:

(1) Of the total budget, 73 cents of every dollar would go for national-security programs—military services, foreign aid, and foreign relations, atomic energy, promoting defense production and economic stability, civil defense, and the merchant marine. The total amount is $57,300,000,000. The problem is just how much can the new administration trim from this without jeopardizing the national security?

Of this total for national-security, $7.9 billion is earmarked for foreign programs. This is the item that may get one of the greatest cuts. Last year congress cut it $1.9 billion.

(2) Another section of the proposed budget calls for the expenditure of $4.6 billion for veterans' benefits. This item is considered untouchable politically. Little, if any, cut is expected here.

(3) One of the big items, other than price supports on farm products, would be $250,000,000 for an agricultural conservation program under which payments are made to farmers for carrying out approved soil conservation practices. Here a cut may be made since some farm groups are reported willing to take less for this activity.

(4) Some $10 billion is earmarked for all other government activities. There is not much to cut from this item.

Since the federal government's income for the next fiscal year is estimated at approximately $60 billion, then to balance the budget about $10 billion must be cut. It becomes obvious, then, that any important cuts must come from the $57 billion marked for national security, a little can be saved from the $10 billion earmarked for other government activities.

Besides cutting foreign aid, eliminating waste and duplication in the Defense Department is one of the most popular solutions proposed. Many believe that the new President, with his military background, will find a way of trimming the fat from the military budget.

● Here are a few facts concerning taxation:

(1) Federal taxes rose to an all-time high after the defense program was stepped up. Since 1950 taxes have practically doubled on individuals and corporations.

(2) Under the present system, individuals contribute 41 cents of the government's budget dollar and corporations pay 29 cents. Customs, etc., contribute 5 cents, excise taxes 12 cents and 13 cents is borrowed.

International Introduces New R-Line Trucks To Chilton County

A completely new line of International trucks, with 168 basic chassis models in 296 wheelbases, was introduced today in Chilton County area, it was announced by Russell Shelton, International truck dealer for Chilton County.

"The International R-line, most complete line of trucks in the world, consists of light, medium and heavy-duty motor trucks whose gross vehicle weight ratings range from 4,200 to 90,000 pounds," Mr. Shelton said. "Gasoline, liquefied petroleum gas or diesel engines are available."

The line, announced nationally by W. C. Schumacher, general manager of the motor truck division of International Harvester Company, Chicago, is being shown in International branch and dealer showrooms throughout the country.

"The R-line trucks offer 307 new features developed at our engineering and test laboratories at Fort Wayne, Ind., and proved at our Phoenix, Ariz., desert proving ground," Mr. Shelton said.

"Truck-to-job specialization is possible with the R-line to a degree never before achieved," Mr. Shelton said. "There are 29 engines—gasoline, LPG and diesel—whose horsepower ratings range from 100 to 356, and a wide selection of transmissions, auxiliary transmissions, axles and axle ratios. The many variations and options available make it possible for any truck operator to meet his job requirements precisely with a new R-line model."

Besides its Standard chassis models, the 168-model International truck line includes a number of chassis series specialized for truck operations. These include:

Loadstar models for hauling heavy, compact loads over rough terrain which subjects the truck to a high degree of twisting and shock.

Cab-Forward models for truck operations requiring the maximum in load-space and maneuverability. In this group are two new models, the RC-190 and RC-200, both equipped with a Tiltocab-type Comfo-Vision cab.

Highly-specialized Western-built extra-heavy-duty conventional and cab-over-engine chassis for extra-heavy service on or off the highway.

Specialized fire truck chassis models.

Besides conventional and Cab-Forward models, the International R-line offers a cab feature of recent development. The "102 Space Saver" attachment is a short bumper-to-back-of-cab dimension feature which is six inches less than the conventional. This permits truck operators to use 35-foot trailers in states restricting overall tractor-trailer lengths to 45 feet. It is available on International Roadliner and Loadstar models of various wheelbases.

Powering the new light, medium and heavy-duty models are seven International valve-in-head engines, ranging from 100 to 162 horsepower. All are built at International's Indianapolis, Ind., engine plant, the largest exclusive truck engine manufacturing facility in the world. Six of the International-built engines are available with gasoline or liquefied petroleum gas fuel system.

An all-new valve-in-head engine, the International Black Diamond 282, develops 130 horsepower at 3,400 revolutions per minute. Compression ratio is 6.5 to 1. It has a fine-grained chrome-alloy iron cylinder block, short-stroke crankshaft, self-cleaning slo-roto exhaust valves, thick-dome aluminum pistons with chromeplated top rings and U-flex oil rings, and visible-flow carburetion with fast-idle cam. It is available with gasoline or LPG fuel system.

Exterior styling has been redesigned. Front end sheet metal is more functional, permitting greater air intake for more efficient cooling. The interior of International's roomy Comfo-Vision cabs, deluxe, sleeper, Space-saver and Tiltocab-types, with new instrument cluster and ignition-key starter switch, is finished in beige and Tile Red. Green-tinted, non-glare safety glass is optional. New cab mountings provide a more stable ride.

News From Isabella

There was an average congregation at Mulberry Sunday for both services. Bro. Jones's messages were fine, especially Sunday when he preached on "The Cry of the Devil." The messages were taken from the 40th Psalm. We were favored with a special message in song by Randall Veasey.

Last Wednesday night we had an outstanding prayer service, led by Casey Cummings. Subject was, "Going the Second Mile." You missed a blessing when you miss prayer meeting.

The Spring revival will begin at Mulberry on Easter Sunday, April 5th, with Rev. Daniels of Thorsby as evangelist.

We are happy that we have a new electric stove for our church kitchen and a new gas heater for the basement. Also shrubbery for the front of the building. Many thanks to the W.M.U. of Mulberry and Mr. Carlos Williams of Clanton for these things.

The librarians are happy that more books are being checked out of the church library. You will want to read, "Mr. Jones, Meet the Master," "Boy of The Wilderness," "Sabbath or Sunday," and others from the library.

If you need to learn any new games for any social, get "Playtime" from the library. There are games in it for young and old.

"EASY DOES IT"

BY ..... HELEN HALE

THE AMOUNT you can save on your food budget depends a great deal on the wise use to which you put your leftovers. Try some of these worthwhile tips in your kitchen.

Drippings from ham, bacon and sausage should be kept refrigerated and used in place of other fats to saute white and sweet potatoes, eggplant and tomato slices. With them you can also fry apple rings, chicken, eggs, French toast and fish.

You'll like these pork drippings for seasoning green and lima bean dishes, dried bean and dried pea dishes, cooked greens and Spanish rice.

Promptly cover your leftover vegetables and use them cold as quickly as possible in tossed salad bowls, potato salad and cole slaw. Also add them to canned or home-made soups as flavor and garnish.

Vegetable leftovers can be extended with another vegetable to make another meal. Use peas with extra celery, green beans with carrots, green lima beans with corn and mashed potatoes mixed with a few mashed turnips.

A few tablespoons of cooked vegetables are easily used in sandwich fillings of eggs or meat or cheese. Cut-up vegetables can be added to macaroni and cheese, hash or scrambled eggs.

Outer leaves of salad greens are higher in vitamin and calcium content than the inner ones, though they may be less tender and crisp. Tear them into shreds and use in salad bowls.

Temple Church

We are again thanking the Lord for the services we had Sunday. The Lord met us in a wonderful way in our communion Sunday morning and then again in the Sunday evening service. We praise the Lord for the ones who were gloriously saved. The Lord is pouring out His blessings on us and we are thankful for it. The Bible tells us that in the last days God will do this, so it is just another sign that His Coming is near.

February 15th, which is National W.M.C. Day, the Rev. M. O. Bruce from Montgomery will be our guest speaker. In the morning service the W.M.C. will have charge of the devotional. Sunday night the YWC will have charge.

Will be looking for all our people in Sunday School and church next Sunday. May God bless you all. — Reporter.

Something For Nothing—

A smile costs nothing, but gives much. It enriches those who receive, without making poorer those who give. It takes but a moment but the memory of it sometimes lasts forever. None is so rich or mighty that he can get along without it and none is so poor but that he can be made rich by it. A smile creates happiness in the home, fosters goodwill in business, and is the countersign of friendship. It brings rest to the weary, cheer to the discouraged, sunshine to the sad, and it is nature's best antidote for trouble. It cannot be bought, begged, borrowed or stolen, for it is something that is of no value until it is given away. Some people are too tired to give a smile. Give them one of yours, as none needs a smile so much as he who has no more to give.—(Copied).

This is the time of the year when we all get the new car bug. In the advertisements the 1953 models look so pretty and so "advanced," that you begin to think, "Well, maybe I ought to trade in the old buggy." More and more people are buying cars every year. That is the reason for the parking problem in towns and the traffic problem on the roads. Everybody has an idea as to what should be done, but I heard one that is really a lulu. One man says build all cars two feet shorter, and a gosh-awful amount of street space would be saved.

He is on the wrong road for sure. The way to meet progress isn't to try to regulate it into reverse gear, but to figure out where it is going and provide for it.

More and more Americans are going to own cars, and it ought to be clear that they are going to be pretty swanky wagons in the future. The thing to do is not to try to go back to fewer and smaller cars, but to build bigger and better highways for the day when every family will be a two-car family. It may be sooner than we think.

Platoon Age Ends

Football next fall is going to take on a different look, all because the National Collegiate Athletic Association killed the two-platoon system substitution) which in turn killed football in some 50 small colleges. The new regulation will bring back the era of the all-around "iron man" offensive and defensive performer . . . Ed Price has been given a new five-year contract as head football coach at the University of Texas, the southwest Conference champions of 1952 . . . Maureen (Little Mo) Connolly, the world's best woman tennis player, was named "athlete of the year" for 1952, the second successive time . . . Leroy (Satchel) Paige signed his 1953 contract with the Browns for a reported $20,000. Paige is probably the oldest player in big-league baseball, no one knows for sure but he is somewhere between 45 and 50.

THORSBY NEWS

ESTELLE HAYES

Lutheran Church News—

The Service 11:00; Sunday School 10:00. Everybody welcome.

Many times the subject of tithing is brought up in discussion groups and Sunday School classes. Here are a few observations on that subject that I trust will be helpful.

First of all, the tithe itself is strictly an Old Testament regulation. Nowhere in the New Testament is it sanctioned as a rule for the church to follow such as the sacraments of Baptism and the Lord's Supper. Jesus spiritualized the law leaving major decisions up to the individual's conscience rather than giving a binding rule; this holds true with the tithe. At this point, read the account of the widow's mite found in Mark 12:41-44.

The New Testament regulation relative to giving is found in I Cor. 1:2, "lay by in store as God hath prospered you." No exact percentage is specified, that is up to you.

Personally I feel that every sincere, consecrated Christian will tithe, not because of a law demanding it, but that ten percent is little enough to give to the Lord Who has in turn given you so much. I tithe myself because I feel that no minister should ask his people to do something that he himself will not do. The question for you to answer, my Christian friend, is not whether you will give ten percent; but can you conscienciously give any less?

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

We're sure glad to be meeting Mrs. W. C. Nuss on the streets of Clanton again. Mr. and Mrs. Nuss, you know, have been "under the weather" for several weeks. Mr. Nuss isn't able to be out, yet, but he is up and about. Hope soon they will be together again in their business.

Hugh (Lallie) Bates and Janie Lou Wade Bates have a brand new baby boy this morning. Mother and baby are doing fine over at Central Alabama Hospital. "Old" Charlie Wade, the grandpa, is creeping about dreaming of a White Christmas, what with more, and more, grandchildren each year to help play Santa Claus to. The paternal grandpa, M. J. Bates, City Councilman, wasn't a bit excited when we saw him. Acted just like it had happened before in his family.

Sorry to learn that Mrs. W. M. Folk isn't doing so well at South Highland Hospital at Birmingham. Mr. W. M. is quite worried, but the prayers of many friends go with his each day for the recovery of his wife.

Reports from the Sheriff's Office and the Clanton Police Department was that we had a very quiet weekend. The County was free of any serious accidents and folks just weren't misbehaving.

A college professor, well known for his absent-mindedness, was gazing reflectively at the passing landscape when the train conductor stopped for his ticket. The professor searched himself frantically to no avail. "That's all right, professor," the conductor said. "I know you, and I'm sure you have your ticket. When you find it, just mail it to the company." "It isn't that," the professor said earnestly, "What I want to know is, where in the world am I going?"

Brotherhood Week Will Be Observed February 15-22

All over the nation, the slogan of "Brotherhood — For Peace and Freedom" will be heard from February 15-22, as special activities mark the 20th annual observance of Brotherhood Week, sponsored annually by the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Spurred on by proclamations from the governors of most states and by mayors of large and small cities, more than 7,000 American and Canadian communities will schedule programs dedicated to the ideal of the brotherhood of man under the Fatherhood of God.

President Eisenhower has agreed to lead the national observance as honorary chairman, continuing a precedent first established by Franklin D. Roosevelt and maintained by ex-President Truman.

Special religious services will be held all through the week by American churches and synagogues. In addition, appropriate events sponsored by civic bodies will give evidence of their desire to build better understanding and good will among Protestants, Catholics and Jews, according to Roger W. Straus, who is serving as general chairman of Brotherhood Week.

The week's observances will mark the 25th Anniversary of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, organized in 1928 "to promote justice, amity, understanding and cooperation" among the racial and religious groups on the American scene, said Mr. Straus, who is also serving as general chairman of the anniversary celebration.

Theme of the Silver Jubilee anniversary is "Twenty-five Years of Practical Achievement in Brotherhood," he added.

Mr. Straus hailed the progress made during the past twenty-five years in promoting better intergroup relations. He praised the efforts made by American citizens in every section of the country to break down hostilities and tensions among Protestants, Catholics and Jews.

"This is encouraging progress," Mr. Straus declared. "The National Conference seeks to make the spiritual power of democracy prevail in the day to day life of each American. Towards that end the organization has enlisted leadership and followed a program that mobilizes moral and spiritual resources for brotherhood.

"Brotherhood Week is one phase of this program. Throughout the country it is observed as a period of rededication to the Judaeo-Christian concept of the kinship of man. It is a recurring reminder that we are all children of one God, morally responsible one to the other for our liberties and our mutual welfare. It also acts as a warning that unless we can live together in harmony, we will be planting the seeds which will eventually destroy a way of life that is the last hope for civilization."

MALCOLM LANEY

* * *

Named Head Of Cancer Drive

Appointment of Malcolm Laney of Tuscaloosa as state-wide co-chairman of the 1953 Crusade of the American Cancer Society has been announced by Redus C. Collier, Decatur, Ala., this year's state chairman.

Laney, end coach of the Crimson Tide, University of Alabama, will be responsible for the campaign in an area comprising 19 counties in this section of the state, including Chilton County. He was named to serve as state-wide co-chairman with A. W. Jones, marketing specialist with the Alabama Extension Service, Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn.

A special appeal for public support of the 1953 Crusade was sounded by Laney.

"The American Cancer Society is carrying on a great program of scientific research, public information, and assistance to needy cancer patients. This is a voluntary program to save lives by informing the public of cancer's danger signals, to find the causes and cures for cancer, and to aid those who are unfortunate enough to be stricken by this dread disease."

"It is an undertaking that deserves the support of all of us," Laney said, "and I know I can depend upon all my friends throughout Alabama to help in any way they can in this important work."

Laney has just ended his eighth year on the Alabama coaching staff and his seventh as an end coach, having taken over from Red Drew. He has continued Alabama's long-time record as a producer of top-flight football stars.

A graduate of the University of Alabama, class of 1933, Laney began his coaching career at Russellville, Ala., and later returned to his home town of Birmingham to coach at Woodlawn High. At the Birmingham School, he coached many high school players who have made big names for themselves in college football, including Holt Rast and Harry Gilmer. He is married and the father of two children, Jo Dell and Malcolm, Jr.

Counties for which Laney is responsible in the Cancer Crusade include Franklin, Marion, Winston, Lamar, Fayette, Walker, Pickens, Tuscaloosa, Greene, Hale, Sumter, Marengo, Choctaw, Clarke, Washington, Mobile, Bibb, Perry and Chilton.

Watch For Dates Of Pre-School Examinations

On February 18th your Health Officer and nurses will begin the examination of children who will enter school for the first time in September. Last year we had a good response by mothers aided by parent teacher members in getting these children in for their examination, but we were not permitted to see all these children.

Make your response 100% and the children will receive much greater protection against diphtheria, lockjaw, whooping cough, and smallpox. Get your children in for this examination and shots for the prevention of above diseases.

Not 1% of those we saw on our visits to the schools last season left us in an unhappy frame of mind. You will be notified at an early date when we will be at your school.

Board Of Revenue And Control Votes To Build New Courthouse, Jail

The Board of Revenue and Control voted today to build a new Courthouse for Chilton County. Every member of the body voted in favor of the project.

According to reports coming out of the meeting the new building will be constructed on the county property where the jail now stands and will house all county offices and the county jail.

Reasons expressed for construction of the courthouse was the bad condition of the present structure and the run-down condition of the county jail. No new taxes will be imposed on the people for the construction of the new county buildings.

Rents being paid for office space for a number of county offices was also a determining factor in the affirmative vote of the Board. Construction on the new building will start on or about July 1, 1953.

A PROCLAMATION

I commend the observance of Brotherhood Week, sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, February 15-22, to all our citizens. It is well, at a time when the principles upon which our democracy is founded are gravely threatened, that we should reassert them firmly and rededicate ourselves to their daily practice

Brotherhood Week provides an opportunity to affirm our acceptance of the obligations implicit in the brotherhood of man under the Fatherhood of God.

Respectfully,
C. FENN JONES,
Mayor.

Smith Named Manager County Fruit And Truck Growers Assn.

George Smith, a former teacher for the Veterans Farm Training Program, has been named as the General Manager for the Thorsby shed of the Chilton County Fruit and Truck Growers Association, according to J. Archie Ogburn, a Director of the Association.

Mr. Ogburn reported that the decision was made at a meeting of the Board of Directors and the stockholders of the association last Thursday night. Mr. Smith will be a full-time employee of the association, according to Mr. Ogburn's announcement, keeping the office of the shed open each day from 7 o'clock in the morning until soon. Each afternoon Mr. Smith will be in the field with farmer-members of the association, said Mr. Ogburn.

The name of Mr. Smith for manager of the shed was first proposed at a meeting of the stockholders some two or three weeks ago when it was announced by Mr. Ogburn that the former manager of the shed, Mr. Jim Williams, would be forced to give up his job because of other pressing business. Mr. Ogburn stated that under Mr. Williams's guidance the shed last year had grossed in the neighborhood of $200,000.

Mr. Ogburn, in making his announcement of the new appointment, said he felt that the association had picked a good man for the job and that he felt like that the association would progress under Mr. Smith. Mr. Smith has been hired on a year-round basis, according to Mr. Ogburn.

GEORGE SMITH TO BE AT SHED IN THORSBY

George D. Smith, who was elected manager of the Chilton County Fruit and Truck Growers Association for this year, will be at the shed in Thorsby every week day from 7:00 a.m.-12:00 noon for the purpose of discussing various problems of the Association and for the purpose of issuing orders for fertilizers to the members of the Association.

Goodyear Makes Soil Conservation Awards National

Akron, Ohio — Expansion of the Goodyear Soil Conservation Awards program to a nationwide basis was announced recently in Omaha, Neb., by A. G. Morrill, director of the program for the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company.

Speaking to a banquet audience attending the National Association of Soil Conservation District's seventh annual meeting, Morrill stated that his company was following the lead of increased interest in soil conservation as indicated in President Eisenhower's first state of the union message to Congress.

The company will conduct a national awards program, starting July 1, 1953, to inspire voluntary soil conservation district workers, farmers and ranchers to even greater efforts to preserve the nation's topsoil.

Goodyear has sponsored a soil conservation awards program on a regional basis in 17 states for the past six years. The new program will be patterned after the old with 100 persons from all 48 states eligible for grand award vacation trips to the Wigwam Inn, on Goodyear Farms at Litchfield Park, Arizona in December 1954.

All organized soil conservation districts in the U. S. are eligible to compete for the Goodyear awards. One member of each winning district and the top cooperating farmer or rancher named by the district will make the vacation trip to Arizona.

Non-partisan judging committees, selected from outstanding exponents of soil conservation in the various states, will select winning districts on a point system of rating actual accomplishment.

Winners will be announced at the seven regular regional meetings of the National Association of Soil Conservation districts. Plaques will be awarded at these conventions to the first and second place winners from the competing units.

Actual competition will be over a ten month period with two months for judging. State soil conservation districts will compete with each other for first and second place awards with the following exceptions:

Vermont and New Hampshire will compete as one unit. Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts will make up one competing unit. Delaware and New Jersey districts will compete together for the grand award.

The soil conservation districts of Texas will be divided into three competing units and the soil conservation districts of Illinois, Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska will be split into two competing units each.

Certificates of meritorious achievement will be given to 1,000 outstanding supervisors and cooperators after the close of the contest year on April 30, 1954.

Religion, Economics Go Hand In Hand

(By William R. Morgan)

I have read, with considerable interest, the Community Spirit Messages currently appearing in our county papers. It is encouraging to know that our people are concerned about building a stronger and more prosperous community. I am interested because I believe that the welfare of our churches is inseparably linked with that of the community.

While I was in seminary, I toured both of the Carolinas supply preaching on week ends. I noticed that when the community was poor and backward the churches also assumed a similar character. I observed also that some of these areas were retarded, not because of the lack of resources, but because of the lack of vision, sensible planning, and a dynamic community spirit.

The problem of education is always a difficult task. Some people are satisfied with the status quo and do not care to change. They fear that the influx of new people will change the social structure of their town and they like it just the way it is. It should not be necessary to point out, however, that such communities will eventually stagnate and die. In this modern age there is no standing still; we either go forward or backward. Problems are never solved through evasion, but only through concerted action; each individual working as a team.

From the church's viewpoint, new people mean new members, more money, and a deeper spiritual life. Here is hoping that all of our pastors and churches in Chilton County will stand behind their Chamber of Commerce in its' drive to improve our county; moreover, I think that when they see the relationship between community progress and spiritual growth their support will be enthusiastic and most probably unanimous.

E. A. Fulmer Leads At Young Demo Meeting

E. A. Fulmer, Clanton, headed the Chilton County delegation at the recent statewide convention of the Young Democrats held in Birmingham. He was recognized as one of the most outstanding leaders at the meet.

Fulmer, State Commander of the Disabled Veterans, served as a member of the all-important Constitution Committee and assisted in drafting a working revision of the old constitution for the Young Democrats to follow during the next two years. Probate Judge Dave Tingle attended the convention with the Chilton County delegation.

According to Joe Pilcher, Selma, president of the Young Democrats, "both the reorganizational program and the state convention would have fallen far short of their goal without the individual interests and efforts of leaders like Fulmer."

CHARLES W. WADE III HONORED BY FRATERNITY

Charles W. Wade was elected President of the Theta Xi Fraternity of the University of Alabama recently. He was Treasurer of the Fraternity during the Spring Semester of 1952.

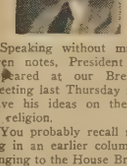
Charles is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wade of Clanton.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District



Speaking without manuscript or even notes, President Eisenhower appeared at our Breakfast Club meeting last Thursday morning and gave his ideas on the importance of religion.

You probably recall my mentioning in an earlier column about belonging to the House Breakfast Club which meets every Thursday morning for religious discussion. I have regularly attended these sessions since coming to Congress, and have never failed to gain inspiration from the devotional periods.

Thursday's meeting was particularly noteworthy because of the presence of President Eisenhower and other notables. Our club met with representatives from other breakfast clubs over the world. The combined meeting was a phase of the Christian Action Conference which is convening in Washington.

Several hundred breakfast club members were present, including, besides the President, several cabinet members, Supreme Court Justices, and members of Congress. The meeting took place at the Mayflower Hotel where we were the guests of Conrad Hilton, famous hotel owner. Mr. Hilton read an impressive prayer and presented us with copies of his devotional message.

President Eisenhower was introduced by Senator Frank Carlson (R-Kan.) who presided. The President gave a short impromptu talk on the importance of religion in government. He maintained that all free governments should be firmly founded in a deeply felt religious faith. He reminded the group of the profound religious belief of those who wrote the Declaration of Independence, and of Benjamin Franklin who once interrupted a controversial Constitutional Convention to call for a few minutes of prayer. After the prayer, Eisenhower related, the critical problems of the convention were smoothed out.

"I think that prayer is just simply a necessity," the President said.

Upon conclusion of his talk, the President, laughingly thanked Mr. Hilton for the breakfast—"the like of which I have not had in ten years."

It seems the President usually breakfasts on a simple meal of coffee and fruit juice.

General Gray Testifies—

Testifying before our last Veterans Affairs Committee meeting, General Carl Gray pointed out that 28,508,000 Americans have served in our armed forces since the beginning of the Revolutionary War, counting those now in the Korean conflict.

General Gray, who is Administrator of Veterans Affairs, appeared before our committee to relate the history, size, and scope of activities of the Veterans Administration.

Throughout his discussion, he revealed various figures concerning the servicemen in all the United States' wars. He reported that 955,368 Americans have lost their lives in battle to date. He said there are 19,288,318 living veterans today; 499,799 widows of veterans and 295,060 dependent children. The number of disabled veterans today totals 2,357,689, with over a million of this number disabled less than 10 per cent.

"Although the Mexican War is thought of as a small war," the General said, "it is shocking to note that 130,000 Americans participated in this battle of 1846, and 13,000 lost their lives."

He said the last veteran of the Mexican War died in 1929, but that there are still 18 widows and one dependent of veterans of this war that was fought 107 years ago.

"The American people," General Gray remarked, "with their known generosity, have extended benefits to their veterans and dependents far in excess of what any other country has done."

Also appearing before the Committee with General Gray were Admiral Joel T. Boone, Chief Medical Director of the VA and Milton C. Forster, Chief of the WA Research Division.

General Gray agreed to appear before our Committee again at a later date to discuss any reorganization plans for the Veterans Administration.

Bobby Jones won third place and three dollars. His topic was, "Farm Progress." J. W. Langston received fourth place and two dollars. His subject was "Wildlife Conservation."

Williams will represent his chapter in the County Speaking Contest to be held in Clanton February 26. This contest will be sponsored by the Clanton Kiwanis Club.

93 YEAR OLD PARADER

Washington — One of the oldest, if not the oldest, marchers in the recent inaugural parade, was J. Henry Geer, a spry 93, the only living charter member of the Beaver County (Pa.) Lincoln Republican Club. He wore the club uniform, including high silk hat and red, white and blue umbrella.

USES '42 CALENDAR

Buffalo, N. Y. — Eleven years ago, someone gave Edward Jerzewski, of Cheektowaga, a gift calendar. He never got around to using it, but recently pulled it out. Jerzewski now has the calendar perched on his desk, since the dates this year are the same as in 1942.

OIL WELLS

The nation's oil industry sank 46,000 new wells in 1952, according to an industry report. A deep exploration well costs an average of $1,000,000, although there is only one chance in 16 that it will find even a small oil reservoir. Chances of finding a medium field of oil, capable of supplying the nation for a week, are only one in 330.

Following the War Between The States, the new city of Birmingham became the railroad center of the State.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

A tremendous supply of beef is moving through wholesale markets and processing plants to stores at present and the price paid for much of this beef, on the hoof, was the lowest since 1949. In late January, Chicago packers were paying an average of only $25.00 a hundred pounds for steers. Only two months ago, prices averaged $32 a hundred pounds, and, in January, 1952, the price was an average of $34.25.

While the retail market has not reflected lower on-the-hoof prices for some time the long decline was finally realized in late January when a sharp wave of price-cutting swept the country's retail meat markets. In Chicago, packers expect the present trend to continue a while longer and, thus, the prices of retail cuts of beef may continue to go down for a time.

As has been pointed out by many experts, appraising the job facing the new Administration, declining beef prices, and other farm prices, pose the Administration of President Eisenhower with a serious problem. However, the declining prices are good news to the housewife, who has been paying abnormally high prices for good cuts of beef in recent years. The housewife is also benefitting by decreases in lamb prices in most sections of the country.

Some of the leading packers have been selling premium lamb leg at 59c a pound, compared to a price of $1 a pound only a few months ago. Poultry prices have also dropped. Thus, the meat outlook for the housewife is brighter than it has been in years.

FIRST LADY OF THE U. S.

An interesting custom in the United States is the tendency of some reporters to portray the First Lady of the United States as an exotic creature, because she happens to be the wife of the President of the United States. These reporters mistakenly assume that the President's wife must be described as being a person of dazzling beauty and that the people of the country want to believe as much.

In trying to portray the last several First Ladies as twentieth century editions of Venus, they do the First Ladies an injustice. The job of the President's wife, in the United States, is not to be exotic or appear to have missed her calling by not journeying to Hollywood.

The responsibility of the First Lady of this country includes dedication to the job of being a proper hostess, of properly aiding her husband, the President, and of being an example wife and mother for millions of Americans. This great responsibility can suitably be discharged only by a sincere and talented person. Whether she looks like a movie star or not is relatively unimportant.

Reporters who attempt to describe each First Lady of the United States as a raving beauty, regardless of the facts, are either seeking to curry favor or falling victim to a misguided optimism. They should realize we can appreciate a First Lady without having to swoon over her first.

● The appointment of Lt. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor as commander of the Eighth Army in Korea by President Eisenhower, to replace Gen. James A. Van Fleet, was not a surprise to Washington observers. Gen. Van Fleet had indicated during the presidential campaign, when a letter he wrote to his wife was quoted by the President in a campaign speech, that he planned to retire from active duty when he became eligible. His retirement date was extended to March 31 by Secretary of the Army Frank Pace.

President Eisenhower said Van Fleet was probably the best qualified combat officer in the armed forces. He added he regretted that the "passing of time, and time alone" has resulted in the loss of Van Fleet's services in Korea.

Van Fleet is retiring almost two years after he took over command in Korea. He assumed that command in the shake-up which followed the recall of General Douglas MacArthur as supreme commander in the Far East.

Although Van Fleet is retiring, he can be called back into uniform by the President. In this connection, there is considerable speculation in Washington that Eisenhower might promote him to chief of staff.

● The reorganization of federal government bureaus and agencies is a low rumble, but is growing in volume every day. In the Department of Agriculture, for instance, of major concern to most small towns of the nation, the process has begun.

Secretary Benson announced the regrouping of the department's 20 agencies in a move for greater operating efficiency. Instead of 20 there are now four.

The major result of the regrouping will be to reduce the operating scope of the Production and Marketing Administration which was the dominent agency in the department. The action leaves an unanswered question of major importance. What will the new administration do about the system of farmer committees that was established to help administer farm programs?

Observers paid particular note to that part of Benson's announcement that said he expected employees of the department to give a full "day's work for a day's pay."

● Two men, much in the news, opened offices as President Eisenhower and his cabinet took over the control of the federal government. One was private citizen Harry Truman who opened an office in Kansas City. He quipped that he felt like a country boy in the big city and added he had plenty of work to do, but did not indicate its nature.

The other was Adlai E. Stegenson who opened an office in Chicago. He too is now private citizen Stevenson. His activities will include completing a book now in process, a journey to the Far East and Middle East, and last but not least the role of "constructive opposition" to the Eisenhower administration.

● Charles E. Wilson made the biggest financial sacrifice in the nation's history to become a public servant. By selling his General Motors stock he will pay between $500,000 and $600,000 in capital-gains taxes. In addition he will sell 1,800 shares of G.M. stock which he would receive during the next three years as part of his retirement bonus. Besides the capital-gains taxes Wilson will lose thousands of dollars in income that his stock was earning.

Christianity's Needs — Persevering Pupils

"Therefore leaving the principles (elementary instruction) of the doctrine of Christ, let us advance to mature manhood." Hebrews 6:1.

In the school of religion every Christian should be a life-long undergraduate. He may sit at the feet of learned interpreters of Divine Revelation; he may apply himself to all the text-books on Bible interpretation ever written; he may acquire the essential lessons that rich and ripe experience may contribute to a receptive mind and heart; but even then he must need exclaim with the Apostle, "O the depth of the riches, both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable are his judgements, and his ways past finding out!" Be it known that in that school no diploma is given this side of heaven. No pupil, however, diligent, can ever complete the course of study.

Therein is found a contributing cause of the inadequacy of our present day Christianity to meet the world situation. Too many of us in adult years have proceeded on the assumption that we learned enough religion in our childhood and youth to carry us along through life, when in fact we are totally unprepared to meet the big issues that demand intelligent Christian action.

It is often the case that a bright young person stays with his Sunday School and his church until he reaches adolescence, and then concludes that he is absolved from further instruction in the field of religion. The same young person, with due regard for the wisdom of this world, goes about in his preparation for a business or a professional career, to either of which he gives persistant application to his study, in order that his inborn ambition may be realized. He attains his desired goal and thereby merits the applause of those who have watched his progress with interest and high expectancy.

But what about his moral and spiritual development? "Aye, there's the rub." He has perchance relegated the interests of his soul to the outgrown things of his childhood, and has thereby become the victim of religious immaturity. So, when the Kingdom of God calls for intelligent proponents, he is unprepared. "For this cause many are weak and sickly among you."

All churches today are in need of people who are dedicated to unremitting fidelity to the school of Christ. Only among such people will crusaders for the Kingdom be found.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is conducted by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

RABIES CAN BE ELIMINATED

Rabies is caused by a germ known as a virus. This rabies virus is present in the saliva of a rabid animal. If a person is bitten, the salivia, loaded with rabies virus, enters his body through the bite. This virus reaches the brain by traveling along the nerves. You might not be actually bitten by a mad dog, but if some of his saliva laden with rabies virus should happen to enter a cut or scratch on your fingers, hands, or face, you could be the victim of rabies.

If you have been bitten by a dog which you think might be mad, first, wash the wound out with soap and running water, so as to get the saliva from the dog out of the wound, if possible. Next, go immediately to your physician. At the same time, have someone report the circumstances of the bite to the health authorities. Everyone who is bitten does not have to take the Pasteur treatment, because every dog who bites a person isn't mad. The best thing is to take the advice of your doctor and health officer. Usually they advise that the dog (if he doesn't have any alarming symptoms be shut up for at least ten days, under the supervision of a veterinarian. If he had rabies, he will be dead within that time. If the dog is sick or dies before the ten days are up, your physician may advise that you start the treatments immediately.

In Alabama rabid foxes have become a source of danger. Losing all fear of humans, they enter towns and homes where people and animals have been bitten who in turn can develop rabies. While rabies is spread mainly by dogs, it is known that all warmblooded animals are susceptible to the disease.

You can help control rabies by obeying local regulations that may be put into effect. Vaccination of your pet animals is for your protection as well as for the animals and should be done once a year. The stray dog must be controlled as it is this animal that keeps the dread disaese alive. Where a good vaccination and stray dog control program has been carried out, rabies has been controlled.

STATE SENATE AND HOUSE TO GET NEW LOOK

Montgomery, Ala. — A new look will greet state legislators when they return to the Alabama capital for the 1953 legislative session in May.

Senate Secretary J. Earl Speight and House Clerk R. T. Goodwyn, Jr., say that plans are underway to paint both chambers, and air-conditioning capacity in the senate chamber already has been expanded. The house units will be increased in capacity before the May 5 opening date.

Goodwyn said also that a suite of lounge-conference rooms will be constructed for state representatives. The offices presently occupied by them will be converted for use as a meeting place for the lower chamber members. Another will be prepared for the press and guests.

Desks for house members also are to be refinished and new drapes installed.

Maybe there are some little boys who really like to go to the barber shop, but our three-year-old certainly doesn't belong in that group.

Although he has grown out of the screaming-crying stage he went through on his first visits to the barber, he still has a hearty dislike for getting his hair cut. Even on the spur of the moment, he can think of at least ten good reasons for postponing a trip to the barber.

The other day his hair was so shaggy it completely hid the tops of his ears, and the six-year-old was threatening to tie some of her hair ribbons on it, but he was still bitterly opposed to taking time from his play for a trip to the barber shop.

"No," he said, "I can't get my hair cut because it would make the baby so unhappy. You know how she laughs every time I lean over and let her pull my hair. If I get it cut, it will be too short for her to pull, and she'd be unhappy."

The baby and the three-year-old are still happy.

The bride down the street was faced with a big problem the other morning while she was cooking dinner: Should the carrots be covered while they were cooking or not? She had taken the cover off the pan and put it on again a dozen times when the next door neighbor happened to drop by and gave her an old, trusty rule to follow in cooking vegetables.

If the vegetables grows underground, it should be covered while cooking. Vegetables that grow above the ground should be cooked without being covered. Simple, isn't it?

* * *

It seems I never have an egg in the refrigerator when I need one most. The other morning I was rushing around trying to get salmon croquettes ready for the noon meal, and I discovered the eggs were all gone.

I was wracking my brain for some dish to substitute for the salmon when the next door neighbor arrived on the scene and told me to use gelatin instead of an egg to hold the croquettes together. So I dissolved the gelatin in water, according to the directions on the package, and it worked fine.

* * *

Here's something else I learned about using eggs: Two egg whites can be made to do the work of three if you add a tablespoon of cold water to them before you beat them. And the yolks from the eggs will keep fresh and soft in the refrigerator for days if you cover them with water before storing them. If you're cooking scrambled eggs, you can make one egg go as far as two by adding a tablespoon of milk and a tablespoon of fine bread crumbs. And your scrambled eggs will always be light and creamy, never scorched, if you cook them in the top of a double boiler.

* * *

Now for a recipe using eggs Creole eggs it is called:

Place in a heavy skillet 1 can of tomatoes, ½ cup diced celery, 4 tablespoons chopped onion and 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper. Cook until celery is tender and season with salt and pepper to taste. Stir in ½ cup bread crumbs and ½ cup English peas. Pour part of mixture into greased casserole. Sprinkle grated cheese over top, pour on more sauce, sprinkle on more cheese. Using a big spoon, make "nests" for six eggs on top. Break an egg carefully into each nest, dot with butter and bake at 350 degrees for half an hour.

KEEP WILDLIFE ON THE FARM

Encourage wild birds and animals to stay on the farm by providing nesting and home sites for them. Homemade boxes and hollow trees killed and left standing are excellent.

If the yolk of an egg breaks when separating it from the white and mixes with the latter, you can remove it with a cloth dipped in cold water; the yolk will stick to the cloth.

Immigration Quotas Are Expected To Be Retained As Stands

(By Stanley James)

Washington — The McCarran-Walter Act, which is now the official immigration law of the country, is probably going to remain law. Though various groups are seeking a new law, and getting a lot of publicity in the effort, Congress doesn't seem inclined to change a law which took four years to compile.

And most Senators and Congressmen do not believe the average voter wants the law changed anyhow. The beef against the law is strong in several Northern and Eastern sections where foreign-born masses comprise a large segment of the population—and votes!

The fact that Congress passed the law over a Harry Truman veto (better than two-thirds majorities in each House) shows the solidarity of opinion in favor of the immigration law. Actually, it is the same law which had been in force more than a score of years, except that it has been modernized and security-tightened. The basic immigration quotas are the same.

The total possible immigration quota per year is now 154,657. Individual quotas for the different countries are based on the percentage of inhabitants of the nationality concerned in the U. S. as of 1920. This quota system was first applied in 1924 and has been used ever since. It is assurance that the country's population pattern will not be drastically changed by immigration. Unlimited entrance into the country would change it quickly—with a flood of Southern and Southeastern Europeans from Latin and Balkan countries.

But even the quota system does not result in the admission of exact quota proportions. The British, for example, seldom fill their quota while those from some countries are always used to the last immigrant allowed. Thus, while the proportions are arranged according to the U. S. population pattern in the law, immigration totals show that Southern and Southeastern Europeans continue to enter the country, proportionately, at a faster pace than full-quota usage would have provided.

Sarah Anne's COOKING CLASS

Canapes offer a wide scope for originality and artistry in make-up. One may make any family dinner menu a festive occasion for guests by simply adding a separate course of appetizers. Such a course is the custom in many foreign countries.

There are two essentials which must be kept in mind when serving canapes. First, let it be just an appetizer. Second, if it is to be a cold dish, let it be very cold; if hot, very hot.

* * *

Canapes Parmesan—

Mix grated Parmesan cheese with equal amount of whipped cream. Spread on small rounds of bread which have been fried in butter. Cover with chopped parsley and decorate with cheese mixture put through a pastry tube.

* * *

Stuffed Dill Slices—

Select large dill pickles and remove the centers, using an apple corer or a sharp knife. Fill the centers with soft pimiento cream cheese. Chill and when ready to serve cut into slices and put slices on small rounds of toast.

* * *

Bacon and Olive Canape—

Wrap a strip of bacon around a large stuffed olive. Skewer with a toothpick. Broil until bacon is crisp and golden brown, serve on rounds of toast.

* * *

Star Canape—

Spread small star-shaped pieces of toast with chicken liver paste. Garnish each point with a small Rosette of green pepper butter.

* * *

Black and White Canape—

Chop the whites of hard-cooked eggs, season and mix with a little mayonnaise. Spread generously on small shapes of bread, leaving a small well in the center. Fill with caviar.

* * *

Assorted Hors D'Oeuvres—

Crisp stalks of celery filled with Roquefort and cream cheese paste; slices of firm ripe tomatoes with boneless sardines laid across them; assorted olives; lengthwise halves of hard-boiled eggs stuffed with deviled ham and sprinkled with chopped parsley; very small lettuce cups filled with highly seasoned potato garnished with pimiento; pickled beet balls; pickled onions; triangles of Swiss or American cheese sprinkled with paprika.

* * *

Black and White Canape Rose Canape—

Rub cottage cheese through a sieve, mix with nuts and a little salad dressing. Spread on circular pieces of bread. Decorate with a pink rose, using a tinted cream cheese through a pastry decorator.

* * *

Salmon Canape—

Make a paste of canned salmon, minced celery, lemon juice and mayonnaise. Spread this on oblongs of toast and set a whole shrimp on the top.

* * *

Watercress Canape—

Cut bread in fancy shapes soften butter and blend with it finely chopped watercress. Spread over bread and put a border of it around the edge, using a pastry tube. In the center place a small sprig of watercress. Chill well before serving.

* * *

Anchovy Canapes—

Cut thin slices of white bread in small diamond shapes. Spread with a mixture of chopped anchovies, satuated mushrooms and capers. Garnish with slices of stuffed olives by making a border of half slices and placing a whole slice in the middle.

Water Needed Later Should Be Saved Now

Drouths occur nearly every year in Alabama despite the fact that rainfall exceeds 50 inches.

In other words Alabama farmers get plenty of water to produce crops every year, but too often much of it is allowed to run off sloping lands. S. R. Doughty, API Extension soil conservationist, believes farmers could help insure crops against drouth if they will (1) put each acre in the crop best suited to it, (2) increase the supply of organic matter in the soil so it will absorb and hold more water, (3) use crop rotations that include more sod crops to trap rainfall and store it in the soil for future use, and (4) control run-off water that soil does not absorb by spreading it onto meadows and pastures or storing it in farm ponds.

CLEAN LITTER FOR BROILERS

Tests conducted by the API Experiment Station show that broilers grown on clean litter are slightly heavier at 10 to 11 weeks of age and less infested with large round worms than broilers grown in dirty litter.

Pastry dough can be rolled easily by placing a sheet of waxed paper on the board and another piece on top of the dough. When rolling, additional flour is not required as the pastry will not stick and the board remains clean.

MUNICIPALITY CAN MAINTAIN HOSPITAL

Montgomery, Ala. — The Alabama attorney general's office has ruled that a municipality or a county may either jointly or individually establish, operate and maintain a public hospital.

Furthermore, the attorney general held, when a municipality undertakes to establish, operate and maintain a public hospital, a county governing body may appropriate county funds to the municipality for the purpose of aiding in construction of the hospital only and place the authority to manage, operate, control and maintain the hospital in the city.

Probate Judge Coma Garrett, Jr., of Clarke county, sought the ruling. It paved the way for an agreement between Clarke County and the City of Jackson for construction of a hospital. Under the agreement, according to the opinion, Clarke County is appropriating $15,000 toward construction of the hospital, which will be under control of the municipality.

PRICES PAID FARMERS

Farmers now get about 46 cents of each dollar that consumers spend for farm foods. This is three cents below what they received a year earlier and the lowest since the end of World War II.

Cows Prove There Is Difference In Hay

Auburn, Ala. — Cows on test at the Bureau of Dairy Industry in Beltsville, Maryland, proved that there is a difference in hay.

Heifers fed No. 1 hay consumed 16.5 pounds of dry matter daily and gained 1.5 pounds in body weight. Heifers fed No. 3 hay consumed 14 pounds of dry matter daily and gained 1.15 pounds in body weight. In other words, No. 1 hay was 12 per cent better than No. 3.

"Therefore," advises J. R. Parrish, API Extension dairy specialist, "dairymen should produce a minimum of one ton of No. 1 hay for every cow in the dairy herd, plus three tons of top quality silage."

He pointed out that legume hay is higher in food value, and alfalfa heads the list.

Broiled Chicken Can Be Prepared Quickly

Auburn, Ala. — Delicious chicken can be prepared in short order if it is broiled in an oven.

Mary Hulsey, API Extension nutritionist, says broiling is an easy and tasty way to prepare small birds. However, they must be watched closely while cooking and turned when necessary.

"Prepare the bird for broiling the same as for frying," advises the specialist. "Brush the bird well with butter or other fat and add salt and pepper for seasonings. A rack is not necessary in the broiler pan because the chicken will keep moist in its own juices."

The specialist suggests that the pan be placed so that the heating unit is seven to nine inches from it. Broil the meal slowly until brown, and brush with fat at each turning. Continue broiling until meat is tender. Pour pan drippings over the chicken and serve.

She ignored me. "That first dress we passed at is the best buy," she says. "Lets go back."

"But that's five blocks," I said.

"You are going to buy me that dress." And off we marched.

As we entered the store the saleslady rushed to the dress dummy and dragged her into the back room. She returned and was all smiles. "Now what can I do for you?"

"I want to see that first dress I looked at," my wife says.

"But my dear, it has been sold," says the saleslady.

"What!" I shouted.

The Service 11:00; Sunday School 10:00. Everybody welcome.

A prominent psychologist once said, "People today do not die from disease, but from internal combustion."

A truer statement was never uttered. We are rapidly becoming a nation of neurotics because we let ourselves get worked into a frenzy over trivialities. Worry is almost considered a virtue, and people who take their problems in their stride are often considered to lack the necessary ambition to get them through life.

Part of the blame must be placed upon the materialistic philosophy held by so many people today. Far too much emphasis has been placed upon "making a living" and not enough upon living itself. People are considered successful if they can maneuver into the upper income brackets ignoring the fact that such people are often saddled with a tremendous amount of health-destroying responsibility.

The manager of a large plant once posted a sign for the benefit of his employees which read as follows: "You work eight hours a day, go home and relax, and do none of the worrying. But cheer up. Some day you will be a manager, work sixteen hours a day, and do all of the worrying." And I might add parenthetically, "and probably die ten years sooner."

So wherever the problems of responsibility weigh heavily upon you, slow down, take time off, and "wait on the Lord" through prayer. Remember that health, once lost, can never be reclaimed even though you might be a millionaire.

NEVER before has radio been bigger, more ubiquitous, more effective than today . . . Today radio is everywhere, pursuing its long established role of entertaining and informing; of helping people understand the world they live in . . . Radio, 106 million sets, is in the kitchens, bedrooms, living rooms and on the lawns . . . It is in 27 million automobiles . . . It makes itself heard on weekdays in thousands of workshops, and pervades the leisure of millions more at the beaches and alongside the picnic baskets out of doors . . .

Radio is comedy, drama, music, sports, news, public affairs, talks, discussions, science and literature . . . Radio is a metronome which marks the rhythm of American life from the day's beginning to bedtime . . . And its audience listens not through mere habit, but by conscious preference . . . Significant indications of the industry's soundness and vigor were to be seen in the following: CBS Radio Network starts 1953 with 216 AM affiliates, 10 more than at the beginning of 1952 . . . The number of FM stations, 93, remains unchanged . . . There are more sponsored programs than ever before . . .

RADIO MARCHES ON

Radio set production during the year totaled an estimated 10 million sets and researchers found the nation now has 43,859,000 radio homes, or 1.1 million more than in January 1952 . . . This means that virtually every home in the United States has at least one radio set . . . During the 12 months between October 1951 and October 1952 evening radio listening in TV homes of the 18 leading TV cities has increased 17 per cent, according to a survey conducted by Telepulse.

New York is the city that has had the most television the longest time seven channels having been activated over a three-year perio

TIFFIN FURNITURE COMPANY

BETWEEN COURTHOUSE AND POST OFFICE ON 6th ST.

Maybe These Are the Reasons

Every week Alabama Power Company receives applications for jobs from hundreds of persons.

When asked why they want to work for Alabama Power Company, many say: "I've heard that it's a good company to work for."

Perhaps these are some of the things that cause them to think so:

1. Alabama Power Company is recognized as one of the agencies in Alabama which has done much to help develop Alabama and is highly regarded for its progressive viewpoint.

2. Due to the steady growth of the Company, there are frequent opportunities for advancement, work reassignments and transfers. Last year about 800 employees participated in such opportunities.

3. Employment, except for certain types of work temporary in nature, is not often subject to fluctuation. Employees can count on regular pay.

4. Rate of pay is good; vacation and sick leave policies are liberal.

5. All employees are covered by a life insurance policy, after their first six months of employment which increases with long service. Premiums are paid by the Company.

6. Eligible employees reaching age 65 are retired under a liberal pension plan, the entire expense of which is borne by the Company.

7. Employees are encouraged to participate in civic and other community activities. Many receive public commendation for their efforts and example of good citizenship.

8. The Company recognizes its responsibility to employees as well as to the public and to investors. This triple responsibility is included in our public statement of policy, in these words:

"We will continue to maintain congenial working conditions and just rates of pay, with an equal opportunity for advancement to every man and woman in our employ. We recognize a triple responsibility — to the public, to our employees and to investors — and our obligation to try to maintain a just balance among these three interests.

"We recognize that it is a duty and privilege to participate as a good citizen in the development of every community within our service area through the payment of taxes and otherwise, and to this end we pledge the services of the men and women of our organization."

BIG BLACK

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

IT WAS Father Jacquier who warned Rene about Big Black. Big Black was a bear cub that Rene had found, deserted and half-drowned, on the shores of the Skagway last spring. He had taken the cub back to his cabin, revived it and reared it into a full grown bruin.

"Bear cubs," Father Jacquier explained seriously, "are good natured and harmless. It is a fallacy to believe they remain so. Reach an age of six months, they are not to be trusted. You will be wise, my son, to liberate your pet."

Father Jacquier was a sage of the north country. Rene, though doubtful, gave Big Black his freedom. At first he was lonesome for the bear's company. They had become fast friends. But when fall set in with its crisp nights and frosty mornings, Rene became busy with his trap line, and presently he forgot his lonesomeness.

Six days before Christmas Rene stepped through a treacherous covering of ice in a cove 10 miles from his cabin and broke his leg. It was a foolish thing to do, the result of carelessness. Rene was a seasoned woodsman. He should have known better than to trust the new fallen snow of last night.

No one better than Rene could have appreciated the gravity of the situation. Yet he did not permit panic or hopelessness to enter his thoughts. Hitching himself forward inches at a time he dragged himself to the shore, cut saplings with his sheath knife and crudely splinted the broken leg. He discarded his rifle and pack, but kept his knife. He considered various short cuts, but at length decided upon the trail with which he was so familiar and which was beaten hard by the many tramplings of his snow shoes.

Walking was out of the question, even with an improvised crutch. Crawling was faster and less painful. Crawling! Ten miles of crawling over a snow-blanketed country with the temperature hovering around zero. Rene's lips set grimly. If the weather held, if the mink trap which he had set midway between the river and his cabin contained a catch, if he could reach the camp before Father Jacquier stopped by on his annual trek to the post for Christmas four days hence—if Le Bon Dieu were good, Rene might still live.

The odds were very much against him, yet he refused to let them enter his thoughts. He crawled five hundred more yards before his first rest. He crawled five hundred more yards and rested again. By noon he had covered, he thought, almost a mile. He rested for 30 minutes. His leg was throbbing wretchedly. Some of the color had left his cheeks. He found that it was difficult not to allow hopeless panic to crush his spirits.

* * *

Late that afternoon he crawled to the top of a ridge and made comparatively fast time down the other side. This revived his spirits. He figured his total mileage for the day was better than three.

That night he lay huddled close to a fire in the lee of some rocks. The next day he found that crawling was harder because of his weakness from lack of food. Shortly after noon he reached the mink trap. His heart leaped. It contained a catch. He skinned, cleaned and broiled the tiny animal. The food revived him, physically and mentally. Le Bon Dieu was kind. Or was He? An hour later the sun disappeared. Within 30 minutes snow had begun to fall. Rene looked around desperately. He had to find shelter. A black hole yawned at him from a nearby cliff. He crawled into it—and froze. From the black depths there issued a low growl. Rene drew his knife and waited. Flight was useless. A black, awkward shape trundled toward him. Eyes shone in the darkness. They drew nearer and stopped, watching. Familiar memories stirred in Rene's mind. A cry escaped his lips. He reached out his hand, and the awkward shape lumbered near.

That night Rene slept huddled against the body of Big Black. The next day the skies cleared and he crawled from the cave. Big Black followed him.

Rene talked to the animal in the tones he had used when the bear was a cub. He expected the bear would return to its cave, but it didn't. All that day it lumbered along beside its one-time master.

Rene was glad of the company, glad of the animal's comforting warmth. That night he built a fire two two miles from his cabin. It was colder. Traveling was harder because of the new snow, and he was in a weakened condition. He doubted if once asleep he could rouse himself to replenish the fire.

Dozing off, he was jerked to consciousness by [illegible] growling. He sat up. [illegible] the circle of firelight [illegible] pair of eyes. Another. And still another. Wolves! A shot through Rene's body. He remembered tales of exhausted trappers who had become the victims of these North Woods scavengers. He shuddered.

The hair on Big Black's neck was bristling. His fangs were showing in a warning snarl. Rene eased back against the bear's warm sides. He closed his eyes, roused up, closed his eyes again. When he roused the second time dawn was stealing over the world. Big Black was asleep by his side.

Father Jacquier, coming into the clearing where stood Rene's cabin, saw a strange procession moving toward him from the opposite direction. He stopped dead still and then ran forward with a cry. Ten feet away he brought up short, warned by a throaty growl from Big Black. Rene raised himself on an elbow.

"Be careful, Father, these full grown bears are treacherous!" And Rene laughed weakly and encircled Big Black's shaggy neck with both his arms.

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. C. D. Hale, Route 2, Mart, Texas: I remember when after a quilting bee a cat was put in the middle of the quilt and the one he jumped out by was supposed to be the next bride.

From Mrs. Melvin Ingelretson, Thornton, Iowa: I remember when my mother made her own mattresses. They were made of feather ticking, buttoned down the center. There were ten children in our family and mother made mattresses for all the beds. Every fall, in corn picking time, she would take a sack and go into the field and pick the softest corn husks for each ticking.

From Mrs. J. J. Markle, Underhill, Vermont: I remember when my grandmother used to plump up the cornhusks in her mattress each morning. The furniture in her room was a set of valuable antiques. She made tallow candles in the old-time molds, knit her stocking and mittens for us children. I can still remember getting into the spool bed in the guest room that was always mine; the fragrance of sweet clover that she always put in her linen chest; the caraway cookies and strings of apples drying over the old range; and the copper kettles and brass candlesticks. One of the candlesticks and snuffer and tray are today among my treasures.

From Mrs. H. E. Chapman, Scottsbluff, Nebraska: I remember when I made all my husband's shirts. They were the old fashioned kind that had to be pulled on over the head.

From Mrs. W. H. Taylor, 3451 Summer Street, Eureka, Calif.: I remember when I lived in Kansas the snow was so deep we had to reach down to hang our washing on the clothesline. Also clerking in a store from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. for $3.75 a week.

"EASY DOES IT"

BY..... HELEN HALE

It's easy to glamorize your vegetables if you'll follow a few simple cooking tricks with the common types that you serve often. Give them a new place in the menu with these treatments:

Chopped cooked spinach is a wonderful dish when you place it in a casserole, cover with cream sauce and top with mushroom caps. Heat in moderate oven just long enough to heat through.

Glazed onions look beautiful around a roast, as a garnish and as a vegetable. Mix 4 tablespoons melted butter, 3 tablespoons lemon juice and ½ cup honey and cover cooked whole onions with this. Spoon over as you heat them through just to glaze them.

Peas will have that really distinctive garden flavor if you add some chopped mint or parsley or both during the last few minutes of cooking time.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Spiced Tongue Slices
(Serves 8)

1 beef tongue
2 tablespoons salt
Water to cover
3 pieces celery

8 cups vinegar
2 cups water
6 small onions, thinly sliced

Wash tongue and cover with salted water. Add celery and spices. Cook slowly until tender, about an hour per pound. Skin and slice. Cook sugar, vinegar and 2 cups water for 10 minutes. Pour over tongue. Add onions. Store in cool place and use as desired.

Any vegetable will rate attention if you brown butter [illegible] and add a few fine bread crumbs to it before pouring over cooked vegetable.

Add zip to creamed green beans by blending in a few drops of onion juice to the cream sauce while you make it.

POOR MAN STRIKES RICHES

Albuquerque, N. M. — Charlie Steen, 33-year-old geologist, who found a $1,000,000 vein of uranium in southeastern Utah last July, admits he owed $200 for groceries the day he struck it rich. Steen says that while they haven't even touched the top-grade supply yet, they are shipping out from 30 to 40 tons of ore a day, valued at about $800 a ton.

The Mailman

By Shirley Sergeant

The name on the mailbox read Harold B. Johnson. The holds [illegible] was [illegible] now, not [illegible] by weather. He [illegible] a young man with [illegible] stride and [illegible] eyes, paused there to kiss his wife good-bye before he left for work. "Be good," he said softly.

"Good!" Joan pulled away impatiently. "What else can I be? Oh, Hal, I'm so lonesome."

"I know. Why don't you go calling again? Skip your practicing for one morning.

"What's the use?" Joan's bitterness overflowed. "Two months and only one visitor! And you know what happened when I returned her call. I broke up a canasta party. That was the fastest brush-off I've ever had!"

"If I'd known this was a neighborhood of deadheads, I never would have asked you to move. I miss having friends drop in, but I don't know what we can do."

Where was the mailman? Joan wondered, stepping onto the clean-swept porch to watch for him. The piano could wait. She only practiced to kill time and loneliness. She was glad she hadn't told Hal about the woman next door.

Joan had been hanging clothes up when the woman had come outdoors. "Good morning," Joan had called gaily.

"Hello. I've been meaning to get over to see you, but I've been so busy . . ." her voice trailed off."

Oh, that's all right," Joan had said quickly. "Come anytime."

"You have a knack with the piano," the woman had spoken almost grudgingly. "My boy plays . . . I've heard him." Joan had said eagerly "maybe I could help him."

"He gets along well enough," the woman had replied coldly and moved away. Befuddled, Joan had walked off, hoping the woman would call her back. But she [illegible] instead.

Now she thought of the evening ahead when the long silence which could have been filled with [illegible] about the neighbors, [illegible] come between Hal and her. Both would be [illegible] the dollar company [illegible] would have to bring the [illegible]

"That nice mailman," she would [illegible] so friendly [illegible] set [illegible] ever all out. [illegible] the mailman had [illegible] raised questions in their [illegible] His very complaint that they got more mail than anyone on the block drew hearty smiles. Lately Hal [illegible] been a little [illegible] to edge in his approval, she had [illegible] the mailman to size and the silence grew longer.

Tonight, Joan knew, would be just like last night and the night before. But what can I do? she thought angrily.

Joan leaned forward, a fantastic idea growing in her mind. It might work. She couldn't [illegible] anything by trying it. Wasn't it was that mailman? And then, she saw his pleasing, boyish figure.

He [illegible] her hands behind her, smiling up into [illegible] tanned face. "I was [illegible] ing . . ." and then the words came in a rush.

"Joan, where have you been?" Hal demanded as she came [illegible] ting into the house that evening.

"Oh, Hal, I should have left a note," she continued. "I walked home with Mrs. Gorman. She gave me the most [illegible] recipe for cheese souffle. Entirely [illegible] Visitors. Hal [illegible] And such nice women. Wonderful. Mrs. Harding wants us for dinner tomorrow night—can we go?"

Joan laughed at Hal's puzzled expression. "It's all the mailman's fault. He left [illegible] boxes so [illegible] turn it. Naturally we [illegible] so I invited them [illegible] tea and we [illegible] Said they were busy [illegible] about cookies [illegible] Friends. Hal [illegible] he happened.

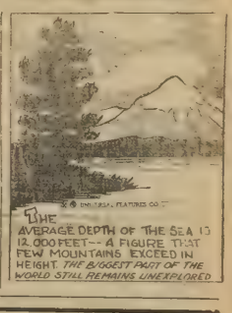
I don't see how the mailman made such a [illegible]" Hal [illegible] clasping [illegible]

"I missed him too!" Joan [illegible] earnestly.

COPC GET SAFETY CAPS

Chicago, Ill. — To make traffic policemen more visible to motorists at night, they have been issued white poplin cap covers, with a band of luminous material around the base of uniform caps. The innovation was ordered as a safety measure and was the first major change in police headgear since derbies gave way to the dark blue.

Lint on a suit or dress can be removed quickly by stroking garment with a "delinter" made by wrapping adhesive tape, with the sticky side out, on a toothbrush holder.



THE AVERAGE DEPTH OF THE SEA IS 12,000 FEET — A FIGURE THAT FEW MOUNTAINS EXCEED IN HEIGHT. THE EXACT FACT OF THE WORLD STILL REMAINS UNEXPLORED

U. S. AND THE U. N.

The United States is still providing the largest combat manpower contribution to the United Nations Korean war effort, although South Korea has more men in uniform than all other United Nations participants combined. While the exact strength is not known, an estimated 400,000 South Koreans are in uniform, while about 300,000 Americans are fighting or directly engaged in support of the fighting.

Kerosene poured down sink drains will help to keep them clean.

Instead of keeping a linen tape measure loose in your sewing basket, wrap it around an empty adhesive-tape spool and then fasten the tape spool cover in place.

CHILDREN SHOULD HAVE PETS

Nothing gives a child more happiness than to be allowed to own pets. However, the child that has a pet should be required to care for it as far as he is able.

The very helplessness of their dumb playmates will appeal to the better nature of children. Caring for pets teaches the child thoughtfulness, patience and tenderness.

Inquiry was made some time ago, among a group of youthful criminals, and it was discovered that only a very few of them had ever owned a pet in childhood.

A lady told me recently that a little boy stopped at her door, and asked for food. She told him to sit on the steps while he ate. He declined, saying that he would take something in his hand.

She watched him to see if he would throw the food away, but he crossed the street where his dog was obediently waiting for him. He divided the food exactly in half, ate one-half himself and gave his dog the other half.

It is safe to assume that this boy will not be found later in life among a gang of criminals and law-breakers. He knows the law of kindness, love and unselfishness as was exemplified in his consideration for his dog.

Yes, let your children have pets, with kindness. The children will learn that dumb creatures need but see to it that they are treated love, that they appreciate and respond to it. They will also learn that as they hunger and thirst, so does Rover or Tabby.

The devotion of their animal friends will help them to realize that as we give love, we get it back. A selfish child will grow up into a selfish adult. The child will learn unselfishness from caring for his pets.

When the child has a pet, even though he doesn't feel like doing it, he must be made to understand that its wants must be attended to. He will in this way perceive a little of the sacrifices that others make for him.

It helps a child to realize that his parents are always toiling, sacrificing and planning for his comfort and welfare, so he in turn must care for his pets who cannot care for themselves.

ABOUT YOUR HOME
(By Frances Dell)

Every child in school should have a quiet, well-lighted, comfortable place in the home in which to study and do home work. If a child is not making the grades he should, this may be the thing that is missing.

We are told that modern children lack the power of concentration found in their grandmother's day. Today, modern houses are usually small and privacy is almost a thing of the past.

Junior, in most homes, has to do his lessons amid all kinds of distractions, from the radio to mother's bridge club's conversation. It is easy to see that this sort of thing does nothing to develop the power of concentration in the average child.

Even though your house is small, make every effort to give your children this much-needed privacy. If nothing more, set aside a certain period of the afternoon or evening as a study period.

The importance of a good reading lamp and a proper posture, chair should not be overlooked. Both can have a definite bearing on a child's health. A lot of us may think we know a good reading lamp when we see one, but actually do not. Before you buy just any lamp, talk to a reliable salesman about the latest type bulb as well as lamp.

There are many good posture chairs on the market. It should be comfortable and the right size for the child. Usually, a desk chair or a dining room chair is fine for this purpose.

D.A.V. AUXILIARY MEETS FEB. 10th

The Chilton County Chapter No. 33 D.A.V. Auxiliary, will meet on Tuesday, February 10th, at the City Grill. Time is 7:30 o'clock, p.m.

Despite the wild rejoicing which took place in Montgomery on the announcement that Alabama had seceded from the Union, in 1861, there was considerable disappointment in north Alabama because the ordinance of secession had not been referred to a popular vote. The anti-slavery feeling was so strong that formation of a new pro-Union state—to be called Nickajack—was proposed. It was to be formed by the counties of north Alabama and possibly by adjacent counties of Georgia and Eastern Tennessee. But most of this factionalism was soon forgotten in a common cause.

"OPERATIONS COWBOY"

Montgomery, Ala. — The State Highway Patrol has started "Operations Cowboy."

Alabama Public Safety Director L. B. Sullivan says that livestock running loose on highways will be picked up, and has named Patrolman Harry L. Reynolds to a roving assignment to range the roads for cattle on the loose.

Reynolds, a former cattle farmer, has been given a radio-equipped state truck. He will work where the need is greatest, moving from county to county.

Tighter enforcement of the 1951 stock law will mean additional expense to the owners of animals picked up and impounded. The livestock can be claimed by the owner only after paying pickup fee and the cost of feeding and care. The fee is $10 for the first, and $1 for each additional cow, hog, sheep or goat belonging to the same owner.

TERRACE ENDS

The biggest weakness in many terracing jobs has been the failure to provide enough outlets for safe disposal of water from terrace ends.

Sequoyah a crippled Cherokee Indian, who had fought with Gen. Andrew Jackson at Horseshoe Bend, invented a Cherokee alphabet. This made possible a written language. In 1828 the 'Cherokee Phenix' began publication in both English and Cherokee languages.

Time To Get Range Ready For Pullets

Auburn, Ala. — Now is the time to get the range ready for pullets, says John Weeks, API Extension poultry specialist.

He points out that a good range will add to the success of all laying and hatchery flocks. It will help turn out healthy, vigorous pullets.

Many growers throughout Alabama have found they can range about 350 pullets per acre on a good crop of alfalfa, white clover, lespedeza, or a mixture of some of these legumes and grasses.

Weeks reminds poultrymen that a shade is very important in the range program. If dogs and foxes are a problem on the range, it is best to build the shelters so that they can be closed at night. Otherwise, use any type of range shelter that will provide shade and protect birds from storms and rain.

GORGAS NOMINATED FOR HALL OF FAME

Birmingham, Ala. — The late Dr. William Crawford Gorgas, famed medical leader, has been nominated for Alabama's Hall of Fame.

A group headed by Thomas W. Martin, Alabama Power Company board chairman, sent the nomination of the Hall of Fame Committee, headed by Joe N. Greene, Birmingham.

Dr. Gorgas, who was born in Toulminville, Ala., in 1854, is known mainly for ridding the Panama Canal Zone of Yellow fever, thus permitting completion of the canal. He died in 1920.

Joining Martin in the nomination were: Dr. O. C. Carmichael, New York, president of the Carnegie Foundation for Advancement of Teaching; Dr. John M. Gallalee, president of the University of Alabama; Dr. Ralph B. Draughon, president of Alabama Polytechnic Institute; Dr. George V. Denny, chancellor emeritus of the University.

Gen. Robert E. Noble, Anniston; Dr. James S. McLester, Dr. M. Y. Dabney, Dr. Seale Harris, Dr. D. J. Durrett and Dr. J. M. Mason III, all of Birmingham; Dr. David F. Sellers, Dr. Toulmin Gaines and Dr. N. R. Clark, all of Mobile; and Dr. B. W. McNease, Fayette, president of the Alabama Medical Society.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

In 1830 the Alabama legislature chartered the Tuscumbia Railway company to build a road from Tuscumbia to the present site of Sheffield. The distance to be covered was about two miles.

The earlier railroad tracks were made of rails of wood which had iron strips along the top. There were no locomotives. Horses or mules hitched in single file pulled the cars.

In 1834 a steamboat brought up the Tennessee the first steam railroad engine for use on the Tuscumbia and Decatur line. On its first trip from Tuscumbia to Decatur, huge crowds turned out all along the line to see and cheer the steam locomotive. It moved at a rate of speed of only five to ten miles per hour, and unfortunately was not strong enough for the job. Mules were again used to pull the cars and were kept at work until improved engines could be had.

You'll know the DIFFERENCE in NATURAL CHILEAN NITRATE when you see the DIFFERENCE in results!

The nitrogen content of Chilean Nitrate is 100% nitrate nitrogen — 100% available — 100% fast-acting — 100% dependable.

No antidote is necessary. Chilean Nitrate is non-acid forming.

Rich in sodium and minor elements. Chilean Nitrate is rich in beneficial sodium that makes a stronger, deeper root system — improves crop health, vigor and nutritive value. It also contains small quantities of essential minor elements.

Noted for all-round efficiency. Quick-acting 100% nitrate nitrogen makes rapid, sturdy growth. Its 26% sodium content acts like potash when necessary and helps to increase the supply of available phosphate in the soil.

Chilean Nitrate's free flowing pellets guarantee rapid, accurate distribution under all conditions. No special precautions needed.

Helps maintain productivity of your land. When used consistently in a sound farming program, Chilean Nitrate builds up fertility, increases efficiency.

Year after year. Natural Chilean Nitrate increases yields — improves quality — defends against disease — fortifies against insect injury — counteracts soil acidity. Use Chilean Nitrate for solid satisfaction!

House Republicans Really Mean Business On Budget Slashing

(By Frank van der Linden)

(Editor's Note: Mr. Van der Linden, a veteran Washington newsman for ten years, will from time to time submit exclusive articles from Washington to all Editor's Copy associate papers. His first article appears below. Other articles from Washington, by Edward H. Sims and Stanley James, will, of course, continue. Editor's Copy is always striving to give you the best Washington service available, at minor cost and welcomes your suggestions at all times.)

* * *

Washington. — The Republicans really mean business when they talk about slashing billions off the 78.6 billion-dollar budget which President Truman sent to Congress as his farewell report.

The party which took control of the national government January 20 has to keep campaign pledges of economy and lower taxes, so there is only one way to do those things: Cut spending.

One obvious target for a meat-axe is foreign aid. It is likely to be trimmed by three or four billion dollars. Republican Congressman Glenn Davis of Wisconsin, a member of the House Appropriations Committee, mentioned this as a high-priority target for his cutting, in an interview with this correspondent.

Davis, as chairman of the Army civil functions subcommittee on Appropriations, also vowed he would block all new river projects not proved to be vital to national defense. He said the day of log-rolling and pork-barreling is ending. "We've got to cut this budget," he declared. "Our chairman, John Taber of New York, really means it."

Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said several billions can be pared off the budget sent in by the retiring President. Bridges predicted a new Republican budget would be submitted, leaving out a number of Democratic programs. Then, he indicated, the Republicans in Congress might even lop some more off that.

One thing is likely: The Republicans on Capitol Hill will want to cut foreign aid and defense spending even more than their new President, Dwight Eisenhower, will. Ike is more or less committed to both programs as the former commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces. In fact, some of his friends are saying it will be impossible to cut taxes this year, because military funds must be kept so high.

True, defense and aid to Allies takes about eighty per cent of the budget, leaving only about fifteen billion dollars for the civilian part of the government. Cuts must be made everywhere, in defense and civilian agencies, to achieve the goal of a balanced budget, Rep. Davis says.

Arrange Convenient Home Sewing Center

"Therefore," advises Kathleen Thompson, API Extension clothing specialist, "Homemakers should equip a single, compact, portable set-up that can be located in any room suitable for sewing."

SCARS ON THE SOUL

THE story is told of a little girl who frequently gave way to fits of temper until she was taught a lifelong lesson. "Every time you fly into a temper," her father told her one day, "I will pound a nail into our gatepost."

It wasn't long until the gatepost showed a large number of nails. Finally, the little girl grew truly ashamed of herself, and promised to make a serious effort at self-control. To encourage her, the father promised that every time she did some deed of kindness, he would pull out a nail.

The plan worked well. The day came when there was only one nail left. As the father drew it out of the post, the girl clapped her hands and cried: "See, now they are all gone!"

"Yes," smiled her father, only to add gravely: "But notice how the scars still remain."

The story illustrates a truth that is important for those sincere men and women who have repented their sins, but often are tortured by the memories of their transgressions. They know that God has forgiven their sins, but they seemingly cannot forget the scars they have left upon their souls.

A lively memory is a blessed faculty. It should not be used to breed needless misery. Those who tend to mull over past misdeeds should remind themselves that the only thing that matters is that they have been pardoned. They must understand that God's mercy does not involve burying their sins in amnesia. They must remember that scratching old scars means opening their souls to what may be the fatal infection of despair

Alabama Automobile Tag Revenue Falls

Montgomery, Ala. — State Revenue Commissioner Joe M. Edwards says that although there were 53,853 more passenger cars licensed receipts from auto tags fell from $9,531,408 during the first quarter of 1951-52, to $4,760,698.

Edwards said 669,569 motor vehicles were registered during the three-month period ending last December, compared with 611,818 the previous year. The $3 auto tag authorized by the 1951 legislature went on sale last October for the first time.

Cities and Counties didn't lose any money. The legislature had upped their share of tag receipts from 30 to 63 per cent.

The county gross rose from $1,237,088 to $1,536,414. The cities' portion increased from $1,397,603 to $1,462,844.

Most of the increased registration came in passenger cars which accounted for 506,203 license tags during the three-month period, an increase of 53,853 over the previous year.

Un-American Teachings Not Tolerated In Alabama Schools

Montgomery, Ala. — The State Board of Education has ruled that subversive or un-American teaching won't be tolerated in Alabama public schools and that goes for textbook content.

The resolution was adopted here instructing the State School Head Dr. W. J. Terry to make the board's position known to textbook publishers. It was a substitute for a previously offered resolution which would have required textbook publishers, editors and illustrators to take loyalty oaths.

The board asked Terry to inform textbook publishers that they will be "expected to exercise strictest caution against inclusion of materials that advance the causes of communism or facism."

The resolution said "no teaching or textbook subversive or foreign to American traditions will be tolerated."

It was prepared by a sub-committee headed by Col. Harry M. Ayers, publisher of the Anniston Star, as a substitute for the loyalty oath proposal.

Passage of the resolution came after a fuss raised by Birmingham business groups against a 12th grade text, "The Challenge of Democracy," adopted for use this year. They objected to the book on grounds that it was "socialistic." After conferences with the textbook editors the offending passages were re-written or deleted.

FLU CASES HIT NEW HIGH

Montgomery, Ala. — Influenza hit a new high in Alabama last week, raising nearly 500 per cent over the previous week.

Four counties — Houston, Lee, Limestone and Dale, reported more than half of the 14,404 cases counted, the State Health Department said. Houston led with 3,235. Lee had 2,384; Limestone 1,651 and Dale 1,338.

Other counties turned in these totals: Macon 733; Monroe 694; Choctaw 594; Cullman 469; Henry 455; Franklin 375; Hale 250; Pike 241; Colbert 215; Lowndes 180; Sumter 168; Geneva 138; Perry 135; Lauderdale 133; St. Clair 122; Walker 120; and Morgan 117.

Fewer than 100 cases were listed in all other counties

Give Home Gardens Boost This Month

Fresh vegetables that will be ready for harvest in a fairly short time if planted now are mustard, tender greens, Shogoin turnips, radishes, and onions. Irish potatoes, carrots, beets, lettuce, kale, and cabbage are often planted in mid-February.

John Bagby, API Extension horticulturist, reminds growers that a good application of well-rotted stable or poultry manure mixed with the soil will speed up vegetable growth in cool weather. Also, two quarts per 100 feet of row of any fertilizer recommended for cotton should be worked into the soil at the time vegetables are planted.

Bagby adds that a side dressing of one pint of nitrate of soda to 100 feet of row when plants are up to a good stand will help.

Dr. Hayes is doing business at the same old stand—his hospital on 6th Street. His phone is 246.

"The wool for this suit I am wearing," observed Smith, "was grown in Wyoming. The cloth was woven in Massachusetts. The thread came from England. The suit was made in Chicago and I bought it in San Francisco."

"So what?" commented his companion. "Don't see anything so remarkable in that."

"But isn't it wonderful," continued Smith, 'that so many people can make a living out of something I haven't paid for?"

This is National Boy Scout Week you know and the local Troop had quite an impressive ceremony Monday night at the City Hall. There are more than 3,250,000 Scouts of all classes in the United States which is a lot of boys. Having been a Boy Scout during our teen years, we know they get the right training and instruction. There is nothing that can mean more to a boy than his affiliation with this organization in his youth and more of our boys should be encouraged to join the Boy Scouts.

Mr. W. C. Erwin has retired as local agent at the L. & N. Railroad. He has been an employee of the L. & N. for the past 42 years, having spent practically all of that time as agent at towns between Clanton and Birmingham. He first started work for the L. & N. at Hartselle, Ala., his home and that was the year 1911. In 1915 he moved to Thorsby as agent and five years later, in 1920, he went to Jemison. In 1932 he went to Calera and stayed there until 1946 when he came to Clanton where he has remained until his retirement. Mr. Erwin says he will lay around for a while to try and regain his health, after which time he thinks he will remain in Clanton and go into business for himself. You know it's a funny thing. But once a fellow gets to Clanton and lives a while—it's very seldom that he ever leaves it. We wish much pleasure in Mr. Erwin's retirement for himself. However, after 442 years it'll probably be pretty hard learning how to loaf.

Financing God's Work: It is unthinkable that God has no plan for financing His Kingdom. He has a plan for running the universe, sending night and day, the seasons of the year, propogating the race and saving a soul. We all know that God's business is the greatest business in all the world. Surely we know that God would not leave the financing of His Kingdom to mere caprice. Surely the Master Who died for a world and commissioned His people to carry His gospel to the ends of the earth, has some plan of financing that work. God is a God of harmony and plan and He has a definite plan taught in both the Old and New Testaments. That plan is tithing.

We cannot put tithing strictly under the law, and say that it is not taught anywhere else and be true to the Scriptures. The Patriarchs in the dim early ages recognized the tithe as a reasonable proportion to be offered to Jehovah. Abraham "gave a tenth of all" to Melchizedek, priest of God most high. Gen. 14:20. This was before the Levitical law was given. In the hour of blessed spiritual vision Jacob vowed a solemn vow: "Of all that Thou shalt give me, I will surely give the tenth unto Thee." Gen. 28:22. The Holy Spirit through Moses wrote the tenth into the Levitical system. Lev. 27:30. Thus through the centuries from Moses to Christ, God's people in accordance with His own express command, made the tenth the basis of their giving. It should be remembered that the tenth was the basis of their giving and not the sum of it.

The Jew lived in a dim light and hope of a promised Messiah; the Christian lives in the glorious light of an offered Sacrifice, and worships and serves a risen and living Saviour. Would anyone dare suggest that God's requirement for the Christian is less than that which was imposed upon the Jew?

The question often arises: 'Is not tithing strictly an Old Testament regulation? Does the New Testament teach Tithing?" These questions will be discussed in a later article. — L. E. Daniel.

Scanning the NEWS

● Farmers in every section of the United States have been concerned over the decline of farm prices for the past five months. This worry has not been confined to any one group in the farming industry, that is, the farmer who concentrates on a particular crop or one kind of livestock. All have been worried and with considerable justification.

The decline now amounts to approximately 11 per cent under what prices were at this time last year. A number of farm leaders have reported they see no indication of a halt in sliding farm prices.

The result has been a low rumbling of discontent among congressmen from the great farming states. If prices continue to decline that rumbling will grow in the next few weeks and may force the administration to take quick action to stabilize farm markets.

In the past special groups have used congressional pressure to secure legislation beneficial to that group. This may be the first such contest under the new administration. It will be interesting to watch and may give a good indication of things to come.

A stable farm market is a necessity to a stable national economy. But the new administration will move with care, it is predicted, because any action in this problem may well set a pattern of action in other segments of the nation's economy.

● The Wilson affair will leave its mark upon the Eisenhower administration, season political observers are predicting.

In the first place, a number of senators, both Republicans and Democrats, were unhappy over Mr. Wilson's first appearance before the senate committee that investigated his appointment and his holdings in General Motors. He created a bad impression. He did much to erase this impression during his second appearance, but the damage had already been done.

And second, as one famous columnist and political observer pointed out, that however strong the Eisenhower team might be on organization, efficiency, management and what not, it has shown an ineptitude in the political game. This columnist said it would be well if "nobody else allows himself to indulge in the rather lazy notion that running a big business and running a big government are the same thing."

Third, and possibly most important, the Republicans themselves dramatized the suggestion that the Democrats have carefully planted, namely, that the Republican party is still the party of money.

It is now generally agreed there will not be much opposition by the Democrat party during the first few months of the Eisenhower administration. But the opposition will pick up as time moves along and will be centered for most part on the "money party" angle.

● The Korean War, momentarily shoved aside by the inauguration and the new administration's attempt to hit its stride, was back in the news with the report of an attack by U. S. soldiers that failed and which resulted in numerous casualties.

It brought to mind the unanswered question of President Eisenhower's plans for Korea. The Korean deadlock is again the No. 1 item on the administration's agenda.

The first move, perhaps, is Eisenhower's decision to remove the U.S. Fleet from the Formosa Strait and to permit the Chinese Nationalists to attack the mainland. The fleet will continue in the area, however, to prevent any attack by the Communists on Formosa.

Lavone Smith Is Future Farmer Of The Year

Alabama's Future Farmer of the Year for 1953 is Lavone Smith, 18-year-old Arab High School graduate, who operates a 79-acre dairy and hog farm. He was chosen from more than 12,000 FFA members in the state and will receive the $300 Turner E. Smith Educational Award.

The State's outstanding FFA member is chosen each year on the basis of his abilities and accomplishments in agriculture, leadership in FFA, school and community activities, character and personality.

Lavone, only child of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Smith, of Rt. 3, Arab, was named Star State Farmer last year for having the most outstanding FFA program of those receiving the State Farmer Degree. He also won the Dairy Showmanship Award at the State Dairy Show which gave him an all expense paid trip to the National FFA Convention in Kansas City.

According to O. R. Dennis, his FFA adviser and Vo-Ag teacher, Lavone has carried out an outstanding program ever since he first enrolled in vocational agriculture in the fall of 1949. His first years vo-ag farming program included: 1 brood sow, 2 dairy cows, 2 heifers, 10 fat hogs, 1 bull and 3 acres of corn. His first year's earnings were $797.88.

He has continued to expand this farming program each year. His projects have increased to 15 dairy cows, 10 brood sows, 75 fat hogs, 3 bulls, 1 boar, 35 acres of corn and 7 acres of hay. He has planted 20 acres of winter legumes and has 8 acres of improved pasture.

Lavone has served as vice-president of the Arab FFA Chapter, is now president of the local Farm Bureau and is a member of the Board of Directors of the Marshall County Jersey Cattle Club.

He owns a tractor and equipment, has built a new barn, and plans to build a Grade A Dairy barn this Fall, a new house in the near future, and buy additional land. His total worth at present is $13,455.

Clever Safety Programs Led By Small Town Women

"America owes a debt of gratitude to rural and small town women for saving lives through their ingenious and unselfish work for the cause of traffic safety." That was the statement made recently by Ned Dearborn, president of the National Safety Council.

The occasion was the judging of nominees for the Carol Lane Award for Traffic Safety, established recently through a grant of Shell Oil Company. The Carol Lane Award offers each year a $1,000 defense bond and three additional prizes to those American women who make the most outstanding contributions to traffic safety.

Mr. Dearborn said that he was tremendously impressed by the number and quality of the entries from small towns and rural areas. He attributed the fact to higher community spirit and neighborliness there.

In Florida, for instance, Mrs. Sara Griffen Hughes, president of the Pilot Club, is credited with organizing the state-wide project to eliminate a major hazard on rural highways—jutting roadside mailboxes.

Mrs. Hughes' answer was "turnouts,"—or central rural mail box stations every four miles along country roads. Today there are 25 such clover-leaf stations where mail can be delivered and picked up safely and where, incidentally, school buses can turn around with freedom from accidents.

Mr. Dearborn also cited the work of Mrs. Sidney Arnold, an Arkansas PTA safety chairman, who solicited community funds and effort to place phosphorescent tape on all children's bicycles so that they could be seen at night by country drivers.

He said a lone woman in the Lone Star state, from a community so small it's not even on the map, spearheaded the effort to establish the first safety commissions in 1200 communities last year. Texas named the new highway that runs through her home town of Mumford after her—the Lillian Collier highway.

Safety may be a grim business, Mr. Dearborn said, but rural women find plenty of room for humor in getting its lessons across. He mentioned Mrs. Henry Hight of Henderson, North Carolina, who posted a sign over mirrors in public places—which read, "Are you looking at Vance County's next accident victim?"

It is a waste of time to talk to some people.

You can best be somebody by always being yourself.

Never expect people to be interested in your ailments.

If you are in doubt about saying something don't say it.

Social security is yours wherever you decide to spend less than you earn.

Going to church adds something to living which distinguishes it from surviving.

If you want to make an enemy, ask a friend who has borrowed money to return it.

Advertising must be a good thing; so many growing businesses are profiting from it.

The victim who readily accepts speaking invitations will do plenty of speaking.

The world will be more pleasant if you stop trying to make people think like you do.

SAYS WHICH?

Did we hear someone ask: "What does Chilton County need with a new courthouse?"

Well we did hear someone ask just that, and this is what we need with the new public building.

How on earth can we expect big industry to come into Chilton County when we haven't the public pride and confidence to keep our public buildings in repair and abreast of the times?

We may as well stop crying about new industries going elsewhere and never coming to Chilton County so long as we try to live in the past instead of the future.

Look at our hospital.

Look at our courthouse.

Look at our jail.

Look at the auditorium that we need so badly, but haven't got.

Look at the public library that our children and adults so badly need and haven't got.

And take a good look again at the big industry going everywhere else, but none coming to Chilton County.

Yeah! Take a good look at the industry and payrolls we haven't got.

DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

SOME SIX YEARS ago Irving Leibovitch, 5190 Victoria, Montreal, Canada, gathered his life savings and went into business for himself. Three short years later, he discovered that the business had eaten up his entire investment, his life's savings, every last cent he had. He was bitterly discouraged and disillusioned. Life had indeed become one big problem, one big worry. He had his back to the wall; he became moody and morose. And to add to his financial difficulties, his wife was just about to give birth . . . and he had all the doctor's and hospital bills to meet.

During this period of mental distress, he chanced upon a bit of philosophy on a recording by Jan Peerce which he played over and over and over. This philosophy helped him immensely during this trying period. It goes like this:

And no matter what you have don't envy those you meet,
It's all the same, it's in the game, the bitter and the sweet.
And if things don't look so cheerful, just show a little fight,
For every bit of darkness, there's a little bit of light.

CARNEGIE

These simple lines helped him ride over the rough spots. It was like salve to an open wound. It made him realize that life was no abyss, that somewhere, somehow, there is a blue bird of happiness.

Halt Farm Price Drop Says Senator Sparkman

Senator John Sparkman joined other Senators this week in calling attention to the falling farm prices and the need to do something to prevent further decline.

"One thing that should make us stop and think seriously is the fact that in the past a farm depression has always led the way downward into a general depression," Sparkman said.

"Moreover," the Senator said, "there is a direct relationship between the welfare of the farmer and the welfare of the miner, the factory worker, and other segments of our economy. When the farmer's buying power is dangerously reduced, he unavoidly drags down with him the other parts of our economy."

Senator Sparkman stated that in his opinion the sharp decline in cotton prices since November has been due to two things:

1. Fear that the Republican Administration would not favor continuance of mandatory price supports at 90 percent of parity, and

2. Fear that a reduction in foreign aid would mean a drastic cut in, or eliminations of, exports of cotton.

The Senator remarked that this fear was further increased by President Eisenhower's failure in his message to Congress of February 2 to recommend any corrective action. Sparkman pointed out that the President's remarks on farm problems were so general that even Republican Senators from farm states criticised them.

Sparkman said: "There is not such a large carryover as to justify the present low price of cotton. Nor was there an excessive production in 1952."

Sparkman joined with other Southern Senators in support of a measure introduced by Senators Young of North Dakota and Russell, of Georgia to extend mandatory price supports at 90 percent of parity through 1957.

"Many people are critical of the price support program," Senator Sparkman said. "They believe it is a costly thing. As a matter of fact the program as a whole over the years has cost very little. By helping to avoid disastrous depressions it has indirectly saved far more than the relatively small amount it has cost. In the case of support of cotton, a net profit has been made of $250,000,000. The farm support program is really an orderly marketing program. I hope that it will not be weakened but that it will be extended so that the cotton farmer need not be afraid."

Senator Hill Urges Support Of Sagging Cattle, Hog Prices

Senator Hill has taken issue with Secretary of Agriculture Benson over his refusal to make use of the powers given him by law for helping to bolster sagging farm prices. Benson has stated that he does not believe government action is needed.

Prices received by farmers are down on the average 12 percent below a year ago, and the Agriculture Department's Chief Economist O. V. Wells has warned the Senate Agriculture Committee that farmers may expect another drop of 5 percent this year.

Hardest hit are cattle, hogs and cotton, with cotton exports less than half what they were this time last year—a loss of close to 2,000,000 bales.

Cattle prices have toppled from $31.94 a hundredweight in April, 1951, to about $19.00 in January. They are even lower this month.

Senator Hill has urged Secretary Benson to support cattle prices under the discretionary powers which the law gives him as Secretary of Agriculture. In a statement released to the press, Secretary Benson said price supports tended to prevent a balance between production and demand, and called on cattle raisers to seek more means of self-assistance.

PRINCIPLES OF BROTHERHOOD

By Charles Betts—Chief Editorial Writer New York World-Telegram & Sun.

For centuries, civilization has fought to gain and preserve the basic human rights of religious freedom, tolerance and the brotherhood of mankind.

Our nation was founded upon just such principles. Devotion to them has helped build the spiritual strength without which America could never have acheived lasting greatness.

We think it is indeed fortunate that a nationwide organization, the National Conference of Christians and Jews, has dedicated itself to keeping those ideals alive. We believe it to be of everlasting importance to lose sight of the necessity of spreading the kinship of man under God.

This is, of course, a year-around portance that a free people never proposition. But since 1934, a Brotherhood Week has been held annually under the auspices of the Conference to dramatize universal dependence on the need for true religion in the crusade for liberty and democracy. This year, Brotherhood Week will be held the week of February 15-22.

Now perhaps more than ever before, America faces a challenge from a godless philosophy that would destroy all human and religious rights. The nation is pouring out its wealth to build material strength against the threat of Communism. But despite this, the united cause against the enemy could be weakened were we to become divided by intolerance and bigotry.

Acceptance of the meaning of Brotherhood Week can help build up the spiritual and moral power vital to this fight. This newspaper is proud to support the week and urges the public to participate.

What avail are the demands of the public for economy in federal government if we don't start with economy in our local, city, county and state spending. The public is too prone to want something for nothing, just as long as its some form of governmental agency that pays the bill, whether it be city, county, state or national, and then set back on their heels and wail long and loud when the tax bill comes around.

The time has surely come when the demands of any special group seeking expenditures of public funds for betterment of a small segment of the populace of a city, or state, should be given careful study

From the Talladega Daily Home, Talladega, Alabama: Once upon a time there was a whole week in which no financial drive of any sort was underway.

But that was back in 1810 and very few now living remember it.

From the Portland Press-Herald, Portland, Maine: Some 2,600,000 civilians now work for Uncle Sam, or about 4.2 per cent of all Americans at work.

From the Ansonia Sentinel, Ansonia, Connecticut: The federal debt now totals $280,000,000,000, which means the average federal mortgage on each family is $5,860, in addition to state and local debt mortgages.

From the Littleton Courier, Littleton, New Hampshire: A man who owns a share of stock is a man who has both faith and a direct personal interest in maintaining and strengthening the free enterprise system.

From the Newark Courier-Gazette, Newark, N. Y.: A new pilot has taken over the helm of our Ship of State. General Eisenhower has pledged himself to eliminate waste, inefficiency, and duplication of service, to fight inflation, to restore integrity and competence in the management of our affairs, and to support equality of opportunity for all Americans.

A huge majority of our citizens endorsed this program and voted for "Pilot Ike" as the man to steer our Ship of State through the perilous seas that beset us. With the free world so largely dependent on America's freedom and power, once again we may say:

"Sail on, O Ship of State!
Humanity with all its fears,
With all the hopes of future years,
Is hanging breathless on thy fate!"

Arrange Convenient Home Sewing Center

"Therefore," advises Kathleen Thompson, API Extension clothing specialist, "Homemakers should equip a single, compact, portable set-up that can be located in any room suitable for sewing."

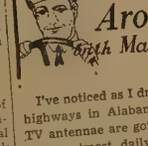
Getting Around with Mac Brown



I've noticed as I drive along the highways in Alabama that more TV antennae are going up everywhere almost daily. People are getting TV sets, even way out in the country. At the same time, I hear more radios are in use and newspaper circulation is greater than ever.

All of this means people are better informed than ever before, including poor people and those in out-of-the-way places. And it's a good sign, for the better people are informed about other people, the better everybody is going to get along.

If I'm sounding philosophical, it's because all this has a personal meaning to me. People now have a lot more respect for truck drivers like me than they use to. I believe it is because they have come to know more about us—to know that we are not demons of the highways, but just men, like themselves, making an honest living in our way just as they make one in their way; and, like them, trying to do it with all the consideration possible for others.

HIGHLAND

We are glad to report our attendance somewhat improved for both services this week. Let's everyone make a special effort to keep our attendance up as much as possible during the winter months. There is still some sickness in our community and let's remember to pray for them.

Bro. Deason was with us this week end and brought two good messages. Those who missed them missed a great blessing.

We will have a study course taught here next week beginning Monday night, February 16th. Bro. Paul Oden will teach the course. We invite all to come and study with us. If you are not a member of this church and would like to come you will have a hearty welcome to attend. Let's everyone try to come that we might get a better understanding of God's Word and the things we should do to be stronger Christians and do a greater work in our church.

Please don't forget Sunday School and Training Union next Sunday. Sunday School at 10 o'clock and Training Union at 6:30 o'clock.—Reporter.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

Ollie Blalock has really "fixed-up" his barber shop. He has redecorated throughout and the result is very pleasing. You know the definition for a barber shop. It's a clip joint. You know it's a good thing we don't have to pay barbers like we do our writers—by the word.

Rev. M. K. Vickers has done more to improve the Methodist Church in the ten months he has been here than has been accomplished in any like time. There is a spirit of co-operation there that has been needed in the past and it looks like bigger things are in store for the church.

And speaking of churches the Clanton Baptist half-million dollar building program is coming along fine. It is going to be a beautiful structure and a credit to the men and women who have worked so hard to see it completed.

Did you see the glowing tribute to Russell Williams in Sunday's paper. In case you missed it, here it is:

A Howard College student, Russell Williams, will play the leading role in his own one-act play this afternoon at 3 p.m. over WBRC.

This is a feature of the Festival of Arts, presented by John Newfield, director of the drama department at Howard College.

The play, "Freedom Is A Hard-Bought Thing," is based on the Stephen Vincent Benet short story by the same title. Williams produced the play while a student in Newfield's playwriting class the first semester.

Williams is vice president of the Howard Masquers, won a drama department "Oscup" for a bit part in "Mad Woman of Chailot." He is currently cast as the Examiner in "Outward Bound" to be presented as a theater-in-the-round production by Howard College March 3-6.

Looks like congratulations are in order.

Fred Steen is up and out again after a bout with the flu. He has been missing on our highways since early January and tells us that he hasn't entirely regained his strength yet. After he licked the flu, complications set in and he had quite a time, having spent one week at the hospital, another week at home in bed and then three weeks trying to get over it all and back to work. Fred Steen has made many friends since coming here with the State Highway Patrol and we're glad he's able to be up and at work again.

A Few Jemison F.F.A. Activities

The members of the first year vocational agriculture class have studied selecting and producing plants for early and big crops of tomatoes. They have also pruned some trees in the FFA orchard.

The second year class members have studied incubating and brooding chickens. They have pruned some and assisted with setting shrubs on the school grounds.

The third year members have studied selecting land, fertilizing, securing plants and setting tomato plants. They, too, have helped in the FFA orchard.

The regular FFA meeting was held in the vocational building with Charles Williams, President, presiding. Several items of business were conducted. The chapter members voted unanimously to purchase a camera for chapter use. Plans were discussed to raise money for some additional shop equipment and it was decided that we would sell magazines again this year. Plans were made to improve the FFA roadside stand and a joint social with the FHA was planned for the latter part of this month. Plans were also made to hold a father-son meeting during the month of March.—Ronnie Shaw, Reporter.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

The Citizens Committee for the Hoover Report has reorganized and is destined to play a big part in the new Administration's government reorganization programs. Activated in 1947, the Hoover Commission, as it is most often called, dissolved in June, 1952, in order "to avoid becoming involved in campaigns and elections."

Since its founding the Commission has advocated major changes in various parts of the government. A spokesman for the Commission says it is presently backing 20 specific proposals which it has unsuccessfully pushed the past two years. Among the proposals are those to reorganize the Executive Branch of the government so as to give more adequate assistance to the President; decentralize Civil Service operations and make it easier for personnel to transfer from one agency to another; and do away with Senate confirmation of postmaster appointments in order to curb political favoritism.

Congress has tackled problems of changes in government since 1912, but no significant developments came until after 1947. One of the most recently publicized plans adopted by Congress was a law passed in 1952 which placed all jobs in the Bureau of Internal Revenue under Civil Service except that of the top Commissioner. Under the law the 64 offices of Collector of Internal Revenue were abolished.

Current interest in government changes is pointed out by the 16 reorganization bills introduced by one House member on the opening day of the present Congress. Numerous other bills of this nature have been offered since then. Although some of the proposed changes have gained popularity, others remain highly controversial.

The Hoover Commission has not yet given up hope for plans it recommended in 1949 to establish a Department of Social Security and Education and to combine all public health functions into one major department. Bills to this effect have been introduced this year and are now being studied by the Government Operations Committee. When former President Truman endorsed bills to make the Federal Security Agency a department in 1949, Congress rejected the plans along with similar proposals by the Hoover Commission.

Another development in the reorganizatin drive took place recently when President Eisenhower signed into a law a bill which gives him executive reorganization power until April 1, 1955. Truman used the same powers from 1949-1952. The law allows the President to submit to Congress plans for changing government departments. Such plans become law 60 days after they are submitted unless disapproved by vote of a constitutional majority of either the House or Senate. A constitutional majority is a majority of all the House or Senate members, rather than the majority of those who are present when the voting takes place.

With the renewed interest in reorganization of the movement, this year could see big changes in some branches of the national government.

Veterans Testify—

Representatives from three major veterans groups appeared at our recent Veterans Affairs Committee meeting to give their suggestions for this year's legislative program.

Those who testified were from the American Legion, AMVETS and Disabled American veterans. They told the committee they would be against any efforts to increase the present four per cent interest rate on GI home loans. They also recommended approval of an emergency $15 million appropriation for the VA hospital program in order to prevent it from "further deterioration."

The chairman of our Committee has notified me that I am to serve on two Veterans Affairs subcommittees. These are Administration and Finance in the Veterans Administration, and Insurance. The study and research which will be my duty as a member of these subcommittees will, I am sure, be of tremendous interest.

Attends Scout Meeting—

I was very pleased to be one of about 60 guests paying tribute to the Boy Scouts of America recently at a breakfast commemorating their 43rd Anniversary. Present on this occasion were several cabinet members and Congressmen and a group of outstanding Scout leaders from over the nation. During the breakfast, we were given a view of the major Scout plans for this year, including a gigantic jamboree in California in July.

After this event, the Boy Scouts went to see President Eisenhower. They later visited the Supreme Court and other branches of the government.

They will attend the State Good Citizenship Pilgrimage in Montgomery on the 20th and 21st of this month.

F.H.A. Met At Chilton High

Wednesday, February 11th, the members of the County Council of the F.H.A. met in the Clanton High School Home Economics Department. There were approximately 45 members present.

The vice-president, because of the president's absence, called the meeting to order, and we started the program by repeating the F.H.A. creed. We were then asked to sing the F.H.A. song together before the business was discussed.

Mrs. Williams gave some very interesting information about the selection of officers and the elimination of "Miss F.H.A." There was much discussion about these things and we decided the method by which the officers would be selected for next year.

The "Miss F.H.A." contest to select the "Miss F.H.A." for the county will be held at Jemison the night of the senior play which takes place in May. The secretary is to write to The Birmingham News, Avondale Mills, and the A.E.A. office to get the judges for this contest.

Refreshments were served by the Home Economic girls from Clanton. The table was decorated with red hearts and camellias. Everyone enjoyed the heart decorated cup cakes and punch.—Mary Ellen Blackmon, Reporter.

Two Injured In Week-End Accidents Over The County

Two people were injured in week end automobile accidents in Chilton County.

At Lomax, three miles north of Clanton, Mrs. Annie Killingsworth Grace, age 75, was seriously injured when she walked into the side of an automobile while crossing the highway in front of her home. The accident occurred Saturday afternoon about 3 o'clock.

Mrs. Grace had been across the highway for water and was returning home when the accident occurred.

The automobile involved was driven by Charles E. Garzarek, 808-21st Street, Ensley, Alabama. Mr. Garzarek is a Crane operator for the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company.

Mrs. Grace was taken to Central Alabama Hospital and later transferred to a Selma Hospital. She was badly bruised about the head and chest and her right arm was broken. Investigator Fred Steen stated that there was possibly a skull fracture.

Sunday night five negro men, members of the armed forces, were in a wreck at Cooper in which only one car was involved State Highway Patrolman Steen stated that the negroes automobile turned over several times and ended up jammed back first into the garage of Jim Cooper. He also stated the automobile was badly damaged, having, after turning over several times, been jammed between a tree and a electric pole before crashing into the garage.

A Notice To War Veterans

Montgomery, Ala. — World War II veterans taking GI Bill training were reminded today by the Veterans Administration that reports of their 1952 earnings must be submitted to their VA regional offices no later than March 1, 1953.

Failure to submit the reports by the deadline, Harley A. Smith Manager of the Alabama VA Regional Office, warned, may result in discontinuance of GI subsistence payments until such time as the reports reach VA.

Trainees who haven't yet received the report forms may obtain them from their instructors.

First, they are used by VA as the basis for adjusting each veteran's subsistence for the current year, 1953.

And second, they are part of the veteran's course of instruction in farm accounting, thus giving him the chance to put into practice what he has learned in the classroom.

The reports, however, do not apply to those in training under the new Korean GI Bill, since their monthly allowances are computed on a different basis.

"TELLING OF NEW YORK"

United Nations' Headquarters Rapidly Drawing Sightseers

(By Jack Tell)

Whether one believes the United Nations is a mere propaganda forum or the world's greatest Parliament, the headquarters in New York City is rapidly becoming the No. 1 sightseeing must. Since the guided tours began last November, the rush of visitors has been such that the United Nations promises to surpass the Statue of Liberty (with her 600,000 viewers-a-year) as an attraction for out-of-towners.

The U. N. Headquarters, a recent addition to New York's skyline, is situated in the heart of Manhattan between Forty-second and Forty-seventh Streets on the bank of the East River. Occupying 18 acres, it is a city within a city walking distance (four blocks) of Grand Central Terminal, or a nine-minute 10-cent bus ride from Times Square or 45 cents by cab from Pennsylvania Station. This majestic world center is dominated by the 39 story Secretariat, which serves as office for the permanent staff of 3,500.

Companion structures include the five-story Conference Building, or "the workshop," or providing quarters for the innumerable committees and also a social haven for the delegates; the General Assembly Building, now receiving its finishing touches, where the foremost statesmen of sixty member nations meet when the Assembly is in session, and the six-story Library Building, which was purchased and remodeled and the only one not designed by the international committee of distinguished architects.

The high Secretariat is built along modern architectural lines using extensive areas of glass. It is a comparatively narrow building for its height. The long, wide Assembly Building is rectangular and so low it seems to hug the ground except where the roof begins to slope upward supporting a hugh glass dome. The inobstructive Conference Building, skirting the river front and pierced by Franklin D. Roosevelt Drive, is as low and broad as the Secretariat is high and narrow.

The total cost after five years of continuous battle with blueprints has finally been established at $67,500,000. This was made possible by a $65,000,000 loan from the United States Government granted in 1948 and repayable in thirty-two installments of varying amounts. Two payments have been made and the entire loan is to be repaid by 1982.

Admission to the area and buildings, open every day of the year, is free and patronage of the paid tours is optional. Prices are $1 for adults (or 75 cents in groups of ten) and 50 cents for students. There is no charge for uniformed service men. The American Association of the United Nations handles all requirements for student party arrangements. An average of 5,000 ticket-holders is admitted daily for General Assembly or committee meetings for which cards are free on request. The General Assembly chamber with 750 seats for delegates and 270 seats for official observers will accommodate 800 visitors and 234 members of the press.

A Gift Bazaar,, in the basement of the General Assembly Building adjacent to the spot where sightseeing tours start their rounds, is a colorful series of shops selling arts and crafts from 40 member nations. It is operated on a commercial basis with all prices scaled to cover import duties. Most of the merchandise is popular-priced. Articles like Kenya woodcarvings, Israeli and Pakistani copper works, saris and scarfs from India, modern glass from Denmark, Finland and Sweden, lacquered trays and wooden cups from the Soviet Union, ceramics and Limoges china from France, handicraft from the mountain folk of the United States and costume jewelry from nearly every remote corner of the world are neatly displayed. The sales staff is efficient and cooperative.

A Meditation or "Prayer" Room, non-denominational, simply furnished and without religious symbols, is open daily in the General Assembly Hall. Its solemn, quiet atmosphere is conducive to prayer, meditation or just plain thinking.

A visitor bound for the United Nations Headquarters is set in the proper frame of mind passing through the streamlined Forty-second Street approach to the site. In the central court of the Secretariat Building is a $50,000 ornamental fountain with the floor of its concrete pool decorated with forty-five tons of black pebbles from the Mediterranean Island of Rhodes. The fountain was paid for by school children in the United States, Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

The massive nickle bronze doors with figures symbolizing truth, peace, justice and fraternity at the main entrance to the General Assembly Building are gifts of the Canadian Government. The multi-colored Trusteeship Council chamber in the Conference Building was designed by the Danish Government.

"The United Nations houses an aspiration" is the opinion of the guards in reflecting visitors' comments. Eightseers feel a sense of participation because they helped build the headquarters. All who come are conscientous taxpayers who want to see what they got for their money. They hope they have bought at least the framework for effective collective action against aggression.

TRUCK FIRES 7 HOMES

Little Falls, N. Y. — Gasoline from a wrecked tank truck caught fire and the flames from the overturned truck swept houses and drove approximately 30 persons into the street in their night clothes Loss exceeded $100,000. The truck skidded on an icy hill, overturned and exploded at a street intersection just inside the city limits. Wind evidently blew the flaming fuel to the closely-clustered dwellings.

Utica, N. Y. — Dr. Ralph N. Schmidt, an ordained Universalist minister, recently officiated at the marriage of his father, Carl G. Schmidt, a widower, and Mrs. Madeline Genz, both of Milwaukee. Ralph N. Schmidt, Jr., was his grandfather's best man and the minister's wife was matron of honor.

Sparkman Hits Republican Farm Policy

Senator John Sparkman of Alabama stated that the farm policy as expressed in Benson's February 11th speech in Minnesota would have the inevitable effect of further depressing farm prices. In that speech Secretary Benson declared against farm price supports except as "disaster insurance."

"That interpretation," said Sparkman, "is completely contrary to a sensible application of the price support program. The price support program is intended, and since its establishment by the Democratic Administration has been used, to give the farmer an orderly marketing opportunity. Benson has in effect repudiated the price support program. His stand would wreck agriculture."

Sparkman is urging other Senate Farm leaders to join him in pressing Senator Benson to use his discretionary power as Agriculture Secretary to extend support to cattle prices, and to assure the farmer that the price support program will be continued. "The cattle industry in Alabama," he said, "is just coming into its own. A further price decline would spell disaster to many cattle growers. The same would be true of growers of other crops such as cotton, peanuts, and hogs. Now is the time for the Government to take strong action to stave off a further price drop and precent a depression, not to destroy a program that has helped to make the whole country prosperous."

The Senator again pointed out that a depression in agriculture always precedes a depression in industry. He said that without price support for cotton, for example, the price would be much lower than the present low price and that such a price would make it impossible for the thousands who depend upon cotton for a livelihood to buy farm machinery, clothing, etc., produced by other workers.

"Parity, or adequate price support," Senator Sparkman explained, "is used to give the farmer a price equally fair to him and to the consumer. It provides for an orderly marketing of crops. Thus on crops to which it is applied, it prevents a glutted market today and a scarce market tomorrow. Under it both growers and consumers get a fair break."

Senator Sparkman pointed out that during the recent Presidential campaign, Republican leaders promised full parity to the farmers. "They seem to have forgotten their promise," he said.

Wonder why, when a man is sentenced to life in the penitentiary, they say he was "given life." Seems to us his life has been taken instead of given.

We have been wondering just how long it was going to take the weekly and daily press to start taking "pot-shots" at the trash being run in the dailies under the heading of "Tallulah Tells All." Well it's started.

Now maybe since Fulton J. Sheen has been selected the TV personality of the year the hue and cry against the evils of television will cease.

Now we know the answer to the question: "How silly can they get?" We just saw a Milton Berle Show.

SEVENTH FLEET AND FORMOSA

The recent announcement by President Eisenhower that the Seventh Fleet would no longer prevent attacks on the Chinese mainland caused considerable excitement in Asian capitals. The Nationalist Chinese representative at the United Nations, Dr. T. F. Tsiang, immediately warned that the lifting of the ban would not mean an immediate invasion by National troops.

U. S. political leaders generally expressed approval of the move, although the report of it caused some anxiety in Great Britain and several other countries. The most encouraging reaction came from Formosa, itself, the only considerable land area left under Nationalist control.

A Nationalist spokesman there, who preferred not to be named, listed several important results, which could result from such an order: (1) The reimposition of the Nationalist air-sea blockade on the Chinese coast. (2) A stepped-up tempo of commando raids and air attacks on that same coast. (3) A resumption of supply service to guerillas and agents in China. (4) A possible relaxation of Chinese pressure in Korea as a result of heavier security measures which would be required along many hundreds of miles of Chinese coast.

It is assumed that the Seventh Fleet might maintain its protective role concerning Formosa, even if giving up the responsibility of preventing Nationalist attacks against the Chinese mainland. Such a policy has many advantages which outweigh possible disadvantages.

About the only thing the Communists respect, either in China or Russia, is force. A blockade, the threat of commando raids, and encouragement to guerillas on the Chinese mainland, are all arguments the Communist mind understands.

OWE OBLIGATIONS TO CHILTON COUNTY

There is a debt you owe to your home town but whatever the bill is, none will be presented to you for payment. If you do not realize the size of it, nobody will try to tell you. You know what the town has done for you, and you should know better than anybody else what you ought to do for the town.

Two questions may serve to bring the issue home to you.

When your wife and children were critically ill, was it the doctor from the city who pulled them through?

You never even thought of calling him. Your first thought was of the home town doctor, and he saved the lives of your dear ones.

When you lost your job, who gave you credit and tided you over the winter?

It certainly wasn't the store in the city that advertises "bargains" for the country shopper. The merchant of Chilton County stood by you then, as he has for others, and as he will again some time when the emergency arises.

If these things have not happened to you, they have happened to your neighbors, and you know about them. Mere money cannot pay for disinterested service such as the doctor and the merchant render under the circumstances. And these instances are not cited with the idea of wakening a feeling of obligation toward those individuals who render us signal service on extraordinary occasions, but they are brought up rather with the view of making every man, woman and child realize his partnership in the community and his responsibility in that partnership which means so much to him.

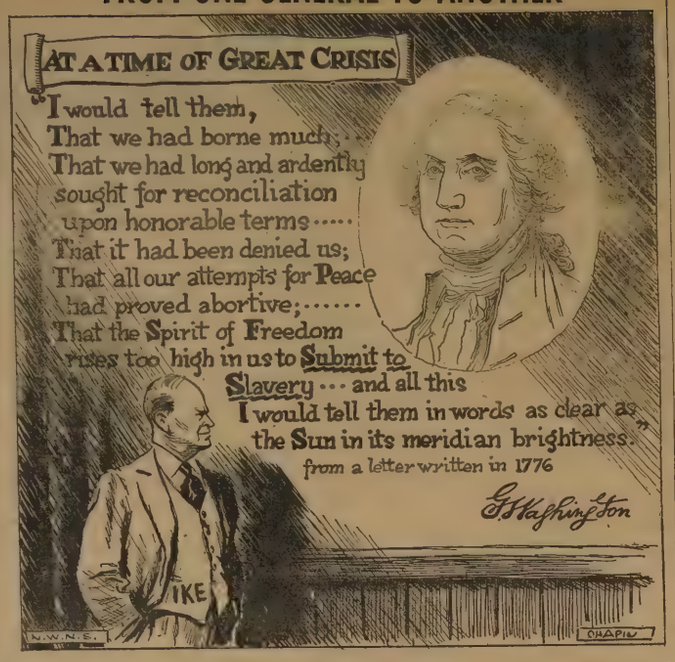
The doctor and the merchant are not the only men toward whom others in the community owe this obligation to maintain the community as a self-sustaining entity. They are simply given as examples of how the proposition works out.

Happiness and contentment bring about also a rich social life. You get together with your neighbors during moments of relaxation from your day's toil and enjoy intercourse with them. Clubs and organizations unite you in bonds that hold you together for one purpose or another.

A score of other things might be mentioned, but space forbids. There are the material things that minister to the comfort and well-being of the people. Among them are paved or macadamized streets, concrete sidewalks, corner lights, police protection, and a fire department; electric lighting for the home, water, sewer and similar improvements and conveniences.

The stronger the community spirit the more of these there are. The taxes you pay settles the bills for the things already acquired; the weight of your cooperation with the progressive leaders assures other improvements in the future. Be a home town man all along the line — Patronize home town merchants exclusively.

FROM ONE GENERAL TO ANOTHER



AT A TIME OF GREAT CRISIS
"I would tell them,
That we had borne much;
That we had long and ardently sought for reconciliation upon honorable terms.....
That it had been denied us;
That all our attempts for Peace had proved abortive;.....
That the Spirit of Freedom rises too high in us to Submit to Slavery ... and all this
I would tell them in words as clear as the Sun in its meridian brightness."

From The Lincoln Times, Lincolnton, North Carolina:

If you're still gullible enough to believe that we can pay most or even a substantial part of the incredible cost of government by "soaking the rich," some facts that Senator Walter George presented in a Look magazine article will come as a rude awakener.

If congress confiscated all taxable income over $100,000, by imposing a flat 100 per cent tax at that level, the amount of additional revenue would be sufficient to operate the Federal government for four hours.

If all taxable income over $26,000 were confiscated the yield would run the government for three days.

If everything above $10,000 was taken in toto by the tax collector, it would pay the government's bills for 16 days.

Finally, if congress shot the works by imposing a 100 per cent tax on all income above $8,000, the additional revenue would keep the government going for 22 days.

This being true, who must pay the great bulk of the government's spending—and who must pay almost all of future tax increases if they come? The answer is, people of small and moderate means—the people who work for wages and modest salaries, the people who have little businesses, the people who represent the majority of America's population and are the backbone of America's strength.

They must pay it for the simple reason that no one else can. There just aren't enough "rich" to make a dent in the spending!

From the Chickasha Star, Chickasha, Oklahoma:

An old line southern democrat telephoned the editor of the Star this week and he suggested that one of the first things Ike should do when he took office was to count or have counted the gold at Ft. Knox. This is a pregnant suggestion. They have been burying that gold there now for the last twenty years and the same bunch has counted and recounted it each time. At the end of every twenty years it might be a good idea to have a new bunch count it.

From The Galien River Gazette, Three Oaks, Michigan:

To a lay observer there appears to be one very weak spot in the new cabinet and advisory force which the President has gathered The very strength of the men he has chosen may prove a weakness. They are trained business men or professional leaders. They are accustomed to authority. They have never had to keep a public sentiment behind them when they worked. Theirs to command and who should argue with them?

In their new positions they will need both a sympathetic congress and a public. In the past many able career men have come to grief when they tried public office. President Hoover was an example of this. He was an able business man and had proven that many times. He had a keen perception of many of the problems of state but he did not maintain good public relationships and when the depression came along he was lost.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

IT'S SIMPLE TO REDUCE

The best exercise for reducing is a rapid movement of the head from right to left when the mashed potatoes and gravy are passed.

This expression is based on sound reasoning, according to Dr. Frank H. Krusen, Rochester, Minn., chairman of the Council on Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation of the American Medical Association. Proper reduction of the intake of food is the only logical method of reducing weight.

"The person who desires to reduce weight must be reasonably intelligent, strongly motivated to reduce, have sufficient will power to remain on the low-calorie diet, and realize the importance of keeping his weight down," Dr. Krusen stated in a report to the Council on Foods and Nutrition of the A.M.A.

A carefully prescribed, well-balanced, low-calorie diet is the only way to lose weight. Once a person has got over the first 10 days of the, adjustment to the new eating habit pattern, he can continue on the low-calorie regimen more easily.

"Baths, massage and exercises are only of value in a secondary role to maintain tone and elasticity of tissues which have been deprived of much adipose tissue following the reduction of weight by proper dieting," Dr. Krusen added. "Mechanical gadgets and 'spot reducing' appliances and exercises are utterly useless for removal of regional accumulations of fat."

Reducing pills, vitamin supplements, slenderizing creams, laxatives, candies to be taken just before eating, one-food diets, "Hollywood diets," seven-day and 14-day diets of bizarre ingredients, and bath powders are among the things that have been widely exploited as weight reducers.

Once proper weight is obtained, a person must be taught how to establish a pattern of normal maintainance diet. Otherwise, he almost surely will revert to his original habit pattern of excessive eating.

Teen-Age Girls Not Properly Nourished

Teen-age girls fare worse than boys of the same age as far as nutrition is concerned.

Mary Hulsey, API Extension nutritionist, points to studies made during the last 10 years that show girls generally have poorer diets than boys, especially adolescent girls.

"Of course, good nutrition for girls in the teens is very important because they are future homemakers and mothers," states the specialist. "Therefore, they need to know how and why to select the right foods for themselves and their future husbands and children."

Girls and mothers interested in proper nutrition may request a copy of "The National Food Guide," Leaflet 288, from the Office of Information, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D.C.

Good Alfalfa Year For State Farmers

Many authorities believe 1953 will be a good alfalfa year for those who follow recommendations for establishing a stand.

J. R. Parrish, API Extension dairy specialist, says indications are that seed and fertilizer will be adequate, and the price of seed will be favorable.

He adds that all dairymen know alfalfa is tops for dairy cows when used for grzing or hay. In fact, Earl Gissendanner, superintendent of the Sand Mountain Experiment Station, thinks alfalfa in combination with sweet Sudan for temporary grazing in July and August is required for successful dairying.

Time To Declare War On All Rats

This is the season when poison bait will readily control rats, according to W. A. Ruffin, API Extension entomologist.

He states that within a few short weeks rats will move out of buildings into gardens and open fields. And at this time rat families are larger, with many young present. All of these pests killed now won't cause loss of food, feed, and young poultry in the weeks and months to come.

"A very good poison bait can be made by mixing the following ingredients by weight" says Ruffin. "Use 60 per cent corn meal, 25 per cent rolled oats, 5 per cent powdered sugar, 5 per cent corn oil and other vegetable oil, and 5 per cent Warfarin. Place mixture in shallow containers not accessible to poultry and other farm animals."

The six-year-old has been learning about money. She has had her own piggy bank for several years now and has been encouraged to put her money into it although she has never been very enthusiastic about saving.

Her first question when she gets possession of a coin is always, "What will this buy?" Recently her Daddy has been trying to teach her the difference in coins and the name of each one. The other afternoon she spread out a penny, a nickel, a dime and a quarter on the table and began passing on her financial knowledge to the three-year-old.

"This," she said, pointing to the penny, "is a piece of bubble gum. This is a popsicle. This is a popsicle and a Coke. And this is a cowboy movie, a big bag of popcorn and a package of gum."

The three-year-old understood perfectly.

Every now and then when I get industrious and bake a cake, I have trouble getting the finished product out of the pan. No matter how carefully I prepare the pan, it seems that the cake will stick occasionally. Our good cook neighbor who does a lot of baking says that layer cakes can usually be loosened from the pan easily by setting the cake pan on a cold, damp cloth for a few minutes.

This same neighbor says you should sift a little powdered sugar over your cake plate before you place your fresh cake on it. The suger will keep the cake from sticking to the plate.

I learned another cake trick the other day, too. Nearly all cooks have been disappointed to find that the raisins they added to their cake batter settled to the bottom instead of behaving properly. This can be prevented by warming the raisins in the oven while you're preheating it and then adding them to the batter.

One of these days I'm going to get reckless enough to try out some of the ideas in magazines, things like the doughtree tree one current publication pictures.

To achieve this bit of cleverness, the magazine says, you stick a bare branch about four or five feet long into a pot and hang doughnuts on all the little limbs.

I keep wondering what the reaction to such a sight would be around our house.

Our neighbor down the street, the one with the big family, says she almost never has to bother about lost buttons on her children's clothes since she began sewing a small button on the underside of the material at the same time she sews the regular button in place. NEW DIRECTOR OF HOWARD COLLEGE EXTENSION DIVISION

Dr. David C. Woolley will be the new director of the Howard College Extension Division for Christian Training, effective March 1, President Harwell G. Davis announced today.

Coming to Howard from the First Baptist Church in Palatka, Fla., Dr. Woolley succeeds Dr. Hampton C. Hopkins who resigned January 1st to become pastor of the 12th Street Baptist Church in Gadsden.

Howard's Extension Division is comprised of 44 centers in every section of Alabama and had 2064 students enrolled the first semester. The division was originally established to improve the training of Baptist pastors and other religious educational workers who, for various reasons, had not been able to complete college and seminary training. The Extension centers now further provide such courses as English, history, music, and audio-visual education. Those students who are able to meet Howard's entrance requirements receive college credit for their work. Others are awarded certificates after satisfactory completion of 24 semester hours in specified curriculum.

Born in Tuscaloosa, Dr. Woolley graduated from Cloverdale High School in Montgomery and received his A.B. degree at Howard in 1930. He was further educated at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., receiving the Th. M. Degree in 1933 and the Th. D. in 1945. He has also done graduate work at Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

From 1935 to 1940 Dr. Woolley served as Student Secretary at Auburn, and from 1940 to 1942, he was State Training Union and Student Secretary for Alabama.

Since 1946 Dr. Woolley has been pastor of the First Baptist Church at Palatka, Fla., and during that time has served on the Florida State Board of Missions, has been chairman of a special Survey Committee for Convention Institutions, and has been president of the Putman County Ministerial Alliance and clerk of the St. Johns River Association.

Dr. Woolley's two assistant directors are the Rev. John B. Johnson, Gadsden, who supervises the northern Alabama section, and the Rev. Raymond Scroggins, Montgomery, who serves the southern section of the state.

Howard's Extension Division for Christian Training was established in 1947 with Dr. Gilbert L. Guffin as director. Dr. Guffin later resigned to become president of Eastern Baptist Theological Seminary in Philadelphia.

Alabama Highlights

Central Alabama was invaded by a Union army in the spring of 1865. On March 18, when the War Between the States was almost at an end, General J. H. Wilson began leading his troops across the flooded Tennessee River into Lauderdale County, against almost no opposition, for Alabama's fighting men still were fighting on other battle fronts.

By March 30, the present site of Birmingham had been reached, where Wilson destroyed the iron works. The Union General then divided his army. General John Croxton was sent to Tuscaloosa to destroy the factories and iron foundries there and to burn the State University. The other force under Wilson himself moved toward Montevallo. The two forces planned to join later at Selma.

Croxton had little trouble taking Tuscaloosa, as the University "cadets" were little more than boys and could not stop the Union soldiers. The University buildings were burned. This action was taken because it was claimed that the University was a "military school."

As a rule, Gen. Wilson's men were a well-behaved group as they took over Selma, but on the night of April 2, 1865, after drinking their fill from numerous barrels of Confederate whiskey stored in Selma, the Union soldiers became drunken thieves and plunderers. Private homes were stripped of money, jewelry, clothing, and other articles. Of course, all such property as navy yards, powder mills, rolling mills, and warehouses, was destroyed. They burned 35,000 bales of cotton, and before marching out of the ruined town, General Wilson ordered that 500 worn-out horses be shot. Their carcasses were added to the smoldering ruins.

From Selma, Wilson's force moved toward Montgomery, the "Cradle of the Confederacy." Although there was some taking of valuable property and a thorough destruction of mills, factories, and railroads, Montgomery did not suffer the fate of Selma. Neither the Capital nor the first "White House" of the Confederacy was destroyed. The citizens of Montgomery had already burned 97,000 bales of cotton to prevent the Union forces from taking them.

The Union forces moved on toward Georgia, meeting little opposition.

THE PREACHER AND HIS HEARERS

"And he sent them to preach the Kingdom of God" — Luke 9:2.

Before the earthly ministry of our Lord had progressed very far, he commissioned a group of his disciples to go through the district of Galilee and broadcast the news about the new order of things, then in its initial stage—"to preach the Kingdom of God." They were to try their fledging wings, so to speak, as representatives of the promised Messiah.

We will not undertake in this brief discussion to report the result of the primary effort toward the spread of the Christian Message, but will pause for a moment to inquire into the duty laid upon those chosen delegates.

"To preach.' In the thought of our day that word has fallen somewhat into disrepute. For example, it is not unusual to hear the forbiddening complaint, "Don't preach at me!" The idea seems to be that preaching is a compound of excoriation and condemnation, according to the personal judgement of the speaker. Webster gives this as an accepted definition of the word, 'to discourse in the manner of a preacher, now usually with implication of officiousness or tediousness."

Surrendering to this prevalent view many occupants of our pulpits are viewing the obligation to preach as an investment with diminishing returns. They are shying away from the word, and usually introduce a visiting minister as, our guest speaker for today."

The room in the church building set apart as the study is now the office." Administration takes precedence over the preaching.

Among all the words in the vocabulary of Holy Writ relative to human agency, preaching is given the supreme emphasis. The word occurs one hundred and forty-nine times in the Bible, always carrying the idea of the dignity and power of divine authority reposed in the advocates of the messengers of God.

Two conclusions, if you please. First, every pulpit appointee must hold in high honor the mission on which God has sent him. Second, all hearers must take seriously the preaching of the Word.

The story has been told of a certain preacher who took the time of his congregation one Sunday discussing some general and irrelevent theme. At the door, a little old lady quietly slipped a bit of paper into his hand. When he opened it later, he found written upon it these words: "Sir, we would see Jesus." He was a man who was able to take criticism without resenting it. Consequently, the next Sunday he went into the pulpit with a basic theme as the subject of his sermon and With conviction ringing in his voice, and at the close of the service again the little old lady slipped a note into his hands. This time it contained another Scripture verse. It read: "Then were the disciples glad when they saw the Lord."

The Meaning of Lent:

The Lenten season, originally, was a forty-day fast preceeding Easter, during which Christians were to prepare themselves for the coming of our Lord's passion, death, and resurrection. This festival came into use in the Christian church about the year, 325 A.D. The whole season was characterized by extreme austerity, fasting, and prayer.

In the modern Roman Catholic Church, Lent is observed pretty much as it was in the early days. During Lent, the devout Catholic has to follow a strict diet (no meat may be eaten), refrain from all amusements, and devote himself to prayer and fasting. That is why Catholics have such a fling on Mardi Gras; because they can't do much of anything else for the next six weeks.

Maybe you would like to know something about Mardi Gras. It is a day of unbridled revelry coming on Tuesday before Lent begins on Ash Wednesday. On the stroke of midnight Ash Wednesday morning, all fun stops and the atmosphere suddenly takes on a somber, almost funeral espect; Lent has begun. Needless to say, Mardi Gras is purely Roman Catholic and observed only by Roman Catholics.

WORLD DAY OF PRAYER

The World Day of Prayer service will be held in the Congregational Church on Friday, February 20th, at 3:00 p.m. This is an observance that is held every year, sponsored by the Department of United Church Women of the National Council of Churches. Its purpose is to bring people of different denominations together in prayer, and also to have people of all nations to pray together on the same day. Last year, World Day of Prayer services were held in 114 countries; and in this country, interdenominational services were held in 17,000 communities. The offerings in this country are divided equally between various home and foreign interdenominational missionary projects. This year the service that is to be used has been written by Christian women of Africa. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

To us Lutherans, Lent is only a pre-Easter devotional period whereby we strive to prepare our hearts for the coming of Easter. We have no fasts, dietary restrictions, or any other Roman Catholic absurbities. On the other hand, we feel that our, other Protestant do not fully appreciate the significance of Easter because they have not been especially prepared for its coming. The resurrection of Christ is the very heart and soul of Christianity. Had that great event not taken place, we would have no hope whatsoever of life beyond the grave. Because He arose, we also shall arise on that resurrection morn. We invite you to worship with us at these mid-week services.

Financing God's Work—

In a former article we dealt briefly with some Old Testament teachings on tithing. In this article I would like to discuss what the New Testament teaches about tithing in answer to the questions sometimes asked, "Is not tithing strictly an Old Testament regulation?" "Does the New Testament Teach Tithing?" Space will not allow a thorough study of the subject here, so I will, of necessity, be brief. Let examine the New Testament and see if we can briefly see what it teaches on this subject.

There is good evidence that Jesus Himself practiced tithing. In the Sermon on the Mount, our Lord set forth many basic principals of His Kingdom. He was explicit as to His attitude toward the law. Read Matthew 5:17-18. Jesus here states that He did not come to destroy the law, but to fulfill it. A more literal translation would be that He came to "fill full the law." Jesus did not come to destroy or annul the law of the tithe; rather He filled it full. He kept the law; therefore, we can safely say He tithed.

In Matthew 22:15-21, we find someone approaching Jesus concerning paying tribute to Caesar. He approves the proper support of government when He says, "Render unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's—." We all pay our taxes. Now how about the next part of the text? Jesus does not change the subject in the middle of a sentence. He does not violate all laws of language when He says,—"unto God the things which are God's." He is speaking of money just as much as He is in the first part. How are we going to determine what belongs to God (and this Scripture tells us a certain part does) unless we have some rule to go by. There is no question in my mind but that the basis was the tithe. No other plan is taught in the Word of God.

In Matthew 23:23 Jesus commended the tithe. In the midst of a heated controversy with the Pharisees in which He exposed their pretense in the external observance of the tithing law, Jesus took pains to express His approval of tithing as such, "Woe unto you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites, for ye pay tithe of mint and anise and cummin and have omitted the weightier matters of the law, judgement, mercy and faith; these ought ye to have done (tithed the mint, anise and cummin) and not to leave the other undone (judgment, mercy and faith.") In approving them for the observance of this law, Jesus approved the principle underlying the law. He very definitely placed His approval upon tithing.

Let us examine the passage found in I Cor. 16:2. "Let everyone of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him—." Is it left up to the individual to determine this amount? Then what scale or measures are you going to use to determine the amount? If we are going to interpret this passage in the light of other passages, we must say it is not up to the individual to specify the amount. There must be some way for us to measure in giving as God has prospered us. The basis the Bible gives for us to follow is the tithe. Paul must have had in mind the tithe as he admonished the Corinthian Christians to "give as God had prospered them." Tithing is God's plan for financing His work. All Christians should practice it because they love God, because the Bible teaches it, and because they want to send the gospel to the ends of the earth.—L. E. Daniel.

Been past Spud Lester's service station lately? Last time I stopped there I noticed he's put up a big sign: "Your Gas Free If We Forget to Wipe Your Windshield."

Spud grinned when I remarked about it. "Haven't had to put out any free gas yet," he said. "Don't figure I ever will. Why, wiping off a customer's windshield is just second nature to me.

"What I really put that sign up for," he went on, "was to remind my customers of the attention I like to give them. I've found out that it pays to give a little more service than the next fellow."

From where I sit, Spud has a point there. The extra effort he puts into his business is one of the main reasons for his success. Spud's formula works for ANY business. This Is Still Our BIGGEST Job...

IF you remember Teddy Roosevelt, you remember when newspapers were poorly written, poorly printed hodge-podges. They have come a long way since. A newspaper today is a well edited, easily read, streamlined production. World-wide news coverage . . .action photos. . .facts-at-a-glance makeup. . .famous comic strips. . .informative newspaper advertising that has revolutionized your buying and living. . .all these have been added in the last generation or two.

Your newspaper in 1953 not only informs you; it entertains you, too. This is a new development—one that the newspaper has shared with radio and (since the beginning of radio's decline) with television. Each medium has learned from the others. Sometimes radio or television has led the way. Often the leader has been the newspaper. And this interesting cycle of change is still going on.

But in one most significant respect the newspaper has not changed. The newspaper—and the newspaper alone—is still primarily the watchdog of the citizen's liberties. No other medium has ever shared this responsibility because no other medium is constituted or able to share it. A radio or television station is a channel; at best, a forum. Its opinions are the opinions of the commentator speaking over it at a given moment. And the words of a radio message—however dramatic their impact on the ear and mind—are lost and forgotten in a matter of minutes.

The sentences in a newspaper editorial are there for all to see, tomorrow and twenty years from now. They are on the record in black and white, a responsible statement by a responsible publication, ready to be quoted again and again, a written challenge that cannot be disregarded or denied. Nor is a newspaper subject to political pressure or threats, however subtly voiced. No Federal commission stands over the printed word, no promised subsidy granted or withheld. Newspapers are not licensed; anyone can start one. Neither is there censorship on the part of sponsor or advertiser; for here there is no sponsor—in the newspaper the advertiser buys only his space and our circulation, not the right to control an opinion not his own. Only three things govern what may or may not be published in a newspaper: the laws of libel, the rules of decency, and the wishes, tastes and interests of the reading public.

For this reason the newspaper can criticize without fear, lend support without suspicion of pandering, and view any matter objectively, from a traffic signal improvement to a declaration of war. Naturally, we are pleased when you smile at our cartoons and thrill to a well written sports story or save money by reading our ads, though we claim no monopoly of such services. Radio and television have their funny men and their sports coverage, too. We suppose you can even use their commercials as a guide to intelligent buying if you want to take the time and listen to enough stations.

But our big job is something else again. The newspaper still stands alone—absolutely alone—as the watchdog of our American liberties and the unfettered expression of the public conscience. In a very real sense, it is reason enough for our existence.

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Florence Berry, 227 Washington, Oildale, California: I remember when my father bought the first cream separator in our county in a mid-western state. People came for miles to see it. Several were disappointed, at what they thought was the lack of efficiency of this machine. They thought it turned fresh milk to butter.

From James H. Clough, Montrose, Pennsylvania: I remember when I was a boy (I'm over 80 now) how in the fall, after a few frosts, we would gather chestnuts. We would dry them and put them in a paper sack and hang them in the cellarway so they would not get too dry. Somehow a hole always got torn in the sack, just large enough for our hands, and every trip to the cellar we would get a handful of chestnuts. They never lasted the entire winter.

From W. E. Dingham, Honeoye Falls, N. Y.: I remember 75 years ago, on the farm in Pennsylvania, the boys were provided with high top leather boots at the beginning of winter. When the snow came heavy, two or three times each week we had to give those boots a coat of tallow to make them resist water. It was an evening job around the old wood stove. On cold winter mornings we used an old tin lantern, three sides were glass and the other tin, made to slide up and down, to light our way to the barn. We would put a candle inside, push down the tin side and wade through the snow to feed the stock.

From Mrs. G. H. Morris, 3231 Cleburne Road, Fort Worth, Texas: I remember when we lived in South Chicago and my father, H. J. Thompson, was one of the first plumbers in the city. There was no city water, just pumps. The plumbers job was cleaning out rain water vats and putting in pumps. Rain water was used entirely.

Best To Buy Chicks From Nearby Source

Auburn, Ala. — There are many advantages when baby chicks are bought as near the farm as possible, according to John Weeks, API Extension poultry specialist.

Chicks picked up at the hatchery can be carried to the farm and immediately put on feed. This will give them a quick start, and there will be less chance of diseased, chilled, or injured birds.

"Also," says Weeks, "the hatcheryman will be available to answer any questions about problems concerning the chicks."

He further states that if a particular strain of chicken is wanted and cannot be supplied by Alabama hatcherymen, have chicks of this strain shipped by the fastest means possible. It may be more desirable to have the hatcheryman order the eggs and hatch these chicks in his machine.

VALUE OF POULTRY LICE CONTROL

Tests at the API Experiment Station show that birds lay 20 more eggs per year when lice are controlled. At this rate lice cut egg production 1,660 dozen eggs per year on a 1,000 hen flock, or over $800 based on egg prices last year. Lice can be controlled by dusting every 100 square feet of litter with two pounds of sulphur.

Adjust Ironing Board For Better Pressing

The ironing board should be the correct height for comfort and padded to give it a smooth, even hard surface, according to Kathleen Thompson, API Extension clothing specialist.

She suggests that padding of cotton flannel, old blankets, or sheets are equally good. Padding should be smooth and free of wrinkles. Each ironing board should have several covers. They will give better service if laundered when soiled.

"A piece of asbestos cut to fit the board end of the ironing board and fastened with thumb tacks will prevent cover scorching," adds Miss Thompson.

Plenty Of Potatoes For Everybody Now

Auburn, Ala. — Remember when potatoes were scarce last year? Well, the story is different now.

Following the shortage last spring farmers increased production to supply the demand. Right now plenty of potatoes are on the market, and more are in prospect.

"Storage of potatoes grown in 1952 is now about 21 per cent larger than at this time last year," reveals A. W. Jones, API Extension marketing specialist. "Also, the potato harvest this spring, including Alabama production, is expected to be about 16 per cent larger than the 1952 crop."

Jones adds that increased supply will likely mean a more favorable price to consumers than last year.

Know Your Schools

by W. J. Terry

STATE SUPERINTENDENT

Education is a big business in Alabama. We are now spending approximately $85,000,000 per year, state and local tax funds for public elementary, and high schools. With an investment of this size in the most important business in the State it is necessary that the people be informed as to the progress that is made each year, as well as some of the problems that command the constant attention of educational leaders and lay citizens of the State.

I am pleased to announce that many of the weekly and daily papers in the State have agreed to carry an article each week dealing with education in Alabama. I trust that every citizen in Alabama will read these articles and will feel free to write me at any time. It is our sincere desire to improve the schools of Alabama. If we can succeed in this, we shall improve life in the State in every way. Let us look at a few facts about our schools. These facts are presented to give an overall view of the main factors in our school program and are based on annual reports for 1951-52:

STATISTICS 1951-52

Enrollment

Elementary Schools	437,957
High Schools	241,317
TOTAL	679,274

Teachers Employed

Elementary Schools	13,282
High Schools	9,071
TOTAL	22,353

Number of Buses in Operation 3,824

Number of School Systems

City	41
County	67
TOTAL	108

Number of School Centers (Buildings) 3,105

Articles in the future will deal with progress and problems in education in the State from a State-wide point of view.

COW WEATHER

High temperatures cause a greater decrease in milk production than low temperatures. The most favorable temperature for cows appears to be around 50 degrees Fahrenheit, both for milk production and efficient feed use.

Chilton County Training School Lions Beaten By Carver High

The Chilton County Training School Lions ran into trouble a plenty last week as their hopes for seeding in the district tournament were dampened by two losses.

Over in Montgomery the Carver High Wolverines out-clawed the Lions 44-33 last Tuesday evening, breaking their win streak at four straight.

The next day the Lions took on 'Bama State High in Hornet Gym at 3:30 and fought a gallant battle before being downed by the Gophers 67-39.

The Lions pulled ahead in the third quarter 29-26, but failed to apply the power necessary to rout the Gophers out.

Down in Autaugaville the Lions, weary from top-heavy competition, ran the second team up against a scrappy Autauga County five for the first half of a game played there. Behind eleven points, the first stringers took over and during the second half purged a deficit into a three-point lead in the fourth quarter. The Autauga boys, eager to trip the Lions, knotted the count at 47—all as the game time expired. Autauga County, unable to field a full team, failed to enter into overtime play. The Central Alabama Athletic Association President ruled each team to count for itself a half game won rather than interfere with school closing time.

The record of the Lions now stands at 6½ won, 4 lost while the Lionettes still maintain a five won no loss record.

Now that the crisis is over the two Training school teams are getting keyed up for tournament time. The Girls' tournament will be held at 'Bama State Saturday, February 21st. The Boys will wait a week later and vie February 28th at the same place.

Watch the next issue for tournament news and results of drawings for first round play. Boost the Lions.

—The Saint.

All in the Game:

Joe DiMaggio will have to wait a while before he is voted into baseball's hall of fame. The former Yankee slugger was 81 votes short of that honor in the recent voting of the Baseball Writers of America. Dizzy Dean, former St. Louis Cardinals ace, and Al Simmons, the Philadelphia Athletics' one-time slugging star, were voted into the hall of fame. They make a total of 64 names enshrined in baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N. Y. . . . A news note of interest about baseball and oil made the papers recently. Fourteen major league managers have invested in oil well drilling in south Arkansas. Of three holes drilled, two have been dry. Doesn't sound good for the coming season . . . The nation's top scoring basketball ace isn't a member of one of the big time teams voted each week as one of leading ten. He is Bevo Francis of little Rio Grande College. He has been breaking scoring records left and right all season.

DON'T let stains mar your table linens for future use. There's usually an easy way to rid them of stains if you use the right method. Here are some common stains and how to treat them.

Chocolate or cocoa stains on cottons or linens should be dipped in hot water and then washed in rich suds. Bleach any remaining stain with hydrogen peroxide. For colored fabrics, use lukewarm suds and sponge with carbon tetrachloride.

Coffee and tea stains on fine fabrics should first be sponged with warm water. Apply glycerine if the stain remains and let stand for half an hour. Rinse well then and wash in lukewarm sudsy water.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Sausage-Spaghetti Sauce
(Serves 4-6)

1 pound bulk pork sausage
1 4-ounce can mushrooms
½ clove garlic, minced
1 medium onion, chopped
Flour, salt, pepper
3 cups tomato juice
1 tablespoon worcestershire sauce

Crumble and brown pork sausage in skillet. Push to one side and remove all but 2 tablespoons fat from skillet. In this, brown mushrooms, add onion and garlic. Blend in 3 tablespoons flour, add tomato juice and cook until thickened. Add worcestershire sauce, ¾ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Simmer 30 minutes. In the meantime, cook 7 to 8 ounces spaghetti in 3 quarts boiling, salted water. When tender, drain and serve topped with sauce.

If egg or meat has marred your washable table linens, soak first in cold water, then wash in hot or lukewarm suds depending upon what the fabric can take. For non-washable materials, use carbon tetrachloride.

Grease stains should first be rubbed with soap, then washed in hot suds. If the stain remains, treat with a solvent like carbon tetrachloride.

Iron rust stains on cottons and linens respond usually to a soaking in oxalic acid solution. When the stain disappears, place in a weak ammonia solution, then rinse thoroughly.

To remove cookies from a baking tin or pan without breaking them, place a sheet of waxed paper in the bottom of the pan before arranging cookies in it. When taken out of the oven, grasp one corner of the paper and slide the cookies onto the table. The paper also prevents sticking.

Glass baking dishes that have become brown can be cleaned by soaking them in a strong solution of borax and water.

Alabama College To Hold Homecoming Feb. 19

MILDRED ALFORD

Montevallo, Ala. — Alabama College will be host to hundreds of Alumnae who will come to the campus at Montevallo from all parts of the nation during the 35th annual College Night and Homecoming festivities February 19, 20 and 21.

The traditional Homecoming program will be highlighted by luncheons, dinners, reunions, and presentation of the 1953 Alumna-Of-The-Year, selected from the college's most outstanding graduates.

Miss Mildred Alford, Gadsden graduate in the class of 1942, now Supervisor of Stewardesses for American Airlines at Fort Worth, Texas, has been singled out for this alumnae honor, according to Miss Eloise Lee, Alumnae Secretary.

Saturday, February 21, will be Homecoming Day when Alumnae activities take first place on campus. Alumnae may register that day from 8:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. in the Foyer of Reynolds Hall, or before and after each College Night performance, in Palmer Auditorium.

More than 48 Alumnae Daughters, students whose mothers attended Alabama College, will be serving as pages Homecoming Day when the morning will be devoted to tours of the campus and business meetings of the Alumnae Association.

Highlight of the day will be the annual Alumnae Homecoming Luncheon in the College Dining Room, honoring the Alumna-Of-The-Year and Alabama College President and Mrs. F. Edward Lund. Alumnae and their husbands will be guests of the College for this event.

From 4:00 to 5:00 Saturday afternoon the traditional Alumnae Association Tea will be held in the Foyer of Reynolds Hall, student Activity Building, with Alumnae Daughters serving.

Special meeting places have been set aside on campus for four Alumnae classes to hold anniversary reunions during Homecoming. Mrs. J. J. Burns, of Spring Garden, Ala., is planning the golden anniversary reunion for the class of 1903. President of the class of 1928, celebrating its silver anniversary, is Mrs. H. H. McKinnon, of Arcadia, Calif. Miss Carolyn Bialr, Maryville, Tenn., is president of the class of 1943, which will be holding its tenth reunion, and Mrs. Paul W. Green, of Talladega, Ala., president of the class of 1948, holding its fifth reunion.

Alumnae-of-the-year Alford will arrive from Fort Worth, Texas, Friday, when she will be officially presented at the all-student College Night production that evening. As an undergraduate on the Montevallo campus, Miss Alford earned her B.S. degree, with honors, in science and physical education. She was president of the Physical Education Club, member of Beta Beta Beta, honorary biology fraternity, and was named to the Dean's list each year.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. H Alford, of Gadsden, Miss Alford taught physical education and science at Fairfield High School and was employed by the Birmingham Ordnance District prior to joining American Airlines. She has held her position as Supervisor of Stewardesses since January of 1951.

Directing Homecoming plans and arrangements on the Montevallo campus is Mrs. Willsille R. Trumbauer, Montevallo, general chairman of the 1953 Homecoming. Faculty members of the Alumnae Association assisting her are Mrs. June Gentry, Miss Eloise Meroney, Miss Martha Allen, Dr. Katherine Vickery, Mrs. Virginia Barnes, Mrs. Lillian K. Ward, Mrs. Jessie F. McGaughy, and Miss Eloise Lee, all of Montevallo.

WAGE AND HOUR LAW NOT AFFECTED

Birmingham, Ala. — Homer E. Krog of Birmingham, Region IV Director, Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Divisions, U. S. Department of Labor, said today that ending of wage and price controls has had no effect whatever insofar as the minimum wage and maximum hours provisions of the Federal Wage and Hour Law are concerned.

"A few misinformed persons," Krog said, "seem to be under the impression that when the President recently terminated controls on wages and prices he also did away with the 75c minimum wage and 40-hour work week. They are, of course, mistaken. Wage and salary stabilization were merely temporary measures put into effect to prevent, or control, inflation and have no relation whatever to the minimum wage and maximum hours provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act."

Employers subject to this Act, Krog said, must continue to pay their employees at least the minimum of 75c an hour and one and one-half times their regular rate, if they are engaged in interstate commerce or in the production of goods for interstate commerce, unless the Act grants such employees either a partial or complete exemption.

A recent survey reports mechanical failures are responsible for about 20 per cent of accidents that occur in industry, while personal factors are to blame for about 80 per cent.

The American public spends about $1,600,000,000 annually on candy.

India's biggest industry is the textile industry, accounting for one-fourth of the country's entire industrial production. Annual output amounts to four billion yards of cloth and over 350 million pounds of yarn.

Sixty per cent of America's motor vehicle traffic is concentrated on 7 per cent of the road mileage. Yet two-thirds of the nation's main highways are regarded as short of safe driving standards.

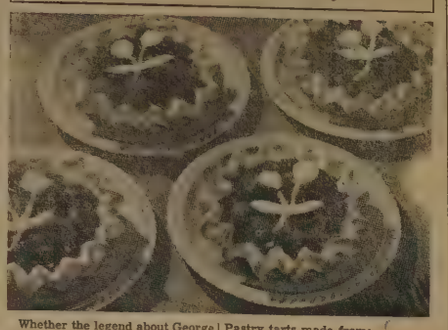
Cherry Tarts Provide Neat Washington Birthday Treat



Whether the legend about George Washington and the cherry tree is founded on fact or fancy, it gives children and grownups plenty of thoughts about cherries in February.

George Washington Tarts make an excellent treat for youngsters and dessert for grownups on February 22, and they are easy to prepare when made with self-rising flour.

Self-rising is the flour that reduces oven failures almost to the vanishing point, because the baking powder ingredients and salt are expertly mixed into quality flour by the miller. It makes baking easy, since it is necessary to add only shortening and liquid to make a pastry.

Decorations can be a little tree, reminiscent of that one Washington so honestly confessed cutting down with his little hatchet. Or they can be a hatchet, or even a Washington tri-cornered hat cut out of pastry or made with whipped cream.

George Washington Tarts
1 No. 2 can pie cherries or 1 lb. frozen cherries*
¾ cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon almond extract

Pastry tarts made from:
1½ cups sifted self-rising flour
½ to ⅔ cup shortening
¼ cup cold water (about)

Drain cherries and heat juice to nearly boiling. Mix sugar and cornstarch and stir into hot juice. Continue to cook until mixture is clear, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, add drained cherries, and allow to cool. Pour into previously baked tart shells and chill. Garnish top with baked pastry cut-outs or with whipped cream. Yield: 4 large tarts.

*If frozen cherries are used, reduce sugar to ½ cup.

To make pastry tarts:

Measure flour into small mixing bowl. Cut in shortening with pastry blender until size of coarse corn meal. Sprinkle the cold water over the mixture and blend lightly. Shape into a ball, roll in waxed paper and let rest 10 minutes. Divide into four equal portions, roll each to ⅛ inch thickness and fit into tart shells. Bake in hot oven, 450° F., for 10 to 15 minutes. Make pastry cut-outs from trimmings and bake on cooky sheet while tart shells are baking.

PET PEEVE

SINCE the television set can't be moved, the boys hit upon the idea of bringing their portable radio to the dinner table so they won't miss any of their programs. Unfortunately, I relaxed discipline one night and allowed it.

Now I like radio programs, just so they are not off-key sopranos or mountain music. And the experiment went along fine—up to a point.

Of course, when their mother asked for the butter they were so interested they passed the peas. At other times they didn't respond. And then I became interested.

The story was about a man, a little girl and a boy, in a jet plane that had been chasing rustlers. Doesn't make sense, but so help me that's what they were doing. Then the plane started to fall and it fell for the next 10 minutes of the program.

Down they plunged. Frantically they worked the controls.

For 10 minutes I plunged with them. Then—CRASH!

"Timber!" the wife screams.

"Steady, Pop," one of the boys says.

"After all, Pop, it's only a radio program," the other says.

Then I understood. For 10 minutes I had been holding the bowl of peas aloft as I plunged with the plane. With the crash the bowl of peas crashed.

"I'll have my coffee in the living room," I mumbled and fled their laughter. I can hardly wait until tomorrow. How did they get out of that crash alive? They must have, because the program is going to be on at its scheduled time

FATHER'S BLESSING

By Orlan Jones

"We've made up our minds," Valerie said. "It really doesn't make any difference what you say, but we thought we'd ask for your blessing."

Mr. Dodson looked long and thoughtfully at his daughter. His face seemed lined with defeat as he gazed at this beautiful girl who ciutched so fiercely at the hand of the nice-looking young man beside her on the sofa.

"I don't understand," Mr. Dodson said slowly. "If it doesn't make any difference what I say or think, why do you come to me at all?"

The young man started to speak, but Valerie interrupted. "We would rather have your blessing. I knew you would be against it, but I had hoped you would wish us luck."

"What made you so sure I would be against it?" Mr. Dodson asked. It wasn't a question Valerie had anticipated. "Well, you always talked about not rushing into marriage, and I just naturally figured you would be against my marrying Burt right now, with him going to the army."

Again Mr. Dodson was thoughtful. "I'm sorry you misunderstood about that," he said. "I don't guess you remember the most important part. You know, I always started out those conversations by saying that my main concern was your happiness. And I said I didn't think any young girl found happiness by rushing into marriage. But tell me, will marrying Burt bring you happiness?"

"Yes," she said.

"Well, then, perhaps that is the answer to your question. Maybe your marriage doesn't need my blessing. If it brings you happiness, it automatically has my blessing."

When he had finished speaking he had the air of a man who had solved a great problem.

Later, as they all sat over a cup of tea, Mr. Dodson spoke to Burt.

"How long will it be before you leave?"

"Three days," Burt answered.

"That's not much time," Mr. Dodson sighed. "I remember how it was when I was in the army during the first war."

Valerie looked up quickly. "I didn't know you had ever been in the army. You never said anything about it before."

"I guess I never had occasion to mention it," Mr. Dodson said. "I wasn't a hero. Fact is, I spent eighteen months guarding sand dunes near El Paso, Texas."

"That's probably what'll happen to me," Burt said.

Mrs. Dodson didn't take part in the conversation.

"Things were about the same then as they are now," Mr. Dodson said. "There was one difference, though. The girls were different. I remember how I begged your mother to marry me before I went into service, but she wouldn't do it."

"I never knew about all this," Valerie said. "Why wouldn't you marry him, mother?"

Mrs. Dodson seemed stirred from a deep dream, but she spoke quickly and surely.

"I felt it was a test that we both should go through. I knew that he came back to me our love would be deeper and fuller. And I think it has been."

Her quiet confession brought silence to the room, a silence that remained until Burt and Valerie rose and said they were going downtown for dinner. Before they left, Burt spoke briefly to Mrs. Dodson in the kitchen, and then they were off in the same carefree manner they had left Mr. and Mrs. Dodson many times before.

When they had gone, Mrs. Dodson looked at her husband and said, "They're going to wait."

"How do you know?"

"Burt told me in the kitchen. He said he thought he could make her understand. He's a fine boy."

"Yes, he is," Mr. Dodson said. "I wonder if they'll ever find out I was never in the army?"

"By the time they do, they'll want to thank you for making them understand," his wife answered with a quiet certainty.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

The lady who serves our coffee at the local diner came up the other day with a black eye. She says that it was an end-table that "done the damage" while she was dusting. And further more she says: "I was alone at home when it happened and I've got witnesses to prove it."

* * *

A small boy's head bobbed up over the back fence and a meek little voice said, "Mrs. Brown, may I have my arrow?" "Certainly," replied Mrs. Brown. "Where is it?" "I think it's stuck in your cat."

* * *

Mrs. Palmer's English Class from Chilton County High School visited the Chilton County News Office Wednesday. They were studying the steps necessary in getting out a newspaper and we were glad to help in any way we could. Of course there were a few thousand headaches that we couldn't tell them about and they could not possibly know until they undertake the task for themselves. However, we did enjoy the class coming to see us and felt complimented that they would want to come and see firsthand the makings of a "country weekly."

* * *

A speaker was lecturing on forest preservation. He asked: "Has any one present contributed in any way to preserving our forests?" Silence ruled for a long time and finally one of the group stood up and remarked: "I once shot a woodpecker."

* * *

Looks like Chilton County really will have a new courthouse. Practically every Civic Club and like organization in the county have endorsed the building of one, and those that haven't brought the matter before their membership are ready to do so this next week. Some that we have talked to have the wrong idea as to the people having voted down the building of a new courthouse. They have never voted on this question. A year or more ago they voted down the question as to whether the old building would be remodeled and a wing built onto it where the Board of Health and the County Agent's Office now stands. That, as you well remember, was voted down by a 3 to 1 vote. But you'll find that we have never voted on the question of a "new courthouse." From all indications though it looks like the people do want a new courthouse—especially since no new taxes are to be added for the purpose of building one.

* * *

That frost the first of the week that laid low millions of buttercups in the yards of our homemakers was a dilly. Practically half the homes in Clanton are literally surrounded with the pretty little yellow flower and when that frost hit them they curled up and died. However, as nature planned, the next day the sun shone out bright and it warmed up a bit and today you can hardly tell where the frost hit hardest. The buttercups, jonquils, etc., are blooming as brightly as ever.

Some people don't have much to say, but you have to listen such a long time to find it out.

Catholics Announce Lenten Observance

On Fridays during Lent the Stations of the Cross will begin at 7:30 at the Chapel of the Resurrection. Announcement of other Lenten devotions for Catholics throughout the County will be made at the chapel by the Pastor, the Reverend Walter Mikosz, C.R., from Montgomery, who will conduct the ceremonies.

The holy season of Lent, a time of forty days (excepting Sundays) fasting and penance begins this year on February 18th, which is Ash Wednesday, and ends on Holy Saturday at noon.

Ash Wednesday is so called because on that day, ashes are blessed and placed on the forehead of the faithful in the form of a cross, with the words: "Remember man thou art dust. . ." These ashes are made from the burned "Palms of Victory" of the preceding year's Palm Sunday. It is with the word "Remember" that we open this period of penance, and self-denial. It would be a mistake to view Lent merely as a call to penance. It is a call to joy. It carries the story of a great drama which has a truly happy ending. During this time our Holy Mother, the Church, is intimately united with the joys and victory of Easter; a preparation for a more abundant joy in life. A time of turning away from "many things" to the "one thing necessary." Calvary is only a means to an end.

Liberty National Insurance Company Held Annual Meeting

Liberty National Life Insurance Company held the annual meeting of its stockholders on February 17, 1953, in the auditorium in the Home Office of the Company in Birmingham, Alabama. At this meeting, President Frank P. Samford read a detailed report of the operations of the Company during 1952 and expressed extreme gratification at the fine progress made during that year. The financial statement of the Company as of December 31, 1952, will be found in this paper. President Samford released the following statement:

"The growth of the Company during 1952 was most gratifying; with total assets of more than $126 million the Company has now become one of the larger financial institutions in Alabama and an important one in the South and in the nation. The accumulation of capital in the South will play an important part in the future development of our section and during 1952 over $14 million was loaned on mortgages to enable families to acquire homes and to assist in the financing of businesses of all types. Nearly $10 million was loaned to governmental and corporate enterprises which supply the jobs and payrolls in our country.

"We at Liberty National like to feel that the continued growth of the Company comes as a result of the service we render. The year 1952 has been one of active service on the part of Liberty National. One definite measure of the extend of our service is evidence by the fact that during the year over 26,000 claims were paid. This means there was ready money available to meet the needs of families throughout our territory at a time when the need was greatest. The fact that over $7 million was disbursed in 1952 to policyowners and beneficiaries is another measure of that service.

"The Company ended 1952 with over three milion individual policies outstanding on the lives of policyowners residing in all of the 4 states. There are more than 1,-200 well-trained and courteous field representatives who are available to assist the people of our area in intelligently planning their insurance programs.

"Our firm resolve will be to continue to serve—and to serve well."

THIS WEEK IN Washington

● If there were ever any doubts that President Eisenhower would not carry out his promise of economy and efficiency in government, they have now been dispelled. Washington is being shaken to the very foundations these days—like it hasn't been shaken for 20 years.

Beginning with his first State of the Union Message to congress and a series of executive orders immediately afterwards, the President has shown he means business. A number of the points touched upon in his address to congress have seen fast action.

As an example:

1. He said there no longer was any "sense or logic" in the use of the Seventh Fleet to shield Red China. He immediately ordered the fleet to stop its screening. This opens the way for Nationalist forces to attack the Communist-held mainland if they so desire. That China doesn't like the idea was apparent the following day when Red leaders began asking for renewal of the hopeless peace talks in Korea.

2. The first order of domestic business should be to balance the budget, after which a reduction in taxation would be in order. This statement was followed by orders freezing, hiring and strict economy in government expenditures.

3. Aid to Europe would be continued with the Allies required to be full partners matching United States contributions according to their capabilities. Immediately afterwards Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, on his visit to Europe, told big Western European powers they have 75 days to show real progress in setting up a unified defense or they faced cuts American military and economic aid.

● One of the most talked about moves of the administration is the killing of the Defense Production Administration. Its functions have been taken over by the Office of Defense Mobilization. The move is the first step to end controls on materials and give more to the highly essential defense items.

This swing to free-economy which the Republican party has long advocated, is the forerunner of decontrol of prices and wages. The administration may face some opposition in that many in congress want a stand-by organization ready in the event prices and wages get out of hand. It is generally believed, however, that President Eisenhower will have his way.

● After the first few weeks his administration has been in power there is a general feeling in Washington that any collision between the White House and Congress is yet in the distant future. The reason: the President's prestige is high and his political power is overwhelming. No one or group, as yet has had the courage to seriously cross him. The Democrats are actually beginning to believe that they can get along with him much better than they supposed. And although a number of Republicans are developing signs of congressional independence, none of them, including Senator Taft, are likely to get far out of line in the near future.

Selden Tells Of Hobson's Patriotism

Washington, D.C., Feb. 16 — Congressman Armistead I. Selden, Jr., reminded the House of Representatives today of the many patriotic services to our country that were performed by the late Admiral Richmond Pearson Hobson.

In a seven-page speech Selden recounted some of Hobson's deeds which were the basis for his becoming one of the most important naval heroes in the history of our nation. He gave particular emphasis to Admiral Hobson's role in the Spanish-American War, and warned Congress that "we are in danger of losing sight of the significance of that short and victorious struggle which served notice to the world that the United States was through with civil wars and was ready to take its place with the first-class powers."

Selden, who represents the Sixth Alabama District, was a principal speaker during special Congressional services commemorating the 55th anniversary of the sinking of the Maine. He was introduced by Rep. Barratt O'Hara (D-Ill.) who is the only remaining member of Congress who fought in the Spanish-American War.

"One of the great popular heroes of that war," Selden stated, "was Lieutenant (later Rear Admiral) Richmond Pearson Hobson. As his hometown of Greensboro, Ala., is also my hometown and the district I now represent covers a portion of the district he once represented in Congress, it becomes my very happy privilege to give on this occasion a brief review of his career."

Continuing, he presented a colorful account of Hobson's heroic attempt to bottle up the Spanish fleet at Santiago, Cuba, by sinking the ship Merrimac in the harbor's narrow entrance. He also mentioned Hobson's foresightedness in removing all inflammable parts of the American ships in order to insure their safety in battle with the Spaniards.

He then pointed out how strange it is that Hobson is remembered for an attempt that was not entirely successful and that the remainder of his career is comparatively unknown. Hobson resigned from the Navy in 1903 for reasons of poor health, but he continued to serve his country as representative in Congress for eight years from the Sixth Alabama District.

"While he was in Congress, Hobson was constantly concerned with plans for strengthening the nation's defense and building a strong Navy. It was mostly through his influence that the office of Chief of Naval Operations was established."

In conclusion, Selden gave a brief resume of Hobson's role as leader in the prohibition movement and the fight against the narcotic drug evil.

"Though Hobson no longer lives," he said, 'the fight goes on against intemperance and drug addiction and tyranny and war. He has bequeathed us as a high legacy the causes for which he fought. They remain to challenge us."

Fish Cookery Demonstration Is Planned Here

A fish cookery demonstration showing preparation of fish in quantity is to be given for local school lunch personnel, and others interested in quantity feeding. It will be presented by a U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service home economist, at Clanton, Ala., Chilton County High School Lunchroom, February 24th, at 3 o'clock. All school lunch personnel, dieticians, home economists, institutional users of fish, fish dealers, and others interested in fish cookery are cordially invited.

This demonstration is part of a series being presented in Alabama by the State Educational Department in cooperation with the Fish and Wildlife Service of the U. S. Department of the Interior. Superintendent J. H. Boockholdt, Mrs. Doyle McRae, Principal S. E. Waters, and Miss Louise Foshee are some of the local persons giving their cooperation and assistance to the arrangements.

Miss Jean Burtis, the Fish and Wildlife Service home economist, is a fish cookery expert. She has presented demonstrations from Maine to California, and has also appeared on many TV and radio food programs. When not traveling she works on the developing of new fish recipes at the Service test kitchens in College Park, Md. Mr. Williams Cabaniss, Fishery Marketing Specialist from the Fish and Wildlife Service, has been making the arrangements for this demonstration. He will appear on the program with Miss Burtis and will speak on the local availability of fishery products.

During this hour and a half program, six fish dishes will be prepared and the audience will have a chance to taste the finished products. None of the fish will be pan or deep-fat fried, for one aim of the demonstrations is to show how this economical protein food can be appetizingly used in different ways.

A smile unlocks a lot of results.

Everyone who dies leaves everything.

Silence is an underplayed virtue.

You can make a million if you understand advertising.

What New Yorkers think is smart, on the stage, is not necessarily smart.

If you are ignorant enough to be satisfied with yourself life is wonderful.

There comes a time when a wearer of trousers is needed in every home.

Petty minds thrive on fast society, publicity, and petty honors, and offices.

Some people leave their manners behind when they get into an automobile.

Have you ever noticed how many people know all the answers, and for sure?

The trouble with some writers is that they try to be smart rather than informative.

You can read a book a week and still be ignorant—especially if you read the modern best sellers.

BATHTUB EXITS

Recent statistics show that accidents in the home remain one of the major causes of premature death and injury in the United States. The number of persons killed and injured in this way is always surprising and quite often exceeds casualties on the battlefront.

One of the culprits in the home is the ordinary bathtub, which, too often, is not level where occupants must stand to take a shower. Because more and more people are turning to showers, used with a bathtub and a curtain, this danger is on the increase.

A wise policy to follow, if your house contains such an arrangement, is insistence on a perfectly-level bottom in the tub, or a standing mat if the floor of the tub is not level. Elderly people, who often lose their footing in a tub-shower, are sometimes killed by the resulting fall. Though younger people are less often killed, they sometimes receive life-time injuries which could be avoided if the proper-type of tubs were used, or a standing mat placed in the more dangerous type.

A word to the wise should be acted upon.

CONQUERING THE FLU

The Executive Board of the United Nations World Health Organization recently announced that medical science is about to conquer influenza. The Board believes the year 1954 will see announcements of great significance in this direction.

The major hope seems to be based on a series of vaccines, each designed to combat a specific type of the disease. The complication is that there are so many variations of influenza that the suitable vaccine is somewhat difficult to determine.

The recent epidemic, for example, was termed the A-Prime virus influenza. Once it was identified, a vaccine was prepared and was used with some success in the fight against the threatened epidemic.

There are three main types of influenza, termed A, B and C types. If the type can be recognized early enough, proper vaccines can be made in time and an epidemic avoided. The Executive Board of the U. N. Health Organization believes that, by 1954, sufficient research will have been done to enable quick identification and mass distribution of suitable vaccines to combat influenza epidemics. This should be excellent news to all those who have sampled the latest flu epidemic in the United States.

A LETTER TO THE EDITOR

I am sending you a copy of a letter I received in answer to a Christmas package our Junior G.A. Girls sent to Korea.

I want all Christians to read this letter. May it help us to be more Missionary minded.

Yours truly,
MRS. ROBERT McAFEE,
G.A. Counselor.

Dear Friends:

The Commanding Officer, Officers and Enlisted men of the 335th Ordnance Battalion want to thank all of you for helping to make Christmas, 1952, one of the happiest experiences of our lives. Yes, we will not hide the fact that we missed being with our own families for this festive occasion, but the Christmas Party we gave for the Korean children helped to make up for being over here.

The success of the party is now a matter of history and from what we have been able to find out, it was the biggest party given in Korea, that is more children attended and more children were helped. The enclosed newspaper story with pictures tells much about the party and I will not repeat the details. I would like to explain why this letter is late. We had so many people to write to that we could not find enough envelopes in which to mail the letters. It took us four weeks after Christmas to secure sufficient envelopes as we had no idea the response would be so great.

Up to the time of the party, December 24, we had received 1,453 packages, and since that time we have received 156 more, which makes a grand total of 1,609 packages. These packages came from 1,098 different people in most of the states in the U.S.A. We are indeed proud of the generosity of the people back home. Many of the packages arrived without return addresses and many of the packages have to be re-wrapped en route and the return addresses were lost in this way, so if any of your friends do not receive a report, please tell them that their packages were probably received.

We especially appreciate the response from the children who sent many packages, as the evidence of their love for their neighbors over here. We send our special thanks to Mrs. McKee's Sixth Grade of Cedar School in Canton, Ohio, to the Brownie Scouts and Cub Scout Troop of Monroe, La., and to the other Brownie Scouts and Cub Scouts and Schools and Sunday School classes all over America. With such loving kindness being manifested we cannot help but feel that the future of the United States and the world is assured.

We could not place an accurate value on the items sent, but we feel that the replacement cost of the articles would run well over $65,000.00, as the postage alone amounted to more than $2,200.00. The amount that was sent was almost unbelievable. We received more than 12,500 cakes of soap and actually mountains of towels. One wholesale company sent their complete line of sample toys, which added to the unaccountable number of toys received. It was a joy to see the eyes of the little ones pop out when they saw the modern toys of the children of the U. S. These little ones over here count themselves lucky to have a toy made out of a stick and an old wheel.

As we walk about the streets of Junde we see many of the warm clothes that were given out and we often see a little girl tugging on the arm of a doll, which she received from Santa Claus, and each time we do, we breathe a "Thank You" for the wonderful people at home who made this project possible. We hope we are not here next Christmas, but if we are, we assure you that another party is already in the planning stage. Again, many thanks to you all.

Sincerely,
PAUL D. HUTCHINS,
Chaplain (Capt.) U.S.A. Battalion Chaplain.

DALE CARNEGIE

JACOB B. SANTANGELO, Hotel Essex, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, was orphaned at the age of seven. This meant no one to counsel him. Result? He was always fearful of what to do. This fear was so ingrained in him that it took him five years to pass the State Board Examinations for Law. He would prepare for these State Boards and two or three days before they were to be given he would be so frightened that he would withdraw. Finally he passed them.

But fear and lack of self-confidence had become so habitual that he was afraid to try cases before juries. He had to have an associate with him. And he declares that a man cannot continue this too long before his clients will realize what is wrong with him.

CARNEGIE

So he sat down one day and analyzed himself and decided to change. He thought back to his grammar and high school days—to those wonderful teachers who helped to mould the young boys and girls for the future. And he remembered one teacher distinctly telling him, "Jacob, knowing the problem is one-half of the solution."

When the next case came into his office requiring trial he applied that adage. He searched to the core of the problem and began work. He would study, classify, clarify and associate his work. While doing this he had no fear, for he had no time for fear. Everything he had in his library was searched while all the time bearing in mind that adage. It then began to dawn upon him that no matter what barrage of questions would be asked of him or his client he had a firm foundation, and never thought of fear. And with a human sense of values, and the endowed ability he was blessed with, and with the problem in mind, he worked it out.

As a result of this experience life has taught him that fear is only a ghost which does not exist.

J. Rube Bearden, A. Reedie Taylor, T. R. Carter, Lloyd Mims, Dewey Collins, Hoyt Freeman, Carson Boockholdt, Harland Brasher and C. C. Moore are a few of the farmers that will plant Kudzu crowns this spring. For hay, erosion control and hog grazing on rough eroded hills, Kudzu can't be beat.

Huck Finn's cows are getting a lot of good grazing from Fescue, Rescue and Oats. Coastal Bermuda will be planted on land not infested with common Bermuda and where the Common Bermuda is, some hulled Bermuda seed will be sowed this spring. A reseeding Clover will be overseeded on the grass this fall.

* * *

A portion of the Coastal Bermuda will be delivered Monday of next week. To be successful with this grass it is necessary to plant on a good seed bed. Plant soon enough after digging to be assured of live planting stock. Coastal readily responds to liberal fertilizer and will be disappointing without it.

E. M. Varden, Union Grove, will plant common Bermuda on the rocky hill in front of his house.

Walter and J. W. Allen, Jemison, Ala., Route 2, are preparing land to plant fifteen acres of sericea.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

EXCESSIVE PRIDE

Excessive pride has caused the downfall of many men in the worldly sense. And it has lowered many men in the eyes of God.

The proud, the selfish, the avaricious do not fit into the Christian picture. Christ was humble and he did not hold out any hope for the man who was excessively proud.

The proud man believes, in a way, that he is specially favored and God will look down upon him and relax the rules a little for him. That man is almost beyond hope. Because God has no favorites and He will judge all equally.

The proud may pretend to pay homage to God; but they will go away unwelcomed and unrewarded because they lack the one gift he expects of all—a true loyalty of heart, mind and soul.

But the man who kneels before Him with a humble and chase heart He will reward a thousandfold. And for those who have not even tried to shake off the shackles of pride and sin, He can only turn away in disappointment and grief.

Getting Around with Mac Brown

I'm still a strong believer in the old-fashioned Thomas Jefferson idea of democracy which says people will reach the right decisions if they are adequately informed on all sides of an issue.

So I don't mind too much when I see some things printed which I know are misstatements, if I think that the other side will be told, too. Last week I read a story saying it cost a whole lot more to build a road good enough to carry heavy trucks than it cost to build one to carry light trucks and cars. Well, I happen to know that those figures are spread around by people who have a selfish interest in hurting the trucking industry, and that the highest engineering authorities have proved that kind of figuring is false. The fact is there is a minimum strength which must be built into roads if they are to last any time at all, and that the cost of building the flimsy ones is but very very little less than building the strongest, toughest ones.

So, when I see one side getting publicity I don't like it, but I'm not too worried. I know that the other side will be told, too, and people, being well informed, will be able to judge the right from the wrong.

IN MEMORY

In memory of my Daddy, Mr. Allen F. Ward, who died in May, 1952.

DADDY

Your wheel chair in Heaven is made of Gold,
The angels hold your crippled hand I used to hold.
When I go to the graveyard and kneel by your graveside,
I think of a wonderful reunion with you, God will provide.
Mother is lonely down here, but God has prepared her a place with you up there,
When I go home I look for a face I can't see,
But, Daddy, I know you are looking at me,
I pray with God's Will and my prayer,
That I will some day meet you up there.

A Daughter,

Mulberry Church—

There was a fair congregation at both services Sunday. Bro. Jones preached two good sermons as usual. We should have a larger congregation each Sunday.

The visitors at Mulberry Sunday were Alton Lecroy, Glenn Jones and Micky Manning. We always welcome visitors in our services.

There was a good crowd at prayer services last Wednesday night. The young people enjoyed a Valentine social in the basement after prayer services. Games and contests were the activities of the social. Cookies and drinks were served as refreshments.

We hope you are enjoying the library books and are getting value from them. We are adding to our list more books all along.

Let's all pray that we will have a great revival, beginning Sunday night, April 5th. Rev. Daniels of Thorsby will bring the messages each evening through Friday evening.

Training Union was very well attended, but we are looking for many more next Sunday night.

Our number was small for prayer service Wednesday night, but we had a good service, and Bro. Cook began teaching the Book of Phillipians after prayer service.

Eleven members were present for our W.M.U. meeting at the church last Wednesday afternoon. We had a very good meeting. Several of our members were absent on account of sickness. For our circle meeting we will meet Wednesday afternoon, February 25th, in the home of Mrs. Driver in Clanton, mother of Mrs. Rada Smith.

Our G.A. Counselor, Mrs. N. E. Cook, met with the girls in the home of Mrs. E. W. Hill Saturday afternoon. The program was good, after which refreshments were served.

Sunbeams met with their leader, Mrs. T. J. Stewart, Saturday afternoon. After their program they were served valentine candies.

We are sorry our pastor's mother is still very sick. Let us continue to pray for her; also Mrs. Anna Wells and all others who are sick.

Mrs. Esther Childress was hostess last Friday afternoon at a shower given for Mrs. Janette Wilson Thomas. Those enjoying the occasion were: Mesdames Mertice Smith, Leola Litchfield, Decie Wells, Allie Mae Thornton, Belle Moore, Inez Price, Mary Stewart, Mozelle Miller, Luther Thomas, Fannie B. Simpson, B. B. Mizzell, Henry Lee Wilson.

Jannette opened the lovely and useful gifts brought by the ladies present and a number of gifts sent in by those who couldn't be there. She expressed her appreciation, after which refreshments were served.

We urge everyone who possibly can to be at church next Sunday.

An institution grows in proportion to the service it renders. In serving the people of the area in which it operates, the Company paid over 26,000 claims during 1952 and disbursed more than $7,000,000 to policyowners and beneficiaries. Over $14,000,000 was loaned on mortgages to enable families to acquire homes and to assist in the financing of businesses of all types. Nearly $10,000,000 was loaned to governmental and corporate enterprises which supply the jobs and the payrolls in our land.

We at Liberty National like to feel that our continued growth comes as a result of such service. During 1952 insurance protection owned by policyowners increased over $70,000,000 while resources for the protection of policyowners increased $17,000,000.

To continue to serve—and serve well—is our firm resolve.

CHILTON COUNTY NEWS

VOLUME XXXI — CLANTON, ALABAMA — TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1953 — NUMBER 15

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN —By Ben

Little hoodlums broke into the offices of the News over the week end and partook of about five dollars worth of nickels and three packages of cigarettes. That is, it's all we can notice missing to date. It was reported to Chief of Police Charles Tucker and he said there was an epidemic of small thefts here. One way Chief Tucker suggested that we businessmen could help the police was to take better care in locking up at night and to see that all doors and windows were thoroughly locked and bolted. Carelessness, he said, on the part of the victims is of much help to the burglars. The officers think that it is local talent that is doing the jobs. Our private opinion is that some parents aren't doing their jobs or they would know what their children were doing and where they were at all times. Too, if a child gets away with small-time burglary it encourages him to try for bigger rewards all the time, and the first thing you know, it's too late—he's in Kilby Prison or some other place of correction. A little time in knowing and working with your children now, will pay big dividends in the future.

Did you hear about the fellow who was asked: "Will wild beasts in the jungle harm you if you carry a torch?" And he answered, "It all depends on how fast you carry it."

Thirty-six civilians are wounded by motor vehicles to every U. S. Serviceman wounded in action in Korea. During the past two and one-half years of war in Korea 93,000 servicemen have been wounded. During that same period 3,350,000 have been wounded in this country in automobile accidents. In the past 50 years the automobile has injured 33,000,000 men, women and children. In all wars since the Revolution in 1775, 1,270,000 men have been wounded in battle. Thus 26 people have been injured by the automobile to every one injured in battle in our country's history.

This absolutely did not come from Rev. Marvin Vickers, but the small boy told his father who was a preacher, that "collect" and "congregate" meant the same thing. His teacher had told him so. "Now," said the preacher, "that may be so. But there is a vast difference between a 'congregation' and a 'collection.' "

CHILTON ASSOCIATIONAL Y.W.A. FEB. 8-14 AT LIBERTY HILL

The Y.W.A.'s of Chilton Association observed their Focus Week February 8-14, with a rally on Friday night, February 13th, at the Liberty Hill Baptist Church. The table was decorated with lovely flowers and the candle holders held green and white candles, carrying out the colors of Young Women's Auxiliary. A wonderful program under the direction of the Associational Y.W.A. leader, Mrs. Fred L. Lowery, was given with the girls taking part.

The speaker for this rally was Mrs. Russell Williams of the First Baptist Church, Clanton. Mrs. Williams brought an inspiring message to the girls on "Choosing the Right Way." A group of games were enjoyed by the girls, these being under the direction of Miss Loyce Baker.

Punch was served from crystal punch bowls, and a large variety of sandwiches and cookies were available. The following were present. Mrs. Russell Scott, Jimmie Faye Cerel, Betty Joyce Cates, Phyllis Harrell, Ruby Hall, Sue Horton, Wanda Shaw, Willodean Gilliland, Jessie Holcomb, Hazel Miller, Helen Sue Sorrell, Doris Maddox, Nettie Faye Littlejohn, Lemerle Patterson, Mildred Patterson, Helen Driver, Sarah Nell Davis, Edna Fay Mims, Ann Smith, Katherine Horton, Mrs. Avon Matthews, Mrs. Leo Shaw, Mrs. Shirley Sample, Mrs. Russell Williams, Mrs. Hyman Atcheson, Mrs. Fred Lowery, Mrs. W. A. Williams, Jr., Miss Loyce Baker, and Mrs. J. W. Johnson.

Avoid shrinkage in pastry by making sure the oven is hot enough, and by always using pastry flour in the recommended mixture.

Fruit purchased at a market always should be wiped off with a clean, slightly damp cloth before it is put away. This cleans it and tends to check rot that may have gotten on it from other fruits.

After removing the buttons from a garment, string them on a hairpin and twist the ends together.

This drive will get underway on Wednesday afternoon, February 25, at 4:30. Each home in Maplesville will be visited for a contribution to this worthy cause. The drive will continue until 7:00 p.m. when all participants will be expected to have their collections in.

The Auxiliary hopes that each home will be prepared to make a donation on Wednesday, but those missed will be contacted on Friday, February 27th.

Any person in adjoining communities who would like to contribute to this cause, please contact any Auxiliary member or leave your contribution at City Hall.

The need is great and you are asked to please take part in this drive to equip the Fire Department.

Make A Good Cotton Crop During 1953

Every cotton grower in Chilton County wants to make money on this year's cotton crop. Costs are higher with little prospects for a better price for cotton next fall. Therefore, you must make higher yields to make more profit on your 1953 cotton crop. With normal weather conditions you can make high yields and more money if you do the following:

1. Plant on the best cotton land on the farm.
2. Prepare a good seedbed and let it settle before planting.
3. Fertilize right. Use 600 pounds of 4-10-7 per acre and side dress with 110 pounds ammonium nitrate or 225 pounds nitrate of soda, or 500 pounds of 4-12-12 per acre and side dress with 125 pounds ammonium nitrate or 250 pounds of nitrate of soda. If good growth of winter legumes is turned use 400 pounds of 0-14-14 or 4-12-12 and no side dressing.
4. Plant pure seed with 80% or better germination that have been delinted and treated. Use one bushel of reginned seed per acre.
5. Use one of the following wilt resistant varieties — Plains, Coker 100 Wilt, Smith 78 or Auburn 56.
6. Plant on time—April 1 to April 15.
7. Space for a regular stand. Plant in rows 3 to 3½ feet apart. Leave enough plants so you will have two to three stalks per hill 1 to 18 inches apart when cultivation is completed.
8. Cultivate shallow and often enough to control weeds. Do not reduce stand and growth by deep or careless plowing.
9. Control boll weevil and other cotton insects with 20% toxaphene or the 3-5 mixture of BHC-DDT, or alternate applications of calcium arsenate and the 3-5 mixture of BHC-DDT.

Detailed information on insect control will be furnished later.

If these things are done by every cotton grower, Chilton County should make a good cotton crop this year.

Kudzu Seedlings Are Better Than Kudzu Crowns

Many Alabama farmers report that kudzu planting stock grown from seed gives a much better stand than crowns.

D. R. Harbor, API Extension agronomist, points out that seedlings are cheaper and easier set, too.

"And if seedlings are to be produced this year," says the specialist, "now is the time to flat-break land. Use the harrow often enough to keep land free of weeds and grass until time to plant seed. It is best to plant kudzu seed during late cotton planting time."

For fertilizer recommendations and other important information on growing kudzu planting stock from seed, see the local county agent.

MORE PRODUCTION PER MAN

Farm output per man-hour of labor on farms is now the greatest in the history of mankind.

Leadership School Held Last Monday

A Leadershipp School was held at the City Hall last Monday, February 16th, at 1:30 p.m. The demonstration was on, "When You Go To The Grocery Store," was given by Miss Oorothy Overby, Specialist in Consumer Education from Auburn, in a very interesting way.

Quite a number of the clubs over the county were represented, and I'm sure each club will be greatly benefitted by the points of importance that will be given at their next meeting.

These schools are held for the benefit of our home demonstration work in the county.

REV. J. H. APLIN IN REVIVAL AT MARION

County Oil Men Say Big "No" To Increase In State Taxes

Chilton County oil men have adopted a five-point program featuring the improvement of Alabama roads on a pay-as-you-go basis with no further tax increases.

The action was taken at a meeting of the Chilton County Petroleum Industries Committee at Clanton, Ala., February 19. Oil men attending also elected officers and viewed a color film which depicts the democratic process of lawmaking in Alabama.

The program adopted:

1. To insist that the highway construction program shall be scientifically planned and financed on a pay-as-you-go basis with funds derived from the taxation of motor vehicles and motor fuel not to exceed present rates.
2. To repeal the 2c per gallon state tax on lubricating oil now absorbed by service station operators.
3. To render assistance to state and federal authorities in the detection and elimination of gasoline tax evasion.
4. To urge all persons connected with the petroleum industry to promote safety on our highways.
5. To seek fair and equitable privilege licenses for wholesale and retail oil dealers.

Officers elected at the meeting for the next twelve months, included A. A. Bazzel, Chairman; H. T. Salter, Vice-Chairman; H. A. [illegible], Secretary.

A view of Chilton County 4-H Club members and their beef calves being judged by Dr. R. S. Suggs, State Veternarian.

4-H Club members feeding better cattle and presenting them in County Shows in the early 1940's created much of the interest that has led to the development of beef industry.

Beef Cattle Progress In Chilton County Is Very Outstanding

Only a few years ago beef cattle production was a project that only H. S. Shaw, J. N. Dennis, Dr. W. L. Parrish, John and Earl O'Neal, A. B. Jones and possibly a few other farmers participated in.

Today the County Agent's beef cattle producer's mailing list consists of over 140 names. This 140-plus group of farmers are those that consider beef production a major project. There are an additional 400 farmers that are maintaining minor project beef herds. The total beef cattle population now in the County exceeds 9,000 brood cows. The 1952 County beef sales are estimated to be $260,000.00. A local sales organization operating one sale per week moved 2,600 cattle through the Clanton market in 1952.

Additional evidence of the progress made in beef development in Chilton County is the fact that an active Cattlemen's Association has been organized in the County. The Cattlemen's Association is actively engaged in further promoting the beef industry in the County.

Officers of the Association for 1953 are:

Ralph Mims, Clanton, Ala., Route 4, President; H. C. Arnold, Clanton, Ala., Vice-President; C. C. Piquette, Clanton, Ala., Secretary-Treasurer.

Directors: Dr. H. M. Nix, Maplesville, Ala.; Earl O'Neal, Stanton, Ala., Route 1; Charles Patterson, Clanton, Ala.; Hoyt Freeman, Maplesville Route 1; Joseph Penton, Verbena, Ala.; Jack A. Roberts, Box 1890, Birmingham, Ala.

The Association program for 1953 is:

1. Re-organizational meeting and annual dinner to be held in February. This meeting is to include:
   (a) Annual Association business session.
   (b) A study of cattle management research.
   (c) A free dinner to all Cattlemen.
   (d) A study of a successful local operation.
   (e) A grazing tour.
2. A summer Experiment Station tour.
3. A Fall beef cattle show to include:
   (a) Purebred classes of Hereford and Aberdeen Angus Cattle.
   (b) Competitive classes of grass-fat commercial stocker-killer calves.
   (c) Exhibits of purebred Red Pole cattle.

The beef marketing outlook for the immediate future is not too bright, but Chilton County Cattlemen are rapidly improving pastures, breeding practices and feeding programs. They are firmly convinced that our land and our farmers can compete with the best beef producers in the country. Beef production is a Chilton County farm practice that is here to stay on many farms.

We expect to see more pastures, more cattle, better cattle and more beef income in Chilton County in future years.

Prevent Bloat In Your Dairy Cattle Herds

Experiments show that coarse-stemmy hay fed to cows on pasture helps prevent bloat more than fine stemmed leafy hay.

Lush, immature legume pastures are the most likely to cause bloat. In fact, it is best for cows to graze alfalfa pasture only after it has reached early bloom stage.

With these points in mind farmers should provide dry roughage for cows on pasture. However, hay in one corner of the pasture or stacks of hay too firmly packed may not be eaten by cows in large quantities to be helpful.

One of the best practices to prevent bloat is to grow grasses with legumes.

Pine Seedlings And Many Tree Planters Ready

Auburn, Ala.—Many of the 51 mechanical tree planters in Alabama can be borrowed by farmers to plant slash pine seedlings still available at the State Forestry Nursery.

Several lumber and paper companies, pulpwood dealers, and others interested in the Alabama timber industry will be glad to lend farmers mechanical tree planters.

Farmers interested in borrowing tree planters and ordering seedlings may obtain complete information from the local county agent.

Reading Labels May Reduce The Repair Bills

Read before using is an obvious but often neglected rule for getting the most service and satisfaction out of any new piece of household equipment.

Stella Mitchell, API Extension home management specialist, says that careful reading of every word of print that comes with a new article, large or small, is well worth the homemaker's time, especially today when new designs, materials, and finishes are on the market.

Judge Carr To Address Methodist Men's Club Today

The Methodist Men's Club will hold the February meeting on Tuesday night, February 24, 1953. The ladies of W.S.C.S. will serve the food, and a special treat is being prepared for a 30-minute period of refreshment and social gathering immediately preceeding the 7 o'clock dinner hour. In addition to all this, Program Chairman, Ben Studdard, has arranged for Judge R. B. Carr of Montgomery, Alabama, to speak. Judge Carr is Presiding Judge of Alabama Court of Appeals, and an outstanding speaker

This is one occasion you won't want to miss. You understand, of course, that every Methodist man is invited and expected to attend these meetings.

A much larger than average attendance at this meeting is expected. Ben Studdard and Ott Miller have tickets for advance sale and these are available on request.

Future Teachers Will Meet At The University

Future Teachers of America from the 130 high school and college units in Alabama will hold their annual state convention on the University of Alabama campus March 6 and 7.

Martha Knight, state FTA president and University student from Tuscaloosa, said the outstanding feature of the program will be an address Saturday by the editor of the National Education Association "Jounal." He is Dr. Joy Elmer Morgan, nationally recognized as official spokesman for the American teaching profession.

Small discussion groups will consider problems and rewards of teacher training. Student leaders and experienced teachers will meet with each section. A general business session will be included on the two-day program.

The delegates to the convention will be guests of the Department of Speech and the University Theatre at the Friday night performance of Shakespeare's "Macbeth," by the University Theatre. This drama will be presented in Morgan Auditorium.

The 400 to 500 future teachers who will attend the convention will be housed in on the main University campus.

Arrangements for the convention are being made by Miss Knight; Dr. Ralph M. Roberts; and Dr. Marjorie Swift, advisor for the University unit of FTA.

The George FTA Club is located at the Jemison High School. Mrs. J. R. Egblad is sponsor for the future teachers.

Open Meeting Of The Better Speech Club

The first open meeting of the year of The Better Speech Club of Mrs. Thomas's Sixth Grade of the Clanton Elementary School, was given Friday morning, February 20, beginning at 10:45.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Thomas and the opening remarks were given by Denny Wood, president of the club. Devotional was led by Ophelia Wyatt. The theme of the program was Character and Patriotism. Each member of the class had a part to give and each one did an excellent job.

Quotations from some of our outstanding patriots were given, along with the date and occasion on which they were spoken.

Also several readings on character building were given. Piano selections were very ably given by several pupils. These, along with singing and dancing, a very interesting program was rendered.

Sixteen visitors were present to enjoy the program. Six of the mothers had lunch in the lunchroom with their children and were very much impressed with the quiet, mannerly way in which they ate.

Certainly we want to say, "Keep It Up, Better Speech Club." Then to Mrs. Thomas we want to say, thank you, for the noble spirit with which she works with our children. —A Mother.

A Preacher's Views On Question Of Tithing

Tithing has always been a somewhat divisive subject among Protestants, esp. within denominations themselves. I would like to submit some of my views on the subject, hoping that it will be interpreted only as one man's point of view and not an attempt to engender controversy or minimize the beliefs of those who think differently.

Personally, while I tithe myself, I do so out of love for God and His Church and not because I feel that there is an express command requiring me to do so. My thesis for this article is simply that tithing per se is not a New Testament regulation and was never intended to be enforced as such in the Christian church as for example, baptism and the Lord's Supper.

First of all, I readily admit that Jesus undoubtedly tithed Himself. But why? Was it to set us an example to follow, or was it to fulfill the law of Moses? Undoubtedly it was the latter since Jesus, while He was the Divine Son of God, was also a Jew; hence, as a Jew He was bound to obey the Mosiac code, of which tithing is a part. Imight also point out that Jesus was a unique personality; born of a Virgin, divine and sinless; far removed from us sinful mortals. Under those conditions, how could we even begin to imitate Him in anything? I am convinced that our Lord's work on earth was to fulfil the law and the prophets, and not to give us precedents to follow.

In Matt. 2:23 I agree that Jesus did approve tithing—for the Pharisees at least. But a close examination of His audience will reveal that He was talking to Jews, who like Himself, were also bound to keep the law of Moses. He was not talking to Gentile Christians who had been emancipated from the obligations of the law. We must remember also that the ministry of our Lord is not the era of the Christian church anyway. The church was not born until after the resurrection and ascension of Christ, when the disciples were gathered together in the upper room on the day of Pentecost as recorded in the second chapter of Acts. Another point to be noted is that Jesus, esp. in the Book of Matthew, is portrayed as the Jewish Messiah and not the Saviour of the world and head of the church. In Matthew 10:5-6, He told His disciples not to go into the way of the Gentiles, but go to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. Also in Matthew 15:24, He said, 'I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel." Obviously then His statements relative to the tithe are not intended to be doctrinal pronouncements as much as they are to enlighten and cleanse a corrupt Judaism.

In conclusion, I feel that if tithing was intended to be the one and only way of financing God's kingdom, the Holy Spirit would have told us so. As our Lord instituted baptism and the Lord's Supper in crystal clear terms, He would have also made similar mention of tithing had it been important. Also in Paul's epistles the subject of tithing is practically ignored altogether; in fact, the apostle was definitely antilegalistic in his theology. He knew that the imposition of rules would obscure the work of the Cross (Rom. 3:20; Galatians 2:21; and 4:8-10 to name but a few).

It would seem, therefore, that the tithe was a regulation that was abolished when the church came into existence on Pentecost.

In my next article, I would like to submit a plan for financing the Lord's work that I have always found effective. — William R. Morgan.

Those pretty things under palm trees, in the travel advertisements, make us long for summer.

Despite all the advances in knowledge, the weather forecaster still doesn't know why he gets crossed up so often.

Personally, we sometimes wonder how birds navigate to South America, and back to the same yard, year after year, which they do.

No newspaper has enough informers to get every bit of news in a community; therefore tip us off when we miss something.

What most workers need, despite their protests, is somebody to sit over them and make them work. This applies to newspaper editors too.

A member of the French Chamber of Deputies, from Africa, has been absent for three years, and one reporter suspects he has been eaten by his constituents, which isn't a bad custom.

Something is wrong in a society when the average citizen can't afford the best medical care for his family —even if he sacrifices everything to do it.

NEW CAR PROSPECTS

The average motorist will probably be able to buy any kind of new automobile he desires in 1953 and will be able to get many models at prices reduced from those of 1952.

Automobile production is soaring this year and General Motors Corporation recently reported it had built 206,812 cars and trucks in January, compared to something over 170,000, in the same period last year.

The Chrysler Corporation reported it had built 118,568 cars and trucks in January, compared to 91,499 built in January, 1952.

Taking into account the steel strike, which reduced the supply of steel in 1952, it seems clear that there will be no shortage of new automobiles in the United States in 1953. Perhaps this is why prices have declined slightly—since the law of supply and demand seems to be working for the buyer this year. In fact, it may be a long time before car dealers will have more buyers than cars, and before prospective buyers will be asked to wait several months for delivery.

BERLIN, 1953

During the first week in February a record number of refugees (from the Russian sector) were processed in the refugee reception center in West Berlin. On one day alone, 2,600 refugees crowded into the reception center, hoping to escape Communist domination.

For every refugee who manages to register in the West Berlin reception center, ten, who would like to flee, must remain behind. Unless a refugee can show that he was driven out of Communist Germany under a threat of punitive action by the Communists, he is not given a ticket to West Germany.

The steady flow of refugees into West Berlin is the most conclusive proof of the failure of the Communist system. It is undeniable proof to all the world that, given a choice, the average citizen will take democracy in favor of communism, even at the price of having to leave home.

Because of the deadly propaganda effect of this wholesale exodus from the communist sector, the Russians are believed to be contemplating new measures to isolate West Berlin. Some observers expect another blockade, similar to the one which the U. S. Air Force defeated with the now-famous air-lift. The last blockade and air-lift proved that the United States was ready to fight to protect its rights in Berlin.

It is highly doubtful, after this example, that the Soviet Union will now move for a showdown in the German capital. It seems clear that the situation in Berlin is highly irritating to the Russians and that they would do anything short of war to end Allied occupation there. Until the Reds are ready to precipitate war, however, it seems there is little they can do about it.

MORE EDUCATION FOR THE MASSES

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

A SCHOOL HEALTH PROGRAM

Even though the health of the child is the parents' primary responsibility, there are many children today who are permitted to grow without adequate medical checkups. This is dire neglect and explains the need for a well-rounded school health program.

With the emphasis today on preventive medicine, every child on reaching school age should have been periodically examined. To stop with the examination is much like pouring water through a sieve; for if defects are noted and not corrected the examination is without value.

The keynote of modern education is health, and a healthy child is a happy child. That is why a school health program is designed to instill in the growing child a knowledge of the basic health requirements which, if fulfilled, will contribute vastly to his physical and mental progress.

Even in kindergarten and nursery schools good health habits are emphasized so that the child returns home with pointed information on cleanliness, nutrition, correct posture and other simple health facts. Thus from the school into the home go simple illustrations of good health habits. With the child as the source of information, the wise parent will put the instruction into effect. The teacher's efforts will be wasted if the parent refuses to supervise the child's resultant activities in the home.

A child's school life marks a new keystone in his growth pattern, for it is in this period that his formal training establishes the direction to his place in the community. This formal training includes instruction in matters of health and physical education, which inspires an attainment of good health.

Thus the healthy and happy child grows into a healthy, happy and useful citizen making his personal contribution to his community and his nation.

Big Variety Of Plentiful Foods On Market Now

Auburn, Ala. — Cabbage is at the top of the plentiful foods list this month, according to Dorothy Overbey, API Extension specialist in consumer education.

She says that Florida shipments reached peak volume earlier this month. In addition, heavy supplies will be shipped to market from Texas, Arizona, and California.

"Besides cabbage," says Miss Overbey, "food shoppers should find ample supplies of fresh carrots, lettuce, tomatoes, and celery at local grocery stores."

She added that the best fruit buys are orange and grapefruit products, both fresh and processed. Also, markets are well supplied with dried figs, raisins, almonds, filberts, and walnuts.

Other foods on the plentiful foods list for this month include peanut butter, frozen fish, eggs, dried butterbeans, dried peas, heavy turkeys, dairy products, and edible fats and oils.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Ben Tucker,
Editor, Chilton County News,
Clanton, Alabama

Dear Sir:

Your February thirteenth issue of the Chilton County News reached me recently, and may I please congratulate you on your wonderful editorial concerning our county institutions—or lack of them. I do indeed agree with your statement, "Look at our hospital." Better than that, go look in the basement of the thing, if you can push your way through the filth. It is a terrible fire trap, and the lives of patients are constantly endangered. I know, because I left the hospital January 1, 1953 after serving as "supervisor" for five months. I came back to New Orleans partly because of Mardi Gras, but in spite of the fact that I am to return to Central Alabama Hospital March first, I cannot face the prospect with any feeling of gladness. (I have a two months leave of absence). I am now working at Charity Hospital, a new well equipped, and well supplied hospital, I like it that way. We have in Chilton County, a wonderful group of physicians. I worked with the six of them who treat their patients in Clanton's hospital. They are all well-trained, and so very nice to work with. Too bad we have no hospital for them. Any registered nurse would be more than glad to work with them, if we had a hospital; and I must add—hospital administration. Someone especially trained is needed to set up policies and to direct the business office.

Well—I've had my say. I belong to one of the mystic Krewes here and have been very busy working at Charity and taking part in all Krewe activities. We had our ball at Municipal auditorium February 6, and our parade on Monday, February 16. I had never ridden a float before but it is so much fun. Our parade route covered 8.3 miles, on St. Charles, Canal, Royal and Orleans Streets.

Again — congratulations! It is time Chilton County started going forward instead of being content with things as they are.

Sincerely,
Mildred Gore

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

The baby coos and smiles and behaves her very sweetest these days, seemingly completely unaware that she disgraced the family during her first public appearance.

It happened the Sunday she was christened. She was dressed in a long, delicately embroidered dress the six-year-old and the four-year old wore when they were christened and I wore on a similar occasion a good many years ago. Her curls were combed, her blue eyes and her two teeth all sparkled, and even she seemed pleased with her appearance.

Everything went smoothly until we took her up to the altar for the christening. She cried, she screamed, she yelled, she got red in the face. The harder we tried to calm her, the louder she protested. She completely drowned out the voice of the minister as he read the solemn service.

The six-year-old and the four-year-old, standing at the altar with us, looked the other way as though trying to detach themselves from any connection with the howling infant.

Once we were outside the church, the baby was smiling and happy again and quite ready to forget her disgraceful behavior.

"Well," said the four-year-old thoughtfully, "at least she didn't spit up." Which was about the kindest thing anybody could say.

* * *

Yes, it's the four-year-old now. He had a birthday this very week.

* * *

What with a birthday and a christening around our house all in one week, we have been more than a little disconcerted.

When the gravy turned out to be very lumpy and rather tasteless the other day, I was inclined to blame it on the general excitement, but the next door neighbor took one look at it (she would come in just then!) and said the whole trouble was that I had used hot water at the wrong time.

To thicken gravy, she says, you should put cold water in a small jar, add flour and shake hard. Add this mixture to your gravy and it will be smooth and free of lumps.

And if the gravy turns out to be smooth but tasteless, you can pep it up by adding a dash of dried dill and stirring vigorously.

* * *

The four-year-old and the six-year-old have become peanut butter fiends. I do believe if they had their way, they'd eat peanut butter sandwiches at every meal—and between meals, too! I blame it on the too-successful advertising on one of their favorite radio programs.

Anyhow, I've learned that peanut butter is much easier to spread (and will go a lot further, too) if a little hot water, about a tablespoonful, is stirred into it just before serving.

* * *

The mother down the street spreads peanut butter on lettuce leaves, rolls up the leaves, fastens them with toothpicks and deals them out to her children for after school munching.

* * *

This Hawaiian nut bread is good even without peanut butter on it: to 2 lightly beaten eggs add 1-3 cup sugar and 1-3 cup melted margerine. Sift together 2 cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder and 1 teaspoon salt and add to first mixture. Add 1 cup chopped nuts and 1 cup undrained crushed pineapple, stirring enough to combine. Pour into greased loaf pan and bake in moderate oven for an hour.

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Ester Anderson, 523 Lebaron Street, Mesa, Arizona: I remember when grandmother had a calf butchered and she hung chunks of beef in front of the fireplace to dry. She made a hole in the chunk with an ice pick, placed a string through the hole. We had dried beef in every shape and form for the whole winter.

From Mrs. Raymond Shelden, Whitefish, Montana: I remember when treadmills furnished the power to run threshing machines. Two horses were tied into a contraption like a loading chute, which had a revolving slot floor. They stood there walking for hours making a wheel go round that was attached by pulleys to the threshing machine. A fresh team was used every few hours. It was fascinating to watch the horses walk and walk and never get anywhere.

From Mrs. Bertha Williams, Fort Recovery, Ohio: I remember when my mother made her own yeast from the hops that vined high on a pole by the garden gate. There was a saying that to make good bread with the yeast the hops should be picked before the September wind blew on them.

From Mrs. Lola B. McComb, Welsonville, Nebraska: I remember when we went to town to buy groceries. Sugar was scooped out of an open barrel and weighed on an old fashion scale. Crackers came in pine boxes. Coffee came to us unroasted. Pickles came in barrels and tea was weighed out by the pound.

From Mrs. G. M. Houch, Hastings, Pa.: I remember when we used to make grape wine and we used "foot power" to press the grapes. The grapes would be put in a large wooden barrel, a few at a time, and the children would take turn about trampling the fruit with their bare feet.

The Black Taffeta Dress

By Rebecca M. Osborn

Mary Dunston remembered distinctly the expression on her husband's face that morning when she had shown him the ad.

"But what about the dinner dress you bought last fall? Do styles change that quickly?"

"No, but—"

"But what?"

"Well, the cleaners must have done something to it. It won't zip."

Al had looked at her waistline, smiled and said nothing. His silence was as disturbing as the pun he got off every time she put a little jab on her breakfast toast: "Better watch that middle-age spread."

She had a twinge of conscience as she recalled her explanation to him. The cleaners might have been careless, but there was also the matter of eight extra pounds that the bathroom scale registered.

The extra pounds had got her a new dress during the January sales—a black taffeta with simple, slimming lines. Knowing you had the right thing to wear made it so much easier to finish up the dinner dishes, hustle the children to bed and dress to go out with your husband to dinner. The dinner was just two weeks away.

Mrs. Dunston lifted the dress carefully from the hanger and held it up. It might pass for a size 16. She slipped it over her head and eased the skirt gently down over her hips. When she tried to pull up the zipper it wouldn't move. She pulled harder and the zipper moved up an inch. She stopped to adjust the waistline and began again.

On the outside of the closet door was a full-length mirror. Mrs. Dunston stood sidewise to it and looked analytically at her figure. The dress was too tight!

At dinner Mary Dunston dug her spoon hard into the last section of a half grapefruit. Al, across the table, was taking a second slice of cherry pie.

"On a diet?" Al asked. There was a curious, half-smile on his face.

It was hard work, but she kept at it—no cream in her coffee, fruit for dessert, no refreshments at sewing club, no mints at afternoon bridge. Four days, five days, six days. She longed for a hot roll at dinner or a single helping of dessert. Two days before the dance she took the black taffeta dress from the closet.

The dress slipped on easily. She tried the zipper. She could close it without effort. Happily, she stepped in front of the long mirror. The black dress hugged her slimly, except at the hips. There it bagged a little. The skirt was actually too large! Well, her dressmaker, Mrs. Netty, could alter it.

Mary Dunston finished the morning chores and an hour later knocked on Mrs. Netty's door.

"Good morning, Mrs. Netty."

"Come in, come in," Mrs. Netty urged.

Mrs. Dunston followed her into the fitting room and held out the dress.

"Can you alter this for me by Saturday? It will have to be taken in a little at the hips."

Mrs. Netty's quick fingers with their rough, knobby joints went over the seams of the dress rapidly. She lay back the sash and looked at the zipper. She nodded wisely.

"Taking it in again?" she asked.

Mrs. Dunston looked at her sharply.

"Again?" she asked.

"Why, yes. Your husband brought this dress in two weeks ago. Said you'd like it smaller at the waist. If it isn't right, I'll make good on it. But I took it down a whole size then!"

TALENT FOR GOODNESS

Some people have a talent for true goodness—like some have a talent for writing or painting. But they are few and far between.

A man with such a talent in the Bible was Barnabas, one of the leaders of the Christian church. Although he was known for his goodness, his greatest talent was finding goodness in persons that was not on the surface.

The truly good person performs his acts of kindness without a second thought, without really realizing he is performing an exceptional act. Barnabas was such a man.

The person who sets out to perform an act of kindness is not necessarily a good person. He would never look for some act of kindness to perform if he were truly good. He can be classified as the imitation-good persons.

But in every community there are those whose unselfishness, devotion to the Church and community stamp them as truly good.

The man or woman who falls in this class can become a truly good person by continuing the pursuit of doing good until that pursuit is not secondary in their lives, but its guiding theme.

F. F. A. To Celebrate Silver Anniversary With Proud History And Bright Future

America must have 130,000 new Farmers during
Each year

The nation's eyes will be focused upon the Future Farmers of America from February 21-28 when FFA members throughout America pause to observe National FFA Week. They will be celebrating the 25th anniversary of the world's largest farm boy organization.

FFA is the organization for boys studying vocational agriculture in public high schools. There are over 360,000 FFA members in 8,500 chapters scattered throughout the 48 States, Hawaii and Puerto Rico. The boys who "believe in the future of farming" celebrate National FFA week each year during the week of George Washington's birthday whom they recognize as America's first scientific farmer.

Alabama has 12,170 FFA members with chapters located in 252 vocational agriculture departments throughout the state. The vocational agriculture teacher is the adviser for the local chapter.

These Future Farmers are not only learning newer and better ways of producing food for our consumption, but they are learning to be intelligent and useful citizens in their communities and their nation. FFA has a large number of activities designed to give the boys training in leadership and citizenship. Contests are held each year that vary from livestock judging teams to quartets and string band contests. They include public speaking, farm and home electrification contests, home improvement programs, soil and water management and many more. In each of these, competition begins on the chapter level and then goes to the county, district, state, regional and finally the national level.

A state FFA convention is held each year in Auburn during June and a national FFA convention at Kansas City during October, at the time of the American Royal Livestock Show. These usually last three or four days and are full of such activities as contest eliminations for state and national titles, awards to outstanding members, tours and entertainment.

FFA, celebrating its Silver Anniversary year in 1953, was organized nationally in 1928 when a group of high school students and their vocational agriculture teachers met in Kansas City and organized the Future Farmers of America. Since that time, the organization has grown into the largest of its kind in the world.

My PET PEEVE

I bounced out of bed and into the shower. I proceeded to give forth with my usual rendition of Road to Mandalay.

A few minutes later, back in the bedroom, I heard someone at the back door talking to the wife.

"I came just as soon as I could, dearie," Miss Fannie, our nosey neighbor, was saying to the wife.

"I don't understand," says the wife

"I could hear you screaming all the way to my house," says Miss Fanny. "Some men are just naturally mean in the morning."

"Oh-h-h," says the wife, with growing understanding.

"I wouldn't stand for it," says Miss Fanny.

"It's not the beating, so much," says the wife. "as it is his chasing me with the butcher knife."

"Now stop that," I screamed from the bedroom and dashed to the kitchen. "I'll have you know I never beat my wife," I says to Miss Fanny. "She's got a perverse sense of humor."

Miss Fanny looked me up and down and let go with a wonderful 'wolf whistle' for a lady of sixty. "My, what a man," says she.

I realize I'm only wearing my shorts and dash for safety.

There was a lot of jabber from the kitchen and I heard Miss Fanny say, "You just call me, dearie, the next time he starts beating you. I'll fix him."

The back door slammed and I sneaked back to the kitchen. "Now look here," says I.

"My what a man!" the wife shouts.

I retreated from the kitchen and the house to the office, going the long way around so I wouldn't have to pass Miss Fanny's house. The wife has called twice today. All she'll say is, "My what a man!"

What can a guy do with a wife like that?

Leftover fruits and juices from canned fruits should never be wasted if you're practicing real economy in your kitchen. Try some of these ways in using small amounts of the leftovers.

Several kinds of leftover fruits can be diced and used as a topping for hot gingerbread or hot milk sponge cake. Serve with or without whipped cream.

Mix together leftover fruits and add a few creamy mints and citrus juice to them for a delightful fruit cup.

Drained chunks of fruit can be folded into muffin batter to give a delightful variation to the hot bread. Sprinkle the top with cinnamon sugar for an extra special treat.

Leftover applesauce can be sweetened with honey and poured into small baked pastry shells. Top with whipped cream swirls for a delectable dessert.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Pineapple Brown Betty
(Serves 8)

1½ cups buttered crumbs
1½ cups diced pineapple
⅓ cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup pineapple juice
3 tablespoons butter

Spread alternate layers of buttered crumbs, pineapple, sugar and spices in a greased baking dish. Pour in pineapple juice Dot top with butter. Bake in a hot (400° F.) oven for 25 to 30 minutes. Serve with cream.

Combine several kinds of canned fruit juices, spice with lemon juice and tint pale green or pink with fruit coloring for an appetizing beverage.

Any canned fruit juices, either alone or in combination, may be sweetened to taste, thickened with cornstarch and cooked to be used as a sauce for fruit or bread puddings or cakes.

Loganberry or raspberry juice leftover from the canned berries is delicious when combined in equal quantities with pineapple juice. Chill thoroughly and serve as a first course.

Use leftover fruit juices to replace water in making gelatin desserts to increase their flavor, vitamin and mineral content

22 Million Dogs in the U. S. Never Had It So Good Before

Let's face it, the dog is no longer leading a dog's life.

While you may wish for a return to the "good old days," not so our friend Rover. Why should he? Thanks to advances made in various fields of medicine and nutrition, man's best friend can now have a standard of living equal to man's.

All this is not news to the approximately 22 million dogs in this country. And not only is the dog ... happier and healthier today, but ... life expectancy has increased ... as man's has. While no official statistics are available, most experts feel that if a pup survives the disease hazards of the first year, and is not run down by an automobile, he can look forward to a ripe old age of 11 or 12.

This is due to the great advances that have been made in preventive and therapeutic medicines, in animal hospitals and personnel, and in nutrition. In no other aspect of veterinary medicine have medicaments and preventives been developed more rapidly than in the field of canine practice.

Rabies, the one-time horror of dogdom, need no longer cause fear and trembling. A new vaccine was developed a little over a year ago and gives solid, lasting immunity against rabies.

The so-called "wonder drugs" developed for use in human ... eases, are also playing an important role in elevating the dog's health standards. The sulfa drugs, penicillin, and aureomycin are used for external and internal infections.

Advancement made in recent years in animal nutrition are well known to most people. Whereas Rover once was content with table scraps and an occasional piece of raw meat, today he can turn up his nose at anything less than a daily portion of government-inspected horse meat, or concentrated and fortified dog foods from a tin can with a fancy label. Other nutritional products developed for man, such as vitamins and liver extract, are also fed to dogs.

Surprising developments have occurred in the animal hospital field. There are about 2,500 animal hospitals today equipped to take care of 10 or more animals. The latest official listing reveals that there are 12,903 licensed veterinarians in this country, 1,135 of whom are in small animal practice.

All this fine care for dogs may seem silly to some people, but there is this to consider: with proper care, you may have the companionship of your dog a few years longer than was possible in the past. Children who grow up with a frisky dog can really appreci... this ...

Rover just never had it so good.

Fish Cookery Demonstration Is Planned Here

A fish cookery demonstration showing preparation of fish in quantity is to be given for local school lunch personnel, and others interested in quantity feeding. It will be presented by a U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service home economist, at Clanton, Ala., Chilton County High School Lunchroom, February 24th, at 3 o'clock. All school lunch personnel, dieticians, home economists, institutional users of fish, fish dealers, and others interested in fish cookery are cordially invited.

This demonstration is part of a series being presented in Alabama by the State Educational Department in cooperation with the Fish and Wildlife Service of the U. S. Department of the Interior. Superintendent J. H. Boockholdt, Mrs. Doyle McRae, Principal S. E. Waters, and Miss Louise Foshee are some of the local persons giving their cooperation and assistance to the arrangements.

Miss Jean Burtis, the Fish and Wildlife Service home economist, is a fish cookery expert. She has presented demonstrations from Maine to California, and has also appeared on many TV and radio food programs. When not traveling she works on the developing of new fish recipes at the Service test kitchens in College Park, Md. Mr. Williams Cabaniss, Fishery Marketing Specialist from the Fish and Wildlife Service, has been making the arrangements for this demonstration. He will appear on the program with Miss Burtis and will speak on the local availability of fishery products.

During this hour and a half program, six fish dishes will be prepared and the audience will have a chance to taste the finished products. None of the fish will be pan or deep-fat fried, for one aim of the demonstrations is to show how this economical protein food can be appetizingly used in different ways.

MORE EGGS PER BIRD

During this period of low prices eggs, poultrymen find that a high rate of production per bird is vitally important if a profit is to be made on eggs.

GMC covers all bases

...19 new light truck models offer Hydra-Matic shifting

GMC advances spread right across the light truck field! Throughout the ½-, ¾- and 1-ton-capacity range, GMC presents no less than 19 pickup, stake, panel and package delivery chassis models that offer Hydra-Matic Drive*— as well as the highest-compression gasoline truck engines ever designed, to power a grand total of 22 light truck choices!

Dual-Range Hydra-Matic Drive has one setting for flashing footwork in traffic—another for gas-saving open going. From joltless starts to unlabored climbing, Hydra-Matic takes over all gearshifting effort AND judgment.

Two ultramodern new engines power this great group—bringing the tremendous lift of compression ratios at 7.5-1 and 8.0-1 with regular gasoline. And with even more power delivered to the wheels, there's more mileage squeezed from the gas!

There's a new electrical system to make high compression pay off at all speeds—new safety from greater stopping power—new stamina from heavier construction.

Come look over these all modern GMC's. See for yourself how they're "built like the big ones"—those brawny GMC's of 26,000 GVW and up that are leading all heavy-duty trucks in sales.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN —By Ben

"Pig" Headley has been wanting to meet "Big Jim" Folsom. Recently he sent "Big Jim" a statement demanding payment of "one visit" to be made to his store in West End. The other day when the big ex-Governor was through Clanton he looked up Pig's Grocery to pay the bill—Pig was out of town.

Looks like everybody and their brother got arrested last week end. The Sheriff's office reports 26 arrested and jailed. That is out of the ordinary for Chilton County. It is a rare occasion when more than two or three see the inside of our jail on any week end. Maybe they were trying to get in out of the wet.

A man was returning home late at night and found a burglar opening the lock on the front door. Knowing his wife and also aware of the late hour, he thought quickly. Walking up behind the prowler, he whispered: "I'll open the door if you will go in first."

The Clanton Lions Club "Illuminate Your Bumper For Safety" Campaign is coming along fine. They are spnsoring the sale of Scotchlite Safety tape for automobile bumpers and the money will go for their Community Betterment Fund. Enough of the safety tape for your bumper (automobile bumper, that is), can be bought from any Lion or at Herman LeCroy's Shell Service Station or Herb Salter's Pan-Am Station. It will cost you only a Buck, and remember, the money goes for the betterment of your community.

Was talking to Otto Jones today about the new "night depository" at the First National Bank. He says there has never been one in use in Clanton before and he hopes the businessmen will make use of it. It was put there for your convenience and it will safeguard your cash receipts, so give it a try.

Essie Mae Mims To Open Chilton Red Cross Drive Monday

Chilton County's Annual Red Cross Drive officially gets under way Monday, March 1st. Selected to head the drive this year is Mrs. Essie Mae Mims of Clanton. Mrs. Mims is generally known for her ability to get things done and her work with the Red Cross this year will, no doubt, follow through in a very fine manner. Mrs. Mims will be remembered as the head of the Mims Realty Company of Clanton.

Chilton's quota this year is $5,036. When the scope of the work done by this great organization is considered, this seems like a small figure. Added to the usual great services of the Red Cross this year is the responsibility of collecting blood for use in making the new wonder weapon to be used against the paralizing effects of polio-gamma globulin. Each contribution to the Red Cross in the form of money or blood is a contribution to an effort to save our children from the ill effects of this dreaded disease. Every good citizen is ready to help in a cause such as this.

A lineup of outstanding workers have been enlisted for the campaign again this year. Chilton Countians are urged to remember that these people are generously donating their time and automobile expenses in an effort to put the campaign over in big fashion. Each citizen can show appreciation for this attitude by being ready to assist with their dollars when the solicitor calls. Mrs. Mims would like for everyone to cooperate in an effort to make the campaign "short and easy" so that all will be able to close the books on a successful campaign as early as possible.

Miss Susie Edgerton, our Field Representative of the American Red Cross, will be in Clanton Tuesday, March 3rd, to talk to our chairman and workers about the need of Red Cross for 1953. This meeting will be in the dining room at the Dixie Cafe at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. Refreshments will be served to all chairmen and workers who wish to attend.

Look in the following list of solicitors for the name of the worker in your community and be ready to greet him with a smile and a donation when he calls.

Scanning the News

● President Eisenhower's administration made its second big step back to free-market economy by scrapping federal price controls over thousands of items, including eggs, poultry, soaps, gasoline, crude oil, newsprint, and all rubber products.

This move has long been advocated by many economists and legislators who contend that price controls have out-lived their usefullness. This doesn't mean, however, that the move has the unanimous approval of Washington. There are many who are watching with scepticism, if not with actual alarm.

Their great fear is runaway prices. There have been a few price increases, but nothing to become alarmed about. There may even be further price increases before a leveling-off and final stabilization is assured.

● President Eisenhower in refusing to spare the lives of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, convicted of espionage against the United States, pointed out that their crime "far exceeds that of taking the life of another citizen; it involves the deliberate betrayal of the entire nation and could very well result in the death of many thousands of innocent citizens."

As this is written the date of their execution has not been set. It could be delayed by another appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court. It is generally believed, however, that Eisenhower's action eliminates any chances of clemency for the couple.

If executed the Rosenbergs will be the first American civilians to pay with their lives for the crime of espionage against the United States.

And it is a certainty that they will be hailed in Communist countries as martyrs. There has been wide agitation among Communists the world over for clemency for the couple who contend they are innocent.

● To the casual observer the administration's proposed legislative program does not appear over ambitious. Many have overlooked one item on the agenda that may cause considerable debate—or an all-out fight—in the halls of congress.

The item is statehood for Hawaii. And the reason it may cause battle is practical politics. Hawaii is normally Republican in national elections. This in itself would not cause the fight if Alaska, considered Democratic, were not also seeking statehood.

The result is, then, two territories seeking statehood, one voting Republican and one Democratic, with the President giving his approval to the Republican voting territory—in this case Hawaii. Too much hasn't been said about the problem as yet, but there is a feeling that Democrats in congress will make the issue one on which they will make their strength.

● In his report to the nation on his trip to Europe, Secretary of State Dulles expressed hope that the next few weeks will bring "concrete evidence" of progress toward a six-nation European Defense Community treaty.

His report was startling in that the strength of Europe today is not what the average citizen had believed. He said failure to unite "has so weakened the Western European countries that today no one of them could offer strong resistance to the Red Army."

He added that "nothing that the United States can do will ever be enough to make Europe safe if it is divided into rival national camps."

From his observations one is inclined to believe that the next 60 days may decide the eventual fate of Europe and perhaps the entire world.

Soil Conservation News

J. W. Willis, Clanton Route 4, has turned and fertilized his old weak stand of Kudzu to kill the sedge grass and stimulate the growth of more crowns.

* * *

Lloyd Mims and neighbors are digging their own Kudzu crowns and planting the crowns on each terrace ridge with one row between the terrace. The balance of the land will be planted to corn. Dewey Hill and J. C. Boockholdt of the Enterprise community, are working together and will plant Kudzu the same way.

* * *

O. H. Lawrence has prepared land to plant Bahia grass. Coastal Bermuda will be planted this week on ten acres.

N. L. Roberts has prepared five acres for Bahia grass planting this spring.

* * *

S. D. Posey, Jemisn Route 1, will dig enough Coastal Bermuda stolens from a small nursery patch to plant five acres this spring.

* * *

Land preparation for sod crops are just as important as row crops. This year with high priced seed, fuel, labor and other things it seems almost a must to do as good a job as possible to get a stand the first time.

* * *

Under control, water and fire are two necessities of life, but out of control they are destructive. Keep fire out of your woods and control the run-off water on your farm by sodding all natural draws and steep land in a thick growing sod crop like Kudzu, Sericea, Fescue, Bermuda or Bahia.
